By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Next space target for U. S. television cameras will be Mars —believed by most scientists to be the only planet besides earth which might possibly harbor life.

Encouraged by the successful picture-taking mission of Ranger 7, officials of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory plan to launch two identical 570-pound payloads toward Mars during a favorable 28-day period starting in late October.

JPL also was responsible for the success of Ranger 7 and the Mariner 2 probe which relayed the first close-up scientific information on Venus during a fly-by in 1962.

The Mars explorers, Mariners 3 and 4, will have much more difficult assignments than Ranger 7 or Mariner 2.

They must survive eight months in the hostile space environment and then gather essential data during a swift 20-minute fly-by of Mars next June or July. They are to pass within 13,500 miles of the planet.

The camera on each Mariner is to take 20 pictures. Because of communications limitations at that distance, more than 66 million miles, the television pictures will be stored on magnetic tape within the spacecraft and relayed to earth at the rate of one a day.

In order to achieve a near-rendezvous with Mars, each Mariner vehicle must fly a great arching path or more than 350 million miles, requiring 230 to 260 days depending on the launch date. Mariner 2 covered 224 million miles in 3½ months to encounter Venus when it was 54 million miles from earth. Ranger 7 traveled 243,665 miles in 68½ hours to hit the moon at a point 228,686 miles away.

The circuitous routes are necessary because the payloads must be aimed in front of the fast-moving planet—much like a hunter aims at a flying bird—to achieve the proper intercept at times when the targets make near-approaches to earth.

In addition to television cameras, Mariners 3 and 4 will carry instruments to measure magnetic fields, cosmic dust, radiation and other space phenomena along the route and in the vicinity of Mars.

The probes could provide preliminary clues about the possibility of life of some sort on the planet. But their prime mission is to lay the groundwork for landing instrument packages on Mars later in this decade. The follow-on shots could be attempted in 1966, when Mars next will be in favorable position.

Unmanned lunar exploration is to resume in January with Ranger 8. The craft will have essentially the same mission as Ranger 7—take close-in television pictures. The area and type of target it will seek will be determined after thorough study of the Ranger 7 photos.

Ranger 9, scheduled for February or March, will have a similar assignment and will conclude the Ranger program.

More sophisticated unmanned spacecraft will follow in the Surveyor and Lunar orbiter projects to gather more definitive data for the Apollo man-to-the-moon endeavor.

The first Surveyor, which is to soft-land on the moon, is scheduled for late 1965. Small motors are to help it set down gently on the surface, where it is to make several scientific studies and drill into the soil to dig up sam-

'Sea of Clouds' Safe for Manned Moon Landings, Scientists Report

By DOUGLAS DILTZ

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Ranger 7 pictures Saturday showed the "Sea of Clouds" to be a safe place for U. S. astronauts to set foot on the moon, but scientists also planned to explore other lunar regions — such as the inside of a monster crater — as possible landing sites.

They said although the spacecraft's closeup television pictures revealed pockets of treacherous tiny craters in the dry lunar "sea," about 99 per cent of the region was suitable for making a manned landing.

In Washington Saturday President Johnson was visited by triumphant Ranger 7 scientists who told him the United States could put astronauts on the moon on schedule by 1970.

Caltech's Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL), which masterfully conducted the spectacularly successful Ranger 7 mission, said it was interested in seeking out other possible landing sites on the lunar landscape in the two remaining ranger probes.

It said one possibility would be the 100-mile-wide crater Copernicus, the moon's largest.

JPL scientists said the inside of the huge crater might prove ideal as a landing site for astronauts.

A noted astronomer, in a preliminary review Friday night of the 4,316 frames of film returned by ranger, warned that the photos revealed a "nest of dangerous craters that should be avoided like poison" by a manned lunar landing ship.

Dr. Gerald P. Kuiper, a Ranger team member from the University of Arizona's lunar and planetary laboratory, said a section of the target area on the moon was "infested" with small dangerous craters — unknown to man before Ranger 7's television exploration.

"We found a remarkable cluster of these very small craters," he said. "They have rounded edges into which a landing spacecraft might slip. It's a region badly battered (by fragments spewed from bigger craters over the ages) and it should be avoided like poison."

But scientists who headed the lunar project minimized the danger of the round-edged craters, saying they comprised an area of about only one per cent of the explored region.

Dr. Kuiper called the spacecraft's photos "extraordinary . . . something I've never seen before in all my experience." He said they were "1,000 times better than anything previously."

By SHIRLEY COCHRAN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Acacia Park had all the scuffmarks of a rodeo arena Saturday as some 200 kids plus parents, grandparents, baby sitters, brothers and dogs whooped it up at the 19th annual Gazette Telegraph and Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo Kiddies Rodeo Revue.

Under a blazing hot sun and amid loud and lively foot-stompin' accordion music, two brave judges sorted through the herd of milling cowhands and somehow came up with winners and runners-up in three divisions.

Mrs. Sylvia Hammond and her daughter, Charlene were the judges and it was evident as soon as the first chap-clad cowpoke set his boot on the reviewing stand that no one envied them their job.

But even the losers had their reward, including special ribbons, ice cream bars and a free ticket to the Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo which kicks off Wednesday night at Penrose Stadium.

Top hands in the open class were Dawn Marie Mansker and Jody Lazor, both four years old.

Dawn Marie competed with 40 others for the best - dressed working cowgirl title and ambled off the stage with the No. 1 trophy tucked under her arm. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Mansker, Route 2, and a "veteran" contestant in the annual Kiddies Revue.

Jody, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Lazor, Route 2, took the champion trophy in the best-dressed working cowboy division.

While those two champs clutched their engraved horse trophies and headed for the ice cream wagon, the runners-up were presented with shiny silver belt buckles.

Winning second and third place respectively in the cowgirl division were Susie Simco, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Simco, Route 2, and Jaynee Hart, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hart, 710 Copley Rd.

T. J. Eitel, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Eitel, 735 Copley Rd., won second place honors in the open cowboy division and third place went to eight-year-old Chris Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fink, 914 Cheyenne Blvd.

Attracting the fewest number of contestants but the most applause was the novelty western-dress division. The judges gave the nod to Robert Schwartz in the boys' section and to Gail Barrow for the girls.

Robert, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Schwartz, 2703 Tremont, was all dressed-up as a handsome, dashing gambler and five-year-old Gail was a real dandy dance hall girl — complete with beauty mark. Gail is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Les Barrow, 1213 Morning Star Dr.

The two runners-up in the boys' novelty section were Mike O'Neal, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill O'Neal, 1519 Mt. Everett and Rodney Frank, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Frank, 2101 Snyder Ave.

Runners-up in the girls' novelty section were Pammie Brotherton, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Brotherton, 1528 N. Nevada Ave., and Karen Schinstine, 4, daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. Kenneth Schinstine of the Air Force Academy.

In the Riding Club division, Linda Wilkinson, 8, and Rusty Riggs, 8, were named winners. Both are members of the Prairie Rambler Riding Club.

Linda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Wilkinson, Route 1., and Rusty is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Riggs, Route 1.

Runners-up in the girls' section were Vicki Vrooman, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Egmont Vrooman of the Whitehouse Ranch, and 4- year - old Donna Odneal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Odneal, Route 4.

Runners-up in the boys' section were Mike Jubb, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Jubb, 1308 E. Uintah St., and John Weidler, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Weidler, 1019 Valley Rd.

On deck to keep the whole thing moving fast was the veteran of 19 Kiddie Revues, Clarence Shemwell. His helpers included Ray Kranz, Mike Edwards, Paul Davis and Vern Smith, all members of the Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo Association which lends a hand to the Gazette Telegraph in producing the annual spectacular.

Violence-Ridden Printers Strike Settled in SF

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco's bitter 11-months printing strike was settled Friday, Mayor John F. Shelley, former labor leader, who moved in after violence erupted on mass picket lines, announced.

Picket lines were withdrawn from struck plants — 14 commercial printing plants operated by members of the Graphic Arts Employers Association.

"Hopefully, our men may be back to work by Monday," said Vice President George Hogan of Typographical Union Local 21, "once the strikebreakers have been removed."

He said this was a condition of settlement.

Non-union printers had been employed. Members of other unions continued to work during the strike in which union jurisdiction over new equipment was a key issue.

"Mutually agreeable provisions for methods of procedure have been reached, in the work jurisdiction issue," Shelley said, "in addition to an agreement on "economic and working provisions."

Bright-Blue Meteor Seen In Peak Region

Harry Seeman, 48 Security Blvd., at 10:30 p.m. Friday from his home, said he saw a very large and bright meteor streak the sky from the north to south off to the southeast. He has made a study of meteors and said Saturday that it was the brightest one he had ever seen.

"It was of a very bright blue color," he said, "and must have struck the ground, instead of being consumed by friction while in the air. It appeared to have landed near the County Road, between Security and Widefield, though it is impossible to tell how far away the place where it struck may have been.

Seeman said he has observed many meteors and has seen the great meteor crator in Arizona and investigated meteorites in various locations. He said the meteor he saw Friday night was amazingly large and of such brightness it was startling.

Although this meteor may have been seen by others no other report of it was received by the Gazette Telegraph Saturday.

Nikita Warns Russia Will Quit U.N. If it Loses Vote for Not Paying Bills

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Top sources reported Saturday that Soviet Premier Khrushchev told Secretary-General U Thant the Soviet Union will walk out of the General Assembly and perhaps quit the United Nations altogether if its vote is taken away for nonpayment of bills.

These sources said Thant, deeply worried, will discuss this threatened break-up of the world organization with President Johnson when he flies to Washington for a scheduled appointment Thursday.

Thant has just returned from a trip to Moscow where he appealed to the Kremlin not to let the United Nations go broke through failure to pay up.

He told newsmen there, after a long talk with Khrushchev, that he saw no change in the Soviet stand.

The United States insists that the Soviet Union lose its vote in the assembly unless it pays some of its back dues before the assembly convenes Nov. 10.

The U.N. Charter says that any country two years behind in U.N. dues "shall have no vote" in the assembly.

The Soviet Union has refused to pay its assessments for Congo and Middle East peacekeeping costs and, if these are counted along with its regular budget assessments, it is two years behind.

The Americans say these costs must be counted because they are binding on all members. The Russians say they are not because they were not assessed by the Security Council.

The Soviet Union walked out of the Security Council in 1950 to protest the continued representation of Nationalist China there. The absence of the Kremlin's veto-wielding delegate permitted the United Nations to set up its Korean operation which would otherwise have been

Red China Stole Russian Atom Secrets, Report Says

By K. C. THALER

LONDON (UPI)—Diplomatic reports said today Red China may be able to set off some kind of a nuclear explosion for prestige purposes later this year.

The reports said Peking scientists, although they have not yet been able to produce anything resembling a real atomic bomb, appear to be rushing work on some sort of a primitive "nuclear device."

They said a test may be held before the end of the year to boost Red China's prestige as a coming nuclear power.

Peking itself is maintaining official silence on the subject.

No detailed information is available here on the type of the device and the likely date of its explosion, and Moscow appears to have as little authoritative information about Red China's nuclear progress as the West.

The latest indications reaching here suggested Peking's nuclear device might be set off somewhere on the Chinese mainland later this year or early in 1965.

Experts believe it will be some time before Red China can perfect a nuclear bomb.

It may be 10 years or more before Red China can produce nuclear weapons of any consequence, and far longer before it has the delivery vehicles, unless Russia offers aid — which at present seems out of the question.

The Russian technicians who once aided Red China in the nuclear field in the past have long since left China. Peking charges the Russians have re-

DECLARED A COLONY

PRETORIA, South Africa — (UPI) — The British Embassy announced Saturday night that Basutoland in South Africa, formerly a British territory, has been declared a colony.

Local Spending, Income Exceeds Average Level

(Special to the Gazette Telegraph)

On the basis of a national study of business activity, just released, Colorado Springs stands out as a solid, vigorous market, with a level of income and spending above that found in most communities.

Marked gains were made in its trading area during the past year as local families, with more money at their command, indulged in large-scale buying.

The facts are brought out in Sales Management's new copyrighted "Survey of Buying Power," which presents comparable income and sales figures for every section of the country.

The strong consumer buying in Colorado Springs enabled retailers to top their previous year's records. Local stores closed the year with a sales volume of $158,832,000, an increase over the 1962 total of $153,837,000.

From the standpoint of population, this was more than should have been expected. With a local population equivalent to .0439 per cent of the national population, the local volume of business should have been approximately that proportion of the national.

Actually, however, it went beyond that amount, accounting for .0644 per cent of the national.

The spending surge was felt, in varying degrees, in most parts of the country. It proved a boon retailers generally, but benefited the automobile business more than any other.

The affluent public opened its purse string wide, also, for other products. They bought more household appliances, more fancy foods, more books and magazines and did more traveling than ever before.

The answer is that, despite the many people who are still unemployed, the number who are holding down jobs has gone up and their earnings have increased.

This boils down to an average of $6,496 per household, which is arrived at by dividing the overall income by the number of households.

Cadet Praised For Attempts To Rescue Man

Cadet Second Class Robert Dunshee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Dunshee of Oskaloosa, Iowa, was commended for his bravery by Kermit D. Dybsetter, manager of the DeSoto National Wildlife Refuge, Missouri Valley, Iowa.

On July 26, at the public recreation area of the refuge, a boy approached Cadet Dunshee and asked for aid in rescuing a drowning man. Cadet Dunshee swam to the spot where the man had disappeared and dived into nine feet of water.

On his third attempt he found the victim and brought him to shore.

House Trailer Insuring Often Complicated

House trailers, becoming ever more popular in the Mountain States, bring a great deal of pleasure and convenience to their owners but at the same time they also present increased responsibility.

Obviously, the pulling of a house trailer behind an automobile, or pickup truck, calls for extraordinary caution and considerable skill if the operation is to be performed safely. Not so obvious is the fact that house trailer owners, or users, should protect their property, and themselves, against the financial loss that can be caused by accidents and other disasters.

The insuring of a house trailer is not a simple matter as the trailer is exposed to the hazards that are associated with both automobiles and homes. In spite of this double barreled susceptibility to accidents, house trailers can be insured.

If the trailer is on wheels, it can be covered under the standard family automobile policy.

Along with comprehensive coverage on the trailer itself, contents of the trailer can be insured against loss caused by fire and lightning. This additional insurance coverage is obtained through a separate "endorsement" to the policy. Additional premium is charged for this additional protection.

Collision protection can also be taken out under the family automobile policy. This will reimburse the owner for collision-caused damage to the trailer.

Liability protection can also be afforded by the family auto policy provided the trailer is designed for use with a private passenger automobile and is not being used for business or commercial purposes.

As is the case with most types of insurance, deductible provisions can be incorporated into the insurance policy that will result in lower insurance premiums.

House trailers on blocks, instead of wheels, can be insured under the standard fire insurance policy. With the proper endorsements added to the policy this will insure the trailer and its contents against damage from wind, lightning, hail and fire. Liability protection can be obtained through "Comprehensive Perils Liability Policy" or through "Owners, Protective and Liability Policy."

House trailers usually represent a sizeable investment to their owners making it highly desirable to carry the proper type of insurance in adequate limits.

Detailed information about insurance for house trailers can be obtained from local insurance agents and companies. It should be remembered that many different types of policies are available. The advice of an agent can be of great assistance in obtaining insurance protection tailored to meet the needs of each individual case.

TV Debate Question Remains 'Academic'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, says the question of broadcast debates between President Johnson and Sen. Barry Goldwater "remains academic" because broadcasters cannot, as a practical matter, carry such an exchange under present law.

Stanton said Congress has failed to pass a compromise bill that would temporarily suspend the equal-time provision of the Communications Act. He said that unless such a suspension is made — as was done in 1960 for the debates between Richard Nixon and John F. Kennedy — a broadcast would be forced to give equal time to all the minor candidates running for president.

Stanton's comments were made in a letter to the editor of the New York Times published today.

He said bills to suspend Section 315 of the Communications Act were passed by the House and Senate and their differences were resolved by a House-Senate conference committee. However, the final bill has not been reported out or voted on by the House or Senate.

Lad Wounded in Heart Goes Home

DENVER (AP) — Frederick Michael Callaway, 13, of Las Vegas, N.M., who was wounded in the heart by a fragment from an exploding gun barrel July 20, was released from Colorado General Hospital Friday.

Callaway was flown to the hospital July 21 with two small pieces of metal embedded in his heart muscle. Authorities said he was hurt when a pistol he was examining accidentally fired and exploded.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Assignment of Brig. Gen. Richard F. Bromiley as assistant deputy chief of staff at the Air Defense Command headquarters in Colorado Springs, was reported Friday by Colorado senators.

Rechtschaffen To Retire Soon From Air Force

The author of a lavishly praised Air Force Academy publication will retire after more than 22 years service.

Col. Rechtschaffen compiled a 345-page book "Reflections in Space" for use by delegates to the Academy Assembly. The work was singled out for special mention by Assembly keynote speaker James Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The colonel is also well known for his lectures on Nazi Germany.

After entering the service Jan. 11, 1942, Col. Rechtschaffen received basic training at Camp Croft, S.C., and completed a communications course. He was selected to attend OCS in May 1943 and received his second lieutenant's commission in August of that year.

As a prisoner of war interrogator, the colonel served in the European Theater from Dec. 20, 1943, to Nov. 17, 1945.

Recalled to active duty following a short term in the Reserves, Colonel Rechtschaffen attended the Counterintelligence School. After transfer to the Air Force he was stationed in Germany from November 1946 to November 1949 as a counterintelligence detachment commander and, during the Berlin Airlift, as a counterintelligence security officer.

Following a 20-month assignment as detachment commander and special investigation staff officer in Chicago, the colonel spent three years as special investigation officer and U.S. Air Force liaison officer to the German Counterintelligence Agency.

During a tour at Bolling AFB, Col. Rechtschaffen was awarded his Bachelor of Science Degree from the University of Maryland. In September 1957 he was sent to George Washington University as a graduate student and received a Master of Arts Degree. He is presently a Doctor of Philosophy candidate at American University.

The colonel joined the Academy staff Jan. 3, 1959, as a member of the Department of Political Science.

North Rhodesia Consul To Visit AFA Tuesday

Hosea Soko, Consul for the African nation of North Rhodesia, will visit the Air Force Academy Tuesday.

The Consul will be accompanied by Miss Joyce Veasay, Vice Consul for the United Kingdom in Denver.

Scheduled to arrive at the Academy at approximately 11 a.m., Soko will tour academic area facilities and receive a briefing on the Academy mission en route.

Following luncheon he will tour the NORAD facility in Colorado Springs.

WASHINGTON (AP) — By a vote of 373 to 1, the House has passed a bill to establish a national wilderness preservation system.

The measure, passed in a similar form by the Senate, now goes to conference to work out differences between the two versions.

Only Rep. Joe Pool, D-Tex., opposed the bill.

Under the wilderness system, at least 9.2 million acres of federal land would be protected against most commercial uses so their natural conditions can be preserved. Another 5 million acres, designated as primitive lands, may be included later in the wilderness system.

The bill allows some livestock grazing, mining and prospecting on wilderness land.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is understood to have insisted on Communist withdrawal from newly conquered Laotian territory as one condition for a new international conference on the prolonged crisis in the Southeast Asian country.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk called Soviet Minister-Counselor George M. Kornienko to the State Department Thursday to give him the U.S. answer to the Soviet proposal Sunday for a new 14-nation conference on Laos.

In making the proposal, the Soviet Union warned that it might resign its role as co-chairman with Britain if there was not some effort to get a conference organized.

WASHINGTON (AP) — John E. Grenier, 33, a Birmingham attorney and Alabama Republican chairman, has been named to succeed William S. Warner as executive director of the Republican National Committee.

Grenier, named Thursday by GOP National Chairman Dean Burch, served as southern regional chairman of the Goldwater-for-President Committee.

Warner was named earlier in the day as campaign chairman for Rep. William E. Miller, the Republican candidate for vice president.

WASHINGTON (AP) —President Johnson has assured the mother of one of the three civil rights workers missing in Mississippi that everything possible is being done.

The President gave the assurance Thursday to the mother of James Chaney, of Meridian, Miss., who has been missing since last month along with Michael Schwerner and Andy Goodman of New York City.

Chaney's mother was accompanied to the White House by James Farmer, president of the Congress of Racial Equality.

WASHINGTON (AP) — After approval of some technical amendments, the Senate passed a "freedom of information" bill Friday and sent it to the House, where its fate is uncertain.

The Senate had passed the measure Tuesday but assistant Senate Democratic leader Hubert H. Humphrey had moved to reconsider. Humphrey and Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., one of the bill's sponsors, agreed to the minor amendment's Friday night and the bill was again passed without opposition.

It would spell out in detail the right of the public to information from government departments and agencies and would permit federal court suits to challenge withholding of information with the burden of proof on the government agency.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sponsor of a constitutional amendment to guarantee freedom to pray in public schools Friday made what he called his final appeal to House members to sign a petition to bring it to the floor.

Rep. Frank J. Becker, R-N.Y., made several previous requests. The amendment is before the House Judiciary Committee, which completed lengthy hearings in June but has taken no action.

Becker says he has 170 of the necessary 218 signatures to force his proposal to the floor, despite what he called an organized drive by opponents to get members to remove their names.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has rejected the Soviet proposal for a new 14-nation conference on Laos. But it left the way open for possible approval later under certain conditions.

The conditions were spelled out in a note handed the Soviets Thursday and made public by the State Department Friday.

Over 164,000 Flags to Drape Caskets Issued

More than 164,000 American flags used to drape the caskets of deceased veterans were issued in 1963, the Veterans Administration said today. That was about 11,000 more than in the previous year when 153,183 were given out.

These flags are used to drape the caskets of veterans with wartime service who were discharged under conditions other than dishonorable or who served at least one enlistment during peacetime unless discharged or released from duty for disability in line of service.

Customarily these flags are given to next of kin, close friends or associates of the veteran at the conclusion of the service according to Miss Dorothy L. Starbuck, manager of the Denver VA Regional Office.

Flags may be obtained from VA offices and at some 15,400 post offices in this country as well as embassies, consulates, legations and missions overseas through arrangements made with the State Department.

During the past 13 years the number of flags issued has increased from 81,000 annually to the more than 164,000 figure.

FINDS FROZEN BODIES

TOYAMA, Japan (UPI) — The manager of a dry-ice plant opened an ice box Friday and found the bodies of two men who had entered it an estimated seven hours earlier, apparently drunk and wanting to cool off. They were frozen stiff.

Flood Kills One, Knocks Out Bridge

CHINLE, Ariz. (AP) — At least one person is dead as a result of a flood that knocked out three spans of a 288-foot bridge leading to the Canyon de Chelley National Monument camp ground, stranding some 200-300 persons.

The Bureau of Indian Affairs said a body of a man tentatively identified only as Steven Bazardi was found about three miles downstream from the bridge. His car was found about three-quarters of a mile downstream.

A bureau spokesman said the car apparently was on the bridge when a 20-foot wall of water knocked out the sections Thursday night.

A bureau spokesman said the Navajo tribe and the bureau were flying over the area attempting to find another route out of the area for the stranded motorists.

They will be stranded either until a temporary structure is built or until the water recedes.

Father and Son Honored During Command Change

Father and son were honored during a change of command ceremony conducted this week in the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry area at Ft. Carson.

Lt. Col. Stephen A. Day, commanding officer, turned the colors of the battalion over to his successor, Lieutenant Col. David R. Presson during the ceremony. The colors changed hands from the top of an M-113, armored personnel carrier which had passed in review.

The fairwell speech of Col. Day and the acceptance speech of Colonel Presson praised the men of the 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry.

Col. Day is leaving the battalion after eleven months for his new assignment with the Department of the Army in the Pentagon.

The Eagle Scout Award, the highest award in scouting, was presented to Col. Day's son, William, by Brig. Gen. Milburn N. Huston, assistant 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) commander. Gen. Huston congratulated both father and son for work well done in each of their endeavors.

State Secretary To Decide on Candidates

DENVER (AP) — Three decisions must be made by Secretary of State Byron Anderson on eligibility of candidates to run in the Sept. 8 primary elections. He is expected to consider the actions Monday.

Legal action is possible in all three cases.

Anderson must decide whether James F. Quine Jr., Colorado Springs municipal judge, is eligible to seek the Republican nomination for district judge from the eastern part of the Fourth Judicial District.

Quine filed new petitions Friday afternoon, in effect repairing petitions which Anderson ruled invalid several days ago. Anderson ruled the original petitions invalid on the grounds that a notary public was not present when each of the signatures was affixed. He allowed only 11 signatures in the original group to stand.

El Paso County Judge Charles J. Simon, who was designated by the Republican assembly to run for the district judgship, immediately said the new filing is illegal because it occurred after the filing deadline. He said his claim is based upon a 1908 Colorado Supreme Court ruling.

Anderson also must decide whether Rudolph (Corky) Gonzales, one-time professional boxer, is eligible to seek the Democratic nomination for state representative from District 7 in Denver. Gonzales does not live in the district.

He also must decide whether Wayne N. Knox, a former state representative, can seek Democratic nomination for state representative from District 3 in Denver. Richard Farrow, who won high designation for the post, claims Knox has not lived in the district a year as required by law.

Denver Democratic Chairman Vincent J. Ryan filed the designations Friday afternoon. He made no reference to the dispute between Farrow and Knox, but noted the residence problem in certifying Gonzales.

Also designated in District 7 is Frank Anaya of Denver.

Ken Russell, elections administrator for the secretary of state, said no protests have been filed in three other cases where candidates petitioned for places on the primary ballot.

The three are Henry John Olshaw of Rye, who filed for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Third District against State Rep. Frank E. Evans; State Rep. William F. Stevens of Gypsum, who is seeking Republican nomination for membership on the State Board of Education from the Fourth District; and Ernest P. Marranzino, who is seeking a Democratic nomination from Denver for the state House of Representatives.

Ban-the-Bomb Talks End Up In Word War

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — A ban-the-bomb conference here has exploded into a war of words, with Soviet and Red Chinese factions grappling for control of the world peace movement.

The two Communist giants called rival news conferences Friday and accused each other of torpedoing the 10th International Ban-The-Bomb Conference.

The Soviet bloc delegation, representatives from 28 other countries and three other front organizations, bolted from the meeting Friday after the Chinese froze the Russians out of a share in the leadership.

Some African and Asian delegations backed Soviet charges that the Chinese had packed the conference leadership.

Soviet delegation leader Georgy Zhukov, a top propagandist, said at a three-hour news conference that responsibility for the walkout was that of the Red Chinese, who turned it into "an arena for an unbridled slanderous campaign against the Soviet Union."

Chinese delegate Tan Ming-chao, in a separate lengthy meeting with the press, replied that Zhukov was guilty of "hypocrisy" and "double-faced tactics."

Dr. Homer A. Jack of New York City, an executive of the Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy (SANE), attended the Russian news conference and later told newsmen: "We are trying to get the anti-nuclear movement back to being a humanitarian one rather than ideological."

Britain Seeks Plan For New Laos Peace

MOSCOW (AP) — British Foreign Secretary Richard A. Butler announced today Britain has appealed to Poland, Canada and India to try to arrange peace talks between the three warring factions in Laos.

Butler announced Britain's go-it-alone move at a news conference review of his talks with Soviet leaders in Moscow this week.

The British step followed Soviet rejection Friday of London proposals aimed at clearing the way for an international conference on Laos.

India, Poland and Canada are members of the International Control Commission on Laos.

Butler said the had just sent out the invitations to the three countries to try to arrange a meeting, somewhere in Europe, of the three Laotian factions — the rightists, neutralists and leftists.

He said he had not received any replies, but added, "I'm pretty sure Poland will agree."

Federal Tax Tips

By ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

Your social security account deserves the same careful attention you give to your bank account, your savings bonds, or any other matter important to your future. It is to be pointed out that the earnings credited to the account of an emplye or by social security determines self-employed person covered by social security determines the amount of any benefits to be paid to him, to his dependents, or to his survivors. The higher the wages credited, the higher the benefits.

As a matter of fact, although a minimum number of credits are required in all cases, it is the amount of wages or self-employment income credited that determines how much in social security benefits a person will get. An employe can use his W-2 form as one means of checking the wages reported for him. In addition to total wages earned and taxes for withholding purposes, the W-2 should show wages for the year subject to social security and the amount of FICA taxes deducted. The wages subject to social security taxes are the basis of your social security credits for the year. The Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA) tax finances the social security benefit program.

Anyone can get a statement of his social security credits by writing national headquarters in Baltimore. If you change jobs frequently it is especially important that you check at least every three years.

A postcard request form can be obtained from the local social security district office at 15 S. Weber St. Since your record is confidential, no one else can check your record for you; you must do this yourself. Why not drop in to their offices soon and have this check made; also anyone having questions about social security benefits may also have them answered at their office. The telephone number is 633-8793.

Also while at their office ask for a copy of Leaflet 21, entitled "Social Security and Your Household Employe." It explains coverage of household help (cleaning woman, maid, baby-sitter et al) those who work in or about in the private home of you the employer.

stopped. The Soviet Union later returned to the council.

The United States, the next year, pushed through a "uniting for peace" resolution which enabled the General Assembly to act in cases of breaches of the peace when the Security Council did not do so.

It was under this provision that the Congo and Middle East operations were set up and the Soviet Union has refused to acknowledge their legality. The World Court in The Hague has ruled they are legitimate.

A U.S. delegation source said Saturday that the U.S. view is unchanged — the Soviet Union must pay up or lose its vote.

Denver Resident Seriously Hurt In Accident

Rufus A. Baxter, 30, of Denver was injured in a two-car accident early Saturday morning and a Penrose Hospital spokesman described his condition Saturday night as "serious."

According to State Patrolman Ken Shiflet, Baxter's car and another car driven by Fred T. Gibson, 47, La Jara, dragging a semi-trailer, were both going south on U.S. Highway 85-87.

Baxter passed a truck and was going back into the right-hand lane when he ran into the left rear of the trailer, skidded off the right side for 120 feet, hit a tree and continued down a ravine where his car came to rest.

Shiflet said he suffered head lacerations and internal injuries. Gibson complained of a whip-lash injury and was treated at the scene and released.

The Baxter vehicle was a total loss and damage to Gibson's trailer was $200.

Another driver, Thomas M. Hathaway escaped serious injury early Saturday when his car was air-borne for 67 feet and came to rest on its top, the state patrol also reported.

Hathaway, 17, Route 2 was going east on U.S. Highway 24 when he ran off the road, hit a bridge rail, went into the air, landed on a creek bottom and then rolled from end to end for 32 feet.

He received deep head lacerations. An official at St. Francis Hospital Saturday night said he was "satisfactory."

examination" by his physician on Monday. That examination will determine whether Jack must remain in his apartment or can spend an hour every evening at his Broadway restaurant.

Jack said he regretted particularly having to cancel an appearance at the Eagles' convention in Denver, Colo., on Aug. 4, and at a dinner of the "footprinters" organizations at Colorado Springs, Colo., on Aug. 9.

At the Colorado Springs affair, Jack was to have been presented with a trophy for the all-time outstanding Colorado athlete. He was born at Manassa, Colo., June 24, 1895.

H. Lawrence Reibscheid, an official of the Footprinters, said Saturday night that the awards banquet will be held Sunday as planned.

He said that the banquet will be attended by what he termed "a very prominent person in the athletic world" who will receive an award the organization had planned to present to Dempsey, who is a former world heavyweight boxing champion.

Moon Photos Cost Set at $260,000,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said today the total cost of the Ranger program to study the moon photographically will be $260 million.

A NASA spokesman said the best estimate of the cost of the successful Ranger 7 mission is about $28 million. Ranger 7 landed on the moon Friday after transmitting a steady stream of pictures.

Two more shots are scheduled in the Ranger series.

Man Loses Blue Coat Containing $500 Bond

W.L. Baxter, Star Route, Wray reported to the police Friday that he had lost a blue coat containing a $500 government bond.

Vandals Enter House While Owner Is Away

William Lee Rheads, 201 N. 24th St., reported to police Saturday that when he returned Friday evening he found food scattered all over the house and cosmetics, some small model cars and jewelry scattered around the bedrooms.

He said the house had been left unlocked and that the front door was standing open. The television was on, also the radio. Nothing appeared to be missing and it was probably the work of children.

'Sea of Clouds' Reported Safe for Landings on Moon

the nature of the terrain seen in the pictures indicated the "Sea of Clouds" was made up of hardened lava.

The United States has designed space vehicles for the Apollo program that could land astronauts on a hard lava surface.

Another scientist, Dr. Eugene Shoemaker of the U.S. Geological Survey at Flagstaff, Ariz., revealed a "significant mystery" turned up in the Ranger's historic first closeup pictures of the moon.

During the transmission, he said, the pictures first showed the moon's surface to be rugged but then as the cameras got close to the impact point "the terrain suddenly seemed to clear up."

"We don't know yet what this means," Dr. Shoemaker said.

fused to supply Red China with a sample nuclear bomb, despite an earlier agreement to do so.

Red China has been working hard in this field on its own, according to best available information reaching the West.

Communist diplomats say the Chinese stole some Soviet atomic secrets while Chinese scientists were still being trained in Russia.

Serious economic crises in Red China in the past two years and the stoppage of Soviet help have retarded Peking's nuclear program.

Prestige considerations were believed to be a powerful factor in Red China's nuclear strategy.

Possession of the atom bomb, or of any sort of nuclear device was expected to be exploited by Peking to boost Red China's influence in Asia and Africa. It also would strengthen Peking's hand in the mounting conflict with Moscow.

Exotic Greek Beauty Is New Miss Universe

Hall crowd of 6,800 watched the 15 finalists parade in evening dresses and bathing suits past the judges and up and down red cloth-covered ramps reaching out into the audience.

For Miss Tsopei, the march before a national television audience led to the triumph of a lifetime and a dream-world reign as queen of international beauties.

Probably, for some others, it led to professional contracts as models or actresses.

Miss Tsopei accepted the Miss Universe crown from the retiring queen, Ieda Maria Vargas of Brazil. She also received a $7,500 cash award, a $10,000 personal appearance contract and a rich wardrobe.

The Grecian lovely has the imposing measurements of 36-22-36, in spite of the fact that she eats potatoes three times a day. She explained that "you don't get fat on Greek potatoes." She is a model by occupation.

Jeanne Venables, California entry in the MISS USA contest, decided earlier this week, was voted "Miss Amity" by other girls in the Miss Universe pageant. Her award was for friendship, personal popularity and international understanding.

At the start of Saturday night's competition, winding up two weeks of preparation and rehearsal, entries from the United States and four South American nations — Bolivia, Brazil, Paraguay and Venezuela—were eliminated.

This left 10 girls. Those losing out in the final judging were Maria Amelia Ramirez of Argentina, Sirpa Wallenius of Finland, Edith Noel of France, Emanuela Stramana of Italy and Jorunn Nystedt of Norway.

"I am happy. Very happy," Miss Greece said, wiping tears from her eyes. "I didn't believe anything so wonderful could happen to me."

Around her neck was a religious medal. Freda Nicholas, a friend, said the new queen prayed every night to win, "and last night I prayed with her," she added.

Miss Sweden reached over to kiss the new queen and said, "She was my choice too."

Miss England wrung her hands and said, "I'm jumping with joy. I'll never sleep tonight. It's marvelous, marvelous."

Earlier in the day, Brenda had said, "I'm surprised I'm a semifinalist. There are so many lovely girls."

Miss China has for good luck a penny given her by a stranger from San Francisco. "He picked it up off the sidewalk in Chinatown. He said it would bring me good luck. I guess it has. I'm a lucky girl," she said.

"I couldn't be happier," said Miss Israel, soon to be the world's most beautiful soldier. She plans to enter the Israeli army in October for 18 months of compulsory service.

Reeves, Famous Country Singer, Lost With Plane

By JOE SWEAT

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The big names of country music discarded their fancy clothes and took to the wooded hills south of Nashville Saturday in search of singer Jim Reeves, missing aboard a plane feared to have crashed.

With Reeves, 39, on the light plane, last reported about 5:30 p.m. Friday when a thunderstorm hit the area, was his road manager and piano player, Dean Manuel, 30.

They were returning from a business trip to Batesville, Ark., when the craft disappeared from the radar screen at the Nashville Airport.

Many artists who headquarter in Nashville live in the Brentwood area, where the search centered. As the word spread, they donned their old clothes and joined hundreds of others in the hunt.

Marty Robbins, a star of the Grand Ole Opry, said he was washing his hair when the rain began. In jest, he ran outside to rinse his hair, and heard what sounded like a crash.

"Somebody's been killed out there," he told his wife.

Numerous other residents reported hearing a low-flying plane.

Guitarist Chet Atkins and singers Eddie Arnold, Stonewall Jackson, Ernest Tubb and others famous in the country music field, along with the lesser-known sidemen, joined the search. Some hunted throughout the night.

As they checked out a rash of reports, they talked of accidents which have plagued the wide-ranging country artists in the past year and a half.

Singers Patsy Cline, Hawkshaw Hawkins and Cowboy Copas and Miss Cline's manager, Randy Hughes, died when their plane crashed near Camden, Tenn., March 5, 1963. Two days later, Jack Anglin of the singing team, "Johnny and Jack," was killed in an automobile wreck. Later in the year, former Opry singer Texas Ruby died in a house trailer fire.

Reeves attended the University of Texas and was signed as a pitcher by the St. Louis Cardinals for their Houston club. An arm injury in training camp ended his baseball career, and he turned to music.

He sang on the "Louisiana Hayride" radio show from Shreveport, La., and later joined Nashville's Grand Ole Opry. Among his better known recordings are "Four walls," "He'll Have to Go," and "Mexican Joe."

He recently was star of a movie, "Kimberly Jim," filmed in South Africa and just released in this country.

Riess, a salesman and the father of three, was reported in fair condition at Syosset Hospital.

Patrolman Robert Williams found the arm and rushed it to the hospital where it was packed in ice until the operation.

Later surveyors are to send small vehicles roving out to a radius of two miles from the mother ship to help determine whether wheels, tracks or something else is best for roaming the surface.

LBJ Asks Bobby To Manage His 1964 Campaign

By JOSEPH E. MOHBAT

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has asked Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy to manage his presidential campaign, informed sources said today.

They said the offer was made Wednesday at the same time Johnson told Kennedy he was eliminating him from consideration as a vice presidential candidate.

The offer reportedly is under consideration.

"I don't want to get into that," Kennedy said Friday when asked about reports of the offer before he left for Hyannis Port, Mass., for the weekend. Kennedy aides refused to be drawn into a discussion.

Johnson reportedly summoned the 38-year-old attorney general to the White House around noon Wednesday and told him he was not being considered for the second spot on the Democratic ticket.

Then the President suggested that Kennedy consider taking the job of campaign manager — the task he handled for his brother, the late President John F. Kennedy, in 1960.

Later, presidential adviser McGeorge Bundy, a carryover from the Kennedy administration, called the attorney general. He wondered if Kennedy shouldn't voluntarily withdraw from vice presidential consideration — perhaps by "leaking" such a decision to a newspaper columnist.

Kennedy declined, pointing out that as attorney general he shouldn't be and wasn't running for the vice presidency and that to announce a "withdrawal" would seem ridiculous.

Thursday, at a news conference, Johnson gave his description of an ideal vice presidential candidate. He should be acceptable everywhere, Johnson said.

Kennedy is unpopular in the South.

Then, that evening, Johnson announced he had excluded all members of the Cabinet, including Kennedy, and those who meet regularly with it.

Kennedy is believed to wield considerable influence over Democratic machinery in a number of key states and it is this knowledge, several sources suggest, that led Johnson to ask Kennedy's services as campaign manager.

As for Kennedy, according to the most reliable reports:

1. He is puzzled, but not bitter, over the way Johnson handled the matter. He is likely to campaign for Johnson as he promised last January. Whether he will manage that campaign remains to be seen.

2. He has told political supporters across the nation for weeks that he would not fight for the nomination he believed was Johnson's to bestow. He never planned nor will he attempt a convention stampede because he thinks it would hurt the party and his future.

3. He will remain attorney general at least through the election and possibly, if Johnson is elected, through the January inauguration.

4. He remains deeply interested in foreign affairs — especially in South and Central America and Africa — and could be persuaded to accept a post bearing on these areas in a new Johnson administration.

5. He will attend the Democratic convention in Atlantic City as a member of the Massachusetts delegation.

New Cancer Agent Found In Cigarettes

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Cancer-producing agents called "nitrosamines" have been found in a brand of South African cigarettes, the National Cancer Association reported Saturday.

Dr. L. S. Robertson, chairman of the National Cancer Association, said the discovery was made by Dr. W. J. Serfontein, senior lecturer in the University of Pretoria's organic chemistry department, and one of his students, P. Hurter.

Their discovery opens the way to the possible removal of certain cancer-producing agents from cigarette smoke, the announcement said.

"This is the first time that it has been established beyond doubt that various nitrosamines occur in cigarette smoke," Robertson's announcement said.

100 Commission Studies Counties

DENVER (AP) — An arm of Gov. John A. Love's 100-member commission studying problems of local government discussed Friday the possibility of home rule for rural counties.

The group — the statewide committee — reached no conclusion. It will discuss the situation further at a meeting late in August.

Two types of home rule were considered — the administrative type under which counties could change their government by changing charters, and the functional type which would allow counties to perform services usually performed by cities such as offering police protection and supplying water.

The committee also hopes to decide whether a county home rule plan should be incorporated into the urbn county constitutional amendment under consideration for the 1966 election or whether it should be placed before the voters separately in 1968.

Springs Visitors to Fair Urged to See Post Office

Visitors to the New York Fair from Colorado Springs have an unusual opportunity to see a post office of the future, Postmaster R. H. Wardwell said today.

A carefully-chosen group of 80 employees from New York area post offices man the facility which handles all the Fair's mail and some from the Flushing, New York area. The outside mail is used to keep the highly mechanized devices operating at "full tilt."

Postcards to friends and relatives back home are a big item. About 30,000 are mailed from the Fair each day. One third of these are addressed to persons overseas.

Foreign visitors have no trouble understanding U. S. postal operations. The facility has staff members who speak 20 languages.

Postmaster Wardwell notes that residents of Colorado Springs who attend the fair and wish to try out their foreign language ability can either talk with the multi-lingual window clerks or listen to a tape-recorded presentation in the post office lobby which features individual earphones for those who speak Japanese, French, German, Italian and Spanish.

New equipment on hand includes an experimental Pitney-Bowes Centrifeed which spins envelopes rapidly around a wheel-like mechanism and places them upright on their longest side. They then move into a machine which cancels stamps and postmarks envelopes at a rate of 500 letters a minute.

Letters are sorted to go all over the world by machines which position the mail so that the addresses are visible to an operator who sits in front of a keyboard similar to that on a typewriter. By pressing the correct buttons, 100 letters a minuet are automatically directed to bins for 50 different destinations.

A larger device, the Burroughs sorter, drops letters and cards into 131 different bins at a rate of 58 letters per minute for each of the 12 operators.

The work area is surrounded by a ramp and gallery for visitors which is open from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., seven days a week. Tape recorded vignettes explain the action on the work floor and describe the operations of each machine.

Outside the building, mail boxes from 21 countries serve as background for the red, white and blue box of the United States.

Wardwell suggests that Colorado Springs area vistors to the fair express their comments on the new box by dropping a note addressed to the "Superintendent, World's Fair Post Office" through the modernistic mail slot. Postage is not necessary. If they wish, visitors may discuss their reactions with clerks at the post office building.

David Rockefeller Attends Culture Talks in Russia

Rockefeller is taking part in the fourth annual conference of American cultural and industrial leaders and Russian intellectuals in this former tsarist capital.

Rockefeller told newsmen in Moscow Friday he and Khrushchev "covered the waterfront" at a Kremlin meeting proposed by the premier.

Rockefeller, whose brother Nelson is governor of New York and whose brother Winthrop is running for governor of Arkansas, said he and Khrushchev discussed the U.S. political scene "at length."

He said Sen. Barry Goldwater, no Khrushchev favorite, was mentioned in the talks, but declined to give details.

He said Khrushchev also talked of the $10 billion Moscow still owes for U.S. wartime lend lease aid.

Khrushchev said Moscow would consider settling the debt if America gave "adequate long term credit arrangements," Rockefeller said.

The millionaire and the Communist said they agreed more Soviet-American trade would be fine.

Rockefeller said he plans to return to the United States Wednesday.

SCSC Rules For Admission Are Revealed

Students applying for admission to Southern Colorado State College, Pueblo, this fall must have their applications in to the Admissions Office on or before Aug. 15, according to Jack Parsons, director of admissions.

The deadline applies to new students, transfers and students seeking readmission after having been out of college one or more quarters. The students must have their applications for admission in to the Admissions Office at SSC by Aug. 15, if they expect to enroll for fall quarter.

Parsons said that although registration will not be held until Sept. 10 and 11, the Aug. 15 deadline is necessary in order to evaluate and process new applications and to prepare registration material.

Also, new students in college for the first time and transfer students who have not completed two quarters or one semester of acceptable college work must take the American College Test (ACT) Aug. 15. Students wishing to take the tests on that date must notify the Office of Admissions of their intent by Aug. 12.

An enrollment of 2600 students is expected this fall quarter as compared to 1957 for the 1963 fall term. As of July 27, 30 per cent more applications have been approved than on the same date last year. Accepted applications of in-state students residing out of Pueblo County have increased 54 per cent over last year.

Because of limited class room space on the present campus, classes will be scheduled daily from 7 a.m. through 5 p.m., when some evening classes begin.

If construction schedues are fulfilled on the new campus, some classes will be scheduled there in the fall of 1965.

City to Sell Surplus Vehicles on Aug. 18

The city will sell 16 surplus vehicles at 2 p.m. Aug. 18, Wayne Jackson, city purchasing officer said. Two of the vehicles are used passenger cars and the remainder various sized trucks.

All of the vehicles will be sold on an "as is" basis for cash. Buyers will have five days to remove the vehicles. The City will reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

Poland Marks Date Of Anti-Nazi Revolt

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Polish citizens laid wreaths today marking the 20th anniversary of Warsaw's anti-Nazi uprising which a Communist official called a mad political maneuver doomed to defeat.

"The London (Polish exile) government and reactionary forces were responsible for creating the situation which enabled the (Nazi) occupants to destroy Warsaw, but it was one of their last acts." Zenon Kliszko, a member of the ruling Communist Politburo, declared.

The uprising took the lives of 10,000 Poles and this city, since rebuilt, was reduced to rubble.

They will be for the run from Manitou Springs to the summit of Pikes Peak only.

The event is set for the day before the Pikes Peak marathon, a race to the summit of Pikes Peak and back for men only.

Mary Guinn, of Colorado Springs, who has been winner for the past two years, will be in the race. She holds the women's record of 4 hours, 5 minutes.

Mrs. Kathleen Heckt, of Denver, winner in 1960 and Mrs. Katherine Heard, Colorado Springs, winner in 1959, will be in the race.

There are three new entries this year. They are: Mrs. Shirley Carsell, of Manitou Springs, and Mrs. Ethel Fagin and Miss Wilma Polley, both of Colorado Springs.

Under a process worked on for the past five years, about eight egg yolks would be taken from eggs, hard-boiled and then inserted again into the separately hard-boiled white.

"You can have an egg six feet long if you like." one official said.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Effic'ent Jaw Joint Handles Myriad of Jobs

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE
D.D.S.

Only lower jaws move. Just try moving your upper jaw! Place your index fingers in front of your ears and move your jaw up and down, forwards and backwards, and side to side.

What you feel are the condyles of the lower jaw gliding in the glenoid fossa of the temporal bone which is connected to the upper jaw. These two bones and muscles and ligaments make up the temporomandibular or TM joint.

This joint is a marvel of efficiency. Besides these multiple movements, it enables the teeth to exert forces up to approximately 250 pounds per square inch: enough to pull automobiles, yet adaptable to biting hangnails.

It is almost continuously swallowing, chewing, talking, grinding, yawning, laughing and crying. Swallowing accounts for motion every 60 seconds.

These are normal involuntary movements that are part of our very existence. They take place without any awareness on our part. We don't consider how we plan to attack a ham and cheese sandwich; we just take a bite.

We became conscious of these motions only when they are accompanied by some difficulty: snapping or clicking of the jaw; pain and tenderness over the joint; neuralgic symptoms such as pains which radiate into the ear and up the side of the head; burning sensations on the palate or side of the tongue.

Sometimes both joints, right and left, do not work normally and you can't open your mouth very wide. But more often only one side is affected. When you open, your jaw will deviate to one side: toward the affected side. Try opening in front of a mirror to see how your jaw works.

Besides normal wear and tear due to work load and age, the TM joint is subjected to many insults. Arthritis, which produces changes in the joint, infection and accident all take their toll. But it is generally accepted that one important cause of malfunction, probably the major cause, is poor occlusion (upper and lower jaws not coming together properly).

Teeth or lack of them, or damaging habits such as bruxism (grinding of teeth) have much to do with the health of the temporo-mandibular joint.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

30-DAY FORECAST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A hot, dry August appears to be in store for much of the nation, according to the weather bureau's 30-day outlook.

The forecast predicts temperatures above seasonal norms from the Rocky Mountains to the Appalachians, especially in the Central Plains and Great Lakes areas. Rainfall is expected to be below normal from the Central Plains to the Northeast.

Above-normal rainfall is expected for the Gulf and South Atlantic Coasts, however, as well as the Southern Plateau and the Northwest. Cooler temperatures than normal are predicted along the Gulf and South Atlantic Coasts and in the Northwest.

PROMOTED — Maurice L. O'Dell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle O'Dell, 805 E. Platte Ave., has received his promotion to major at Alconbury Air Force Base in England where he will be stationed for three years. His wife, Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hawkins of 2128 N. 7th St., and their four children have left to join Maj. O'Dell after visiting family and friends here for five weeks.

Texan Applies For Instruction At Prep School

Spec. 4 Ricardo Davila, B Company, 5th Medican Battalion, has applied for special instruction at the U.S. Military Academy Preparatory School, Ft. Belvoir, Va. This nine-month course is designed to help condates prepare for the West Point entrance examinations and life in the Corps of Cadets.

A special quota exists at West Point for enlisted members of the Regular and Reserve components of the Army and Air Force. This fact is relatively unknown.

The quota comprises a total of 180 cadetships alloted, 90 for regulars and 90 for reserves.

Maj. Thomas M. Doyle, 5th Medical Battalion commander at Ft. Carson, stated, "We in the battalion are proud of Davila's achievements. This is an opportunity for advancement that is often overlooked by enlisted personnel.

"There is a continuing need for commissioned officers of the Regular Army and the Army Reserve, and the interests and benefits as an officer are many. Individuals who are interested should consult their unit personnel officer."

CC President To Address Academic Deans

Dr. Lloyd E. Wroner, president of Colorado College in Colorado Springs, will deliver the keynote address before the 18th annual National Conference of Academic Deans in Stillwater, Okla., Monday, Aug. 3.

"Some Aspects of the Role of the Academic Dean" will be the title of President Worner's talk, to be delivered at 9 a.m. in the Student Center on the campus of Oklahoma State University.

More than 150 academic deans from colleges and universities throughout the United States will spend three days at Stillwater examining "The Roie of the Academic Dean."

This marks the third time in seven years President Worner has been asked to address the group. He previously spoke before the conference in 1957.

'Home Stretch' Rugged Course For New Cadets

The "home stretch" is a rugged one for members of the Air Force Academy Class of 1968.

Less than three weeks remain in the summer training program for Acadmey basic cadets, but each of them will be jam-packed with activity.

Two of the eight basic cadet squadrons begin 2½ days of survival training in the Fern Creek area Monday while other units are trekking to Lowry AFB for orientation flights in T-33 and T-29 trainers.

The flights and survival training continue through Aug. 14.

Tuesday, Aug. 18, the general public gets a chance to see for themselves the results of the rugged eight weeks of physical conditioning.

Basic cadet Field Day matches the eight training squadrons in a series of events raging from a distance run to push ball. Points earned during the competition play an important part in selection of the winner of the 81st Fighter Wing Trophy awarded each year to the top basic cadet squadron.

The trophy will be presented Tuesday, Aug. 18.

Basic cadets officially become members of the Cadet Wing Wednesday, Aug. 19, at the Acceptance Day Parade.

Both parades, held on the parade ground east of academic area, are open to the public.

Basic Cadets Plan Parades

The first event, scheduled for 4:40 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 18, is the 81st Fighter Wing Trophy Parade. During the parade the basic cadet squadron rated tops in overall performance will be recognized.

A guidon streamer will be presented at the parade and the squadron designation engraved on the large trophy displayed permanently in Arnold Hall, the cadet social center.

Wednesday, Aug. 19, the nearly one thousand basic cadets officially become Fourth Classmen and members of the Cadet Wing. The parade also marks completion of the eight - week summer training program.

Both events are open to the public.

AFA Hopefuls Learn Basic At Lackland

The 118 — three flights of Reservists — are undergoing basic training prior to attending the Academy Preparatory School. After completing basic, the youths still must complete the rugged nine months training at the Prep School before winning an Academy appointment.

Academy officials visited the group this week to brief the Reservists on what lies ahead of them.

While at Lackland the cadet candidates take about the same schedule as other basic trainees but with increased emphasis on drill and ceremonies, physical conditioning, and Air Force practical duties.

Training winds up Friday.

While at Lackland, cadet candidates will take part in four parades, complete 36 hours of drill, and 30 hours of physical conditioning. They also learned how to walk off demerits just as Academy cadets do.

Of the 118, 46 are military dependents with fathers ranging in rank from technical sergeant to major general.

Six Persons Perish In Arizona Flood

CHINLE, Ariz. (AP) — A bureau of Indian Affairs official said late Friday night that six bodies have been recovered following a flash flood near this northeastern Arizona community.

Paul Krause, sub-agency superintendent, said two other persons may be missing. The flood swept down normally dry Nazlini Wash Thursday night.

Krause said four of those known dead are from one family. They were identified by him as Delphine Bitsui, 15, Lydia Bitsui, 14, Jerry Bitsui, 12, and Zelma Bitsui, 16 or 17. He said the children's father, Peter, is missing. Krause said the body of William Bizardi, 21, also had been found.

The body of a man not positively identified, also was found. Krause said there were reports that another girl also was missing.

NORAD First Involves Cable Laid Under Ice

North American Air Defense Command, the first two-nation, multi-service military command ever to operate within the continental limits of the U.S., is itself involved in firsts continuously.

NORAD officials tell the story of a first involving underwater communications capabilities and the complex NORAD communications system.

The first submarine cable ever laid in the ice-choked waters above the Arctic Circle turns out to be a part of the communications net for North American Air Defense Command's Ballistic Missile Early Warning System.

Submarine telephone cables were chosen as one of the methods of bridging far northern waters because they provide communications channels not affected by the stringent weather factors of the Arctic and the sometimes - weird atmospheric disturbances in the region.

The under-sea cables are teamed with land lines and radio to provide a jam - proof, reliable means of transmitting electronic information along segments of the communications links which connect each of the three BMEWS radar stations in Alaska, Greenland and the United Kingdom with NORAD's combat operations center here.

Gen. Schriever Speaker at CSU Commencement

FORT COLLINS — General B. A. Schriever of the U.S. Air Force will speak on "Prospects for the Future" at Colorado State University's annual summer commencement, CSU President William E. Morgan announced today. The graduating ceremony will be held Friday at 10 a.m. on the CSU Oval.

Gen Schriever is commander of the newly created and expanded Air Force Systems Command (AFSC). This organization at Washington, D.C., is responsible for the research, development, procurement and production required to put a complete aerospace system in operational use.

Gen. Schriever, 53, was promoted to the four-star rank July 1, 1961, three months after taking command of AFSC.

Born in Bremen, Germany, he came to the United States in 1917. He was an ROTC graduate from Texas A&M University in 1931 and accepted a commission in the Air Force.

Gen. Schriever left the Air Force to become a pilot for Northwest Air Lines, re-entering the service in 1938. He received an M.S. degree from Stanford University in 1942.

In June of 1942 he joined the 19th Bomb Group in the Southwest Pacific and participated in seven campaigns in that theater. He later joined the Scientific Liason Section, was graduated from the National War College in 1949 and then served with the Air Force's, Development Planning Operation.

In 1954 he was made assistant to the commander of the Air Research and Development Command (ARDC) and one month later became commander of the Air Force Western Development Division. At the latter post he directed the nation's highest priority project — development of the intercontinental ballistic missile. Five years later he assumed command of ARDC, serving at that post until accepting his present position.

The general is married and has a son and two daughters. He holds honorary doctor degrees from Creighton University, Rider College, Adelphi College, Rollins College, University of Michigan, Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute and Loyola University of Los Angeles.

Federal Power Allocations Are Defended

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) — Power companies have been told that the Interior Department acted in the best interests of those concerned when it made new power allocations.

Kenneth Holum, assistant secretary of the interior, made the remarks before more than 250 representatives of power companies. They met to consider problems arising from recent power allocations made by the Bureau of Reclamation.

The regional gathering of representatives of REA groups, public power districts and municipal systems in the eastern division of the Missouri Basin was sponsored by the Midwest Electric Consumers Association of Denver.

The eastern division of the basin is composed of North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Montana, Wyoming, Minnesota, Iowa and Colorado.

Holum told the power users that there might still be some inequities in the power allocations, but these will be given further consideration.

The users were granted extension of a time deadline to respond to the department's inquiry on power needs. The date was extended to Oct. 15 on request of representatives attending the meeting.

The meeting was held to offer preference customers a chance to object to provisions concerning the allocations which may be considered inequitable or unjust.

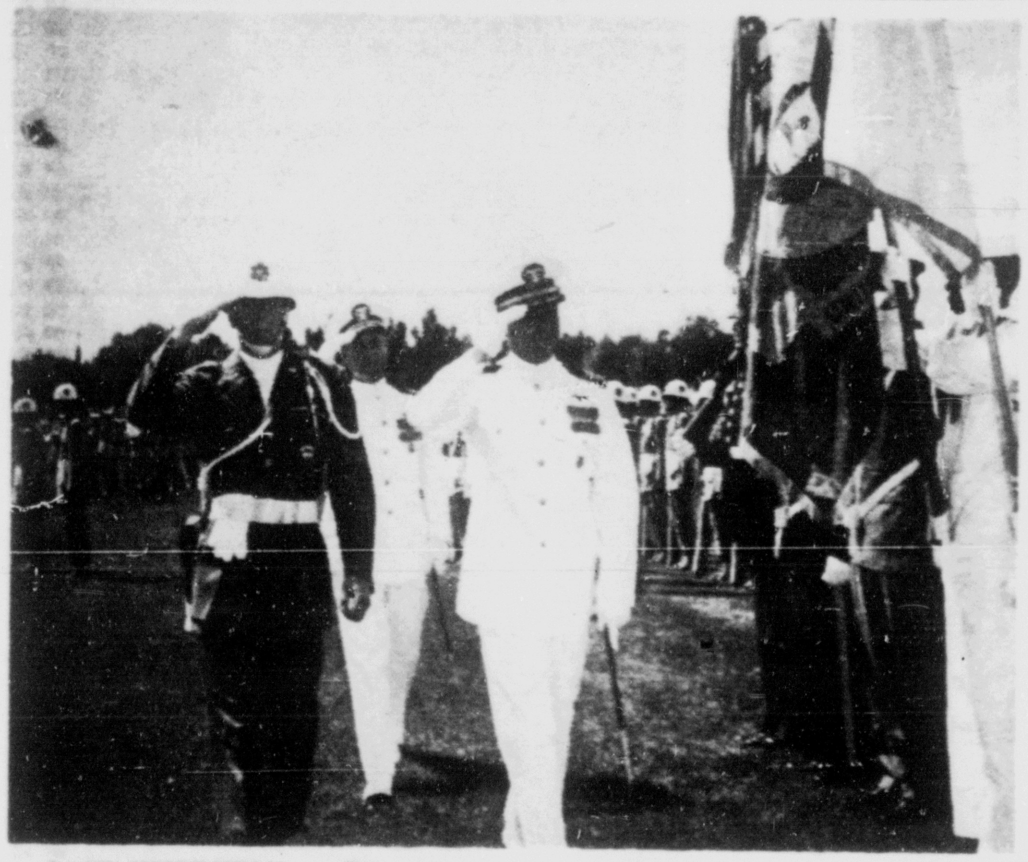
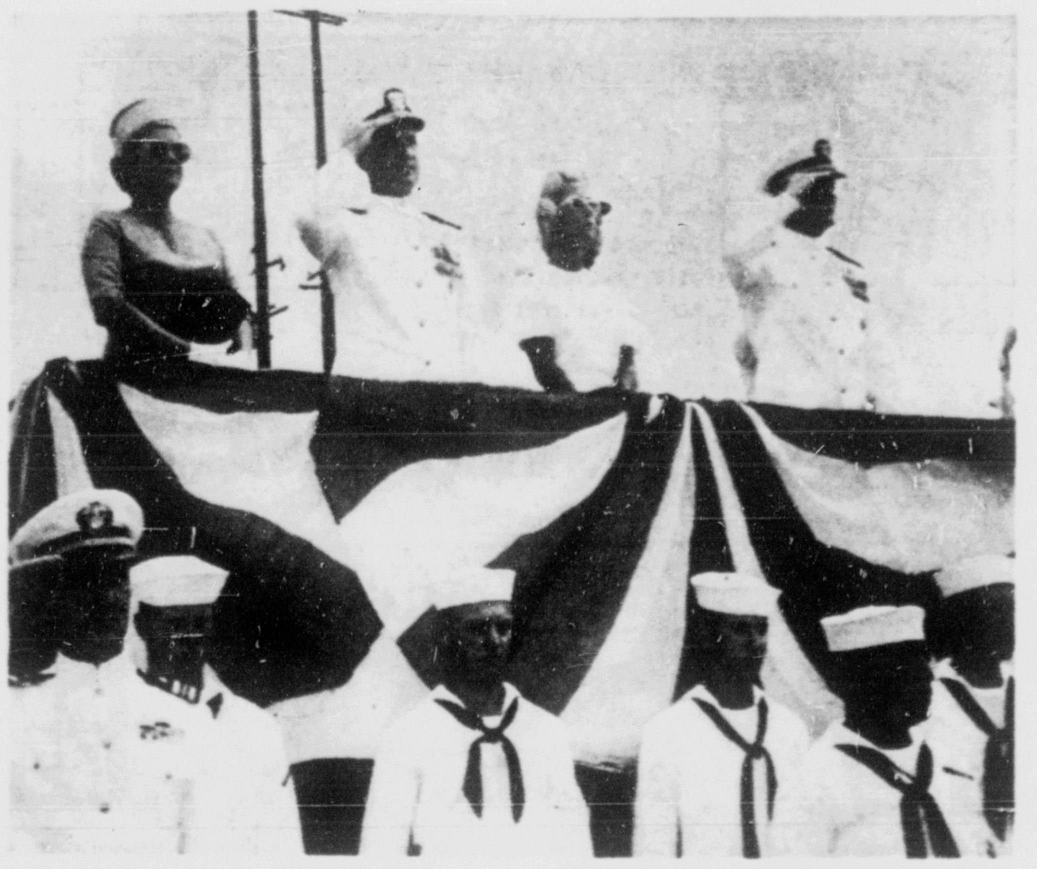
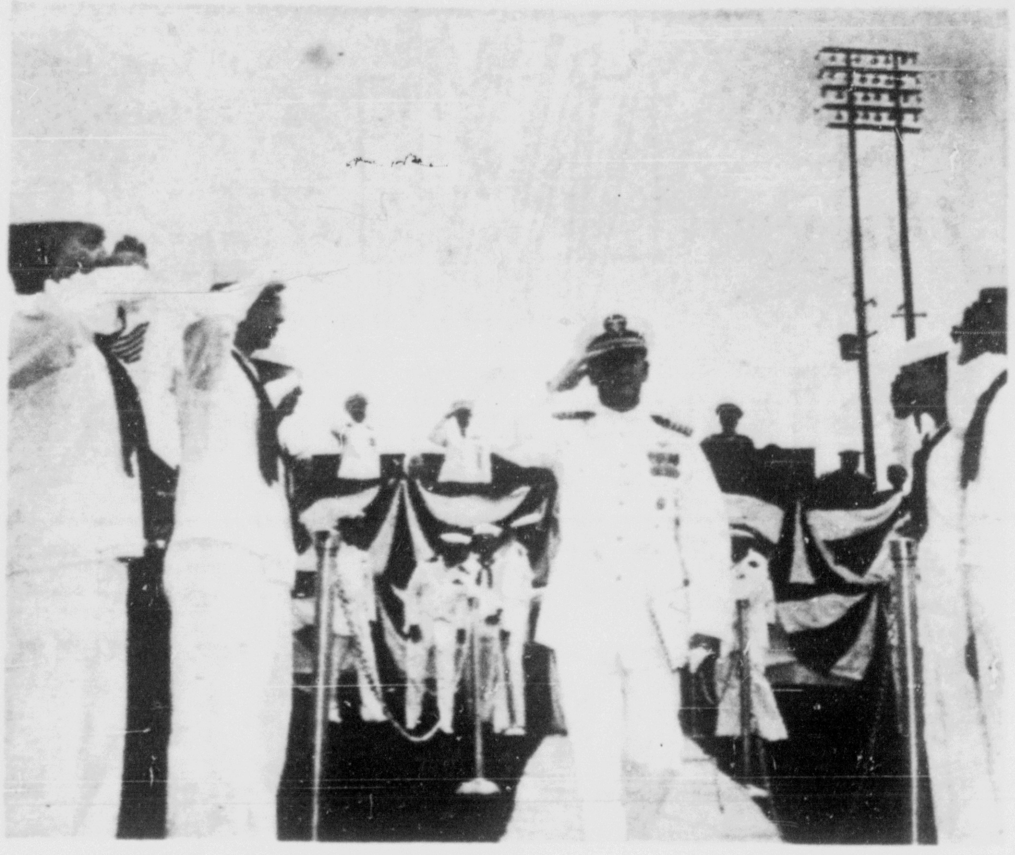
COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE TELEGRAPH
COLORADO SPRINGS—SUNDAY, AUGUST 2, 1964 SECTION B



LAST INSPECTION — Prior to retirement and change of command ceremonies in Memorial Park Saturday, Capt. Virgil A. Erwin made a final inspection of the more than 300 military men gathered to honor him. Following Capt. Erwin is Capt. John L. McMahon, who assumed command of the Naval forces attached to NORAD here.



PASS IN REVIEW—As the estimated 300 members of the military passed in review Saturday, the wives of the officers changing command stood with their husbands to receive the salutes of the enlisted men. From left are Mrs. John L. McMahon, Capt. McMahon, Mrs. Virgil A. Erwin and Capt. Erwin who relinquished his command to Capt. McMahon.



THE LONG WALK—When Capt. Virgil A. Erwin was "piped off" the speakers stand at change of command ceremonies, Saturday, it marked the last time the 24-year veteran would receive the salute of an honor guard as he did here. In relinquishing his command, Capt. Erwin was placed on the Navy retirement list.

Swiss Railroad Experts Visit Springs Area

"The mountains of Colorado and Switzerland cannot be compared, they are so different," said Peter Berger, of Baden, Switzerland, who, with Willis Kaeslin, also of Switzerland, was in Colorado Springs Saturday to be taken to Cripple Creek over the old Short Line railroad route by Ted McKee, of Denver.

"Our mountains are steeper, yours more massive," Berger said. "Your canons are magnificent. We haven't the extensive canons you have in America. It is all very interesting. Our railroads are all electric now. We have more tunnels than you have. Of course we haven't seen all of your mountains yet."

The two Switzerland men are in America while on a 10-weeks vacation to study the railroads of this country. McKee, who is showing them about, is a member of the Rocky Mountain Railroad Club and a former resident of Colorado Springs.

Friday the three rode through the Royal Gorge in the cab of a Denver and Rio Grande train. They have also been through the Moffat Tunnel.

The two men from Switzerland are connected with railraods there. They came west from New York and will be seeing railroads in Canada and Alaska and in Mexico also before returning to Europe.

State to Open Bids on Three Road Projects

The Colorado Department of Highways will open bids August 6 on three construction projects which cover 11.6 miles of roadbuilding in three counties at an estimated total cost of $733,000.

The largest project, estimated to cost a total of $301,487, provides for grading, structures and asphaltic paving of 3.9 miles of Colo. 64 west of Meeker in Rio Blanco county. Completion will be required within four months.

The second project has an estimated total cost of $275,971. It consists of grading, structures and asphaltic surfacing on 2.3 miles of US 160, beginning at the end of current construction on the east side of La Veta Pass and extending easterly in Huerfano county. This work will provide for three 12-foot traffic lanes, one for the use of slow moving traffic on ascending grades. Five months are allowed for the completion of this project.

The third project, estimated to cost a total of $155,840, provides for stabilization and asphaltic paving of 5.4 miles of Colo. 9, beginning at Hartsel and extending south in Park county. Completion will be required within three months.

All of Navy's Pomp and Ceremony Goes Into Capt. Erwin's Retirement

By RAY HERST
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

With all the pomp and circumstance of decades of Naval tradition, Capt. Virgil A. Erwin Saturday handed over his command to Capt. John L. McMahon.

"I stand relieved," Capt. Erwin said, ending 24 years of Naval service. He relinquished the command of the Naval forces of the Continental Air Defense Command here — a post he held since December — to Capt. McMahon.

The change of command and retirement ceremonies took place in Memorial Park in 85-plus degree heat. Two servicemen collapsed in the heat and three others fell out of ranks to keep from fainting.

The ceremonies began promptly at 10 a.m. The largest contingent of Naval personnel to assemble in Colorado Springs since world War II was on hand to honor Capt. Erwin who was one of the most popular Naval officers ever to be assigned here. Capt. Erwin spent three years attached to NORAD and CONAD at Ent.

He and Capt. McMahon arrived together. In full uniform dress, the bright sun dancing on their ceremonial swords and sparkling white uniforms, the pair reviewed the more than 300 troops from all branches of the service assembled for the occasion.

As they walked onto the field, the NORAD band struck up "Anchors Away."

As the two officers made their way to the reviewing stand, they paused before entering the double column of seamen who acted as an honor guard.

Capt. Erwin started through the honor guard and one of the seamen staggered and nearly fell. He regained his balance and attempted to stand at attention in full salute, but he staggered backwards again. He tried a third time and was helped from the field. He collapsed in the shade.

The guard re-formed and Capt. McMahon made his way between them accepting the salute.

On the reviewing stand was enough brass to cast a 20-foot high statue of Gen. Palmer. More than 20 stars representing Army, Navy and Air Force general and flag officers, including Gen. John K. Gerhart, commanding officer of NORAD, were on hand for the ceremonies.

A letter of appreciation from Gen. Gerhart to Capt. Erwin was read. Afterwards, Gerhart presented the letter to the retiring officer.

Then Erwin read his orders relieving him of the command and placing him on the retirement list. His voice filled with emotion, Capt. Erwin then thanked all those who had helped him through his long career as a naval pilot and officer.

"I want to thank my shipmates, the officers I work with and my colleagues in the other branches of the service. They lifted me, pushed me, guided me up what we call the ladder of success," Capt. Erwin said, his voice breaking.

"And I want to say that without the understanding of my loving wife, this career could not have been possible. From the depths of my heart, I thank you." He then returned to his seat while Capt. McMahon read the orders assigning him to the command post.

"Capt. Erwin, I relieve you, sir," McMahon said, turning and saluting.

"I stand relieved," Erwin said accepting the salute and a handshake.

In brief remarks, Capt. McMahon, who holds the Distinguished Flying Cross and two air medals wished Erwin "smooth sailing and a calm sea." He said he was "proud to become a part of the NORAD family."

As the troops passed in review, a group of six jet aircraft flew over the reviewing stand followed by the Captain's C-54. Three more Air Force aircraft flew over the field in honor of the retiring officer.

Among those attending the ceremonies was Adm. Andrew Ahroon, (Ret.) who a little more than a year ago stood in Erwin's place in retirement and change of command ceremonies at Peterson Field.

More than 300 persons were on hand to witness the impressive ceremonies and nearly all attended a reception in Capt. Erwin's honor at the Skyline Club at Ent.

Pianst Tells of Rich Munich Musical Life

Munich, to many Americans who visit the German city each year, means festivals, beer with sausages, and brass bands. To many others the 800-year-old city signifies music and art and hard work, and the exhilaration that can come from rich combination of all three. According to Clifton Matthews, concert pianist scheduled to play at the Fine Arts Center next Thursday evening, the varied cultural life of this Bavarian city is matched by few cities in the world.

Matthews became a Munchner for five years when, after being graduated from Juilliard School of Music, he received a Fulbright grant to study in Europe. He prolonged his stay for the purpose of teaching and playing concerts throughout western Europe.

Musicians and artists who come to Munich to study probably make a more lasting impression on the populace than do the visitors who jam the city during the beery Octoberfest.

"Europeans are impressed by the great number of outstanding artists and musicians who come there from the United States," reports Matthews. "I think the serious U. S. students help very much to correct the bad impression given by thoughtless tourists and also by poor movies on which Europeans base their ideas of the average American."

Asked to describe the musical activities in Munich, Matthews explained, "One must always make a choice. There is never just one fine program to lure concert-goers; each night there are several event — ensembles, soloists, operas, oratorios. For example, I recall that in about a week's time we heard Rudolph Serkin playing Beethoven sonatas; then the brilliant Italian string group, the Virtuosi di Roma, playing Vivaldi concertos; and Hans Hotter singing Schubert's Winterreise; and then the great guitarist Eegovia. That was not an exceptional week but a typical one in Munich."

Matthews and his wife, the former Anna Julia Hoyt, who is both singer and violinist, indicated that although Europe has excellent schools of music, they do not surpass those in the United States. However, the musical education of the average European would probably surprise most Americans. Children in Germany, report the Matthewses, sing operatic arias and refrains from classical music as American children sing popular and folk songs. "Even four- and five-year-olds know 'The Magic Flute' from beginning to end."

Although the Matthewses lived in Munich, they also spent much time in Italy, where Matthews won the Casella Piano Prize, and toured throughout Europe. Everywhere critics praised him for poetic sensitivity as well as faultless technique. Returning to the United States one year ago, Matthews is currently on the faculty of Skidmore College, New York.

The concert at the Fine Arts Center will begin at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, August 6th. Tickets are available at the Colorado Springs Music Store at $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students, or by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to Concert, 2633 Templeton Gap Rd. They will also be available at the box office.

Fulbright Warns Against Cuts In Foreign Aid

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Foreign Relations Committee told the Senate today that President Johnson's foreign aid request "cannot be further reduced without undermining the aid program as an instrument of foreign policy."

Thus the Arkansas Democrat appealed for passage of the foreign aid authorization as it cleared his committee — $3.4 billion or $50 million below the President's request.

In a speech prepared for the opening of debate which may last through next week, Fulbright declared foreign aid is inseparable from U.S. political and defense policies and from "the over-all defense and social and economic development" of non-Communist nations around the globe.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., a leading foe of the program, has already offered amendments to cut the bill by more than $500 million and to revamp foreign aid policies. Voting on these and other amendments will start sometime next week.

Fulbright said it is "an impenetrable mystery to me why it is that fears of extravagance and waste are so overwhelmingly focused on foreign aid rather than on other, more costly programs."

He recalled that the Senate spent three weeks last year in "rancorous debate" over a $3.6 billion foreign aid program and "immediately thereafter approved a space budget of over $5 billion with only perfunctory debate."

"This, of course, is to say nothing of our annual military budgets of over $50 billion which have recently been approved with no more than a few judicious queries," he added.

Fulbright said the aid program is "a normal instrument of policy like diplomacy, military power or intelligence."

Raising Marijuana Lands Him in Jail

EAST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—A back yard garden will bring 80-year-old Enrico Scimo into Circuit Court Monday to face charges of violating the state drug act.

He was arrested Friday and charged with raising marijuana plants from seeds he obtained in November in his native Sicily.

Police said they burned 51 of the plants.

Urban Planning For Wartime Protection Cited

BOULDER — By planning urban growth to hold the city core at its present size and creating satellite population centers around the outskirts, potential kill in nuclear attack could be cut in half, according to a Watertown, N. Y., architect and planner.

Darrel D. Ripperteau told an Institute in Protective Construction at the University of Colorado that such a plan would have only negligible planning cost, as compared to suggested alternatives such as reducing core size and controlling sprawl or planning for a uniform population distribution over the metropolitan area.

"Any population redistribution involves not only economic costs, but brings into play social and political considerations, as well as a whole host of practical problems," Rippeteau said.

"By controlling the core area to maintain its present population density and planning the satellite centers, we have an approximation of what is presently happening anyway," he said.

Rippeteau said that studies he has conducted in the Syracuse, N.Y., area show that a five-megaton bomb would kill 80 per cent of the population in the urban area as it is presently constituted. The distribution system of planning would reduce the kill to 50 per cent by 1980.

"However, the basic decision rests not only with local planning officials but at higher policy levels. Measures by the state and federal governments would probably be necessary to override the conflicts of numerous local governmental units in any metropolitan center," Rippeteau concluded.

The Institute for Protective Construction is sponsored by the CU departments of architecture, architectural engineering and civil engineering. It is designed to inform college teachers in these fields of techniques of protective construction, so they may institute courses on protective construction in their home colleges and universities.

Tourists Must 'Sell' Colorado, AAA Believes

You have to be a tourist yourself to do an effective job of selling Colorado to visiting tourists, the Rocky Mountain AAA Club contended today in a statement on how to boost the state's travel industry.

"If each of this year's several million visitors to Colorado could be talked into staying just one more day, the state's economy would get a major lift," said Clarence Werthan, auto club president.

The way to keep visitors in the state longer, he explained, is to tell them about attractions they shouldn't miss — a rodeo, chuckwagon dinner, scenic spot, campground, dude ranch or something else peculiar to Colorado.

Everyone who contacts tourists should talk up the state, said the AAA club officials. Service station operators, waitresses, motel clerks and anyone else who meets out-of-state visitors should volunteer suggestions on things those visitors might like to see.

But, said Werthan, Coloradans must first see what there is to see and do what there is to do before they can be helpful in directing tourists.

It's most important, of course, to be aware of local attractions, said Werthan, but Coloradans should also know what neighboring communities have to offer fisitors. Reciprocal promotion of this kind benefits all parts of the state, said Werthan, and helps not only businesses that cater directly to travelers but everyone in the state.

Local Motorists Win Saftey Commendations

Three local motorists last week won commendations from the State Highway Patrol for safe driving and will compete for the July award of the Denver Post and Denver U. S. National Bank. They are:

Norville B. Marr, 2610 E. Dale St.; George W. Scherner, 127 E. Meade Ave., and Kenneth Frazee, 205 Rose Dr., Security.

Ancient Palestine's port of Ascalon shipped onions to Mediterranean markets and gave us the word "scallion," says the National Gegraphic.

New Type Target Detecting Radar Under Development

Gen. John K. Gerhart, NORAD commander inchief, has repeatedly stated that the highest priority item on the NORAD requirement calendar is a defense weapon which could counter the ballistic missile threat.

Recent word from the Department of Defense indicates that a major missile tracking breakthrough may be expected if present tests in this area are successful.

An advanced radar built utilizing a new concept in the art of target detecting and tracking is now under test operation at White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico.

Described as a Multifunction Array Radar, or MAR, it is part of the Nike X anti-missile system being developed by the U.S. Army.

If Nike X passes all its tests and is deployed into the North American aerospace defense system, it will give NORAD its first active defense against intercontinental ballistic missiles.

At the same time, it will solve a major aerospace missile defense problem which has been plaguing the NORAD staff here for many months.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said the new radar is the foundation of the Nike X systems, "on which we are spending about $500 million in this fiscal year."

He said it is the element "that makes it possible to greatly expand the capacity of the system, which was one of the major limitations and greatest defects of the Nike Zeus system.

"Whether the Nike X, in relation to its cost, should be deployed, I can't say at the present time. To deploy the Nike X system around some 20-odd cities containing about 30 per cent of the population of this country would cost initially between $15 billion and $17 billion, I would estimate, and thereafter something on the order of $1 billion or $2 billion a year to operate."

The ultimate performance of Nike X against ICBMs and submarine-launched missiles will depend largely on the capabilities of MAR.

This radar lumps together the function of three radars in one concrete and steel package. It has an acre and a half of floor space below ground and three giant domes — which look as if they were made with a giant ice-cream dipper — thrust up into the air.

Sides of two of the domes are pierced with the radar's eyes. These resemble the face of a round waffle iron studded with rod - shaped projections. The projections are called radiating elements, from which high-powered electrical energy will be beamed into space.

Scientists have found that when energy is pumped from two or more of the radiating elements simultaneously, strange things began to happen to the radar beam.

The beam can be made to flick from side to side at nearly the speed of light and to stop and focus on a tiny point in space.

Since it is a test version, the MAR at White Sands will have only one receiver eye and one transmitter eye. Later versions, including one scheduled for Kwajalein Island in the Pacific, may look different, but the principle should remain the same.

Called a phased array radar, MAR works on the theory that radar beams can be bent electronically by playing one against another. It takes an extremely fast computer to play the beams.

With the MAR, only the operators' chairs will have to be oiled. Nothing moves. Because the radar has no moving antenna, there is no friction to overcome or inertia to keep it from instantly changing direction and speed.

MAR will be capable of operating so fast it will appear to look in every direction.

The MAR will replace three radars used in the Nike Zeus anti-missile system: the acquisition radar for detecting missile warheads at long ranges; the target tracking radar for pinpointing the location of the warheads; and the discrimination radar for sorting live warheads from decoys.

Pueblo Firm Bids Low On Highway Project

The Pioneer Const. Co., Pueblo, with an offer of $389,073, was the lowest of eight bidders July 21 on a Colorado Department of Highways project to improve 4.8 miles of US 50 west of Las Animas in Bent county.

The work will consist of grading, structures and asphaltic paving and will include widening the highway.

Completion will be required within four months. Project Engineer R. W. Eiffert will supervise the project.

Telluride Designated National Historic Site

Telluride, county seat of San Miguel county and one of the state's most colorful early-day mining towns, has been designated as a national historic site by the Department of Interior.

The first claims in the area were staked in 1876. The camp originally was called Columbia, but this was changed to Telluride in 1881, a name derived from the type of silver-bearing ore in the district.

The railroad arrived in 1890 to herald the town's greatest boom. Population exceeded 5,000 during the peak years. By 1909, more than $60 million in ore had been dug from the towering hills.

COLORADO SPRINGS
GAZETTE-TELEGRAPH
Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Negro Rioters

It was made abundantly clear during the Republican convention in San Francisco that the organized minions of CORE and the NAACP were opposed to Barry Goldwater and his nomination. But what they don't seem to realize is that all the carefully engineered rioting and destruction which is cropping up in many large cities will aid in the election of the very man they don't want.

In the fact of this complete disregard for law and order, rioting minorities are impressing upon the people of the nation that a major change in government is something they are going to want. President Johnson has shown himself incapable of dealing with the problem. Indeed, in recent utterances, Mr. Johnson has placed himself on record as favoring some of the policies which Goldwater says he favors. Thus, for the first time in many years we find the man in power becoming a "me-too" man when his opposition is confronted. Curious.

But the situation is serious. And it illustrates dramatically that government does not provide order as most people think it does. We have pointed this out repeatedly. Orderly people are what makes for order. Disorderly people can always create disorder and government cannot prevent it without the institution of major and forceful armed repression.

It may well be that these repeated incursions against domestic tranquility will cause this nation to veer from the policy of a welfare state to the policy of a police state. And such a shifting could be about as far from the wishes of the people who are stirring up the trouble, as anything that could be imagined.

We have had occasion to point out that freedom is not license to invade the property of others. And in the events in New York city and state, as well as elsewhere, it is being dramatically revealed that if people will not control themselves, force will be invoked to put them down. Our support of freedom is support for the idea of self-control and self-regulation.

We do not favor the legal repression of anyone who is doing nothing wrong and who intends to do nothing wrong. But it is obvious that if people will not control themselves, others will join hands to control those who refuse to control themselves. And this type of behavior induces the action characteristic of any police state.

When persons gather together for the purpose of destroying life and property, other people willl gather together for the purpose of preventing such destruction. A major conflict will ensue. And the entire area of hatred and friction is occasioned in the first instance by legal restraints which were imposed long ago and which should have been removed. Instead, new legal restraints, such as those embodied in the Civil Rights Act, are imposed. This makes the situation worse, not better, with the results we are experiencing.

There can be no question but what much of the lawlessness and the damage to property is inspired by communist oratory and propaganda. The communist apparatus for years has carried on an attack on property and those who own property.

Here is a quote from U.S. News and World Report as of August 3, 1964:

"Negroes with military training are being actively recruited for organized guerrilla warfare against the white people of this city (New York).

"At the same time, there is increasing evidence that Communist Party officials and paid Communist agitators are deeply involved in inciting Negroes to riot.

"On the recruting side, it was reported in The New York Times that on Sunday, July 19 — from a church rostrum in Harlem — a Negro leader named Jesse Gray declared: 'There is only one thing that can correct the situation, and that's guerrilla warfare.' He called for '100 skilled black revolutionaries who are ready to die' to serve as platoon captains, each in command of 100 men . . .

"Two known Communist Party leaders were photographed in the church audience.

"Mr. Gray was identifed as a man who had been a Communist organizer by a former Communist testifying before the House Committee on Un-American Activities in 1960. On February 3, 1960, Mr. Gray took the Fifth Amendment 16 times before that committee. He said he was not then a Communist, but refused to answer questions on past Communist connections."

Apparently the propaganda attack against property and property owners is now being augmented by communist-led guerrillas who have, in recent days, looted more than 600 stores, tossed dozens of "Molotov cocktails," beaten up innocent passers-by and otherwise managed to sow racial distrust and hatred. It's a sad commentary on the idea that people can be induced to love other people by bloodshed and violence.

Decisions

Character is not given to us. It is developed through great difficulties, which include not only vindication for our right decisions, but remorse and learning for our wrong ones.

Stick With the Winners

We wonder if the folks who live here in Colorado Springs really appreciate all that has been happening to our town. Ten years ago, Colorado Springs was a quiet, old-fashioned, little settlement, nestling against the base of Pikes Peak and offering a variety of natural wonders to tourists.

Today, Colorado Springs is a city, bursting its bounds, thrusting outwards and upwards into the cool, clear air of the Rocky Mountains.

Some characterize what we are experiencing as "growing pains." And some even comment snidely in favor of the "good old days." But the fact is that our citadel is experiencing something other than pain. And the "good old days" were never as good as the days that we are living now.

It is a real thrill to be a part of this expanding and exciting community. And the thing that really thrills and excites is the fact that we are now being recognized as one of the really ideal places in which to locate a small and select industry. Economically speaking, although still geared to an enormous amount of tax spending, our productive stance is infinitely improved over that of a decade ago. And this is being revealed by the increase in numbers of dwellings, the increase in telephone connections, the increase in general business activity, the increase in just about everything you can name. These are our years of increase.

And while some wish to cast aspersions, saying that "business is off" what it was a short time ago, the fact is that it is improving.

What some people find difficulty in realizing is that competition is the life blood of any community. And businesses which a few years ago seemed to be "safe" and truly on the "sunny side" of the ledger, are now competing with far more vigor than they ever had to before.

Some businessmen tend to resent this and want some kind of law passed to guarantee them a place in the sun. But the remarkable fact is that when no one has such a guarantee, all of us must work harder in order to make progress. And such added effort, although it demands the best from us, pays off in increased bargains and increased opportunities for the customers. However we care to look at it, all of us are customers.

There's a new tone of professionalism being evinced, too. A brief ten years ago there was often a distinct lack of interest noted in various businesses when one sought for a particular good or service. There were so few businesses in existence, comparatively, that a given firm might not have wanted to scratch too hard. There was a great deal of apathy and disinterest. But thanks to some forward looking people, of which this community has a full allotment, Colorado Springs is indicating that it intends to move upward and onward.

Not that everything is perfect. It isn't. There are unpleasant things that happen occasionally, and there are always a few people around who do not produce but who try to live at the expense of others. But this is a constant problem in any city and certainly not distinctly so in our town.

This is the kind of town where in a young man can put down his roots. That wasn't always so. It used to be that a young fellow of ambition might well dream of wider and more pleasant fields. But, no more. There are really only a very few places in the nation which rank as prime locations for the young man just starting out in business or a profession, and Colorado Springs today ranks here among the foremost.

There are bigger cities, of course. But the advantage of living in a relatively small city that is growing and has bright and forward moving-intentions, is much greater than living in a large city. For the ground floor is easier to find, and the heights are greater right here.

We are continually delighted beyond words to find the constant expression of a faith in our future by hard-headed, profit-seeking business firms. These are the men who put their funds on the line and improve our way of life by every dollar they invest. These are the men who add to our constructive, built-on-profit payrolls.

These are not the men who scheme in plush offices on how they can bring off strikes and create discord and inharmony. These are not the men who try to fence in the burgeoning energy we have by new laws and mountains of red tape. The men we look up to are the doers and the builders. Our future is geared to them and what they do.

Ice Mountain Valley

By RUFUS L. PORTER

In my many trips to the region of the Three Apostles I have written about on several occasions, I only recently learned that the center Apostle has another name. It is called Ice Mountain. This is an appropriate name, since the ice never leaves its slopes. Also, the beautiful valley that extends from the foot of the Apostles to the ghost town of Winfield, a distance of several miles, is called Ice Mountain Valley.

I received the above information from Mr. Ed Wallick, who reads my column and shares my enthusiasm for the valley and its surrounding peaks.

I will quote below a couple or three paragraphs from Wallick's letter:

"You might be interested to know that the outing committee of the Colorado Mountain Club also shares your interest in the Three Apostles. The club has scheduled the summer outing to the Ice Mountain Valley. I am enclosing a descriptive brochure which you may find interesting.

"I also enjoyed your description of Horse Thief Park. The Pikes Peak group of the Colorado Mountain Club generally schedules a summer, fall and winter trip there. The winter trip is perhaps the most enjoyable as some excellent snowshoeing and skiing can be had. Last winter I led a most enjoyable trip up through Horse Thief Park and over the hill out through Putney Gulch to the highway.

"I certainly hope that in describing these delightful spots and telling how to get to them that the public will not descend upon them with their beer cans and cigarette butts."

I hope so, too, Mr. Wallick. But it has been my experience that those who love the mountains enough to enjoy the arduous task of hoofing or snowshoeing into their most gorgeous areas, also love them enough to try to preserve their liveliness. Most of the beer cans and other debris are found at the farthest point to which the "seat of his pants" sightseer can drive. From that point on, little of man's rubbish will take your mind from the beautiful scenery. Of course, some hunters are careless, but usually the back country is pretty clean.

But this brings me to one gripe about the armed forces. I have hunted Blue Mountain, south of Lake George, many times, and brought some fine bucks out of there. But about ten years ago I went into that area after a large group of infantry (I suppose it was infantry) had spent some time encamped in the area.

The soldiers had made hundreds of lean-tos from boughs, brush, etc., which they went off and left. These things are a fire hazard. But they are not the source of my complaint. I climbed the mountain looking for a "big one" and the entire top of the hill for a distance of a mile or more was covered with cans of various kinds of army rations. I do not mean the empty cans only, but thousands of full ones. True, the soldiers had dug holes and dutifully buried all their trash, as well as the unopened rations (A-rations, B-rations and the infamous C-rations, and I don't know what else).

But the coyotes, the skunks, the porcupines, the foxes and other varmints had busied themselves by digging them all up again. I opened a can of the rations and they tasted all right. That is, they didn't appear to be spoiled, even though they must have been frozen and thawed several times, besides laying for months in the summer sun.

There must have been quite a group of men in that encampment, for I found evidences of their occupation on several other hills in the same area. But I have "got my meat" there several times since. The debris is gradually fading from the scene, but it will be another ten years before it will look its old natural self.

So much for the gripe. I will say that the group of service men who one time camped in Horse Thief Park did a much better job of cleaning up after themselves. They left little trace of their occupancy.

But I started to tell you about Ice Mountain Valley. The Colorado Mountain Club has planned their summer outing there from July 25 to August 9, this summer. How I envy them. Their brochure is most interesting, the activities they have planned are right up an old prospector's alley. Of course, I don't climb as good as I used to. I lay that all onto the five broken vertebrae I received in a mine accident 24 years ago. Otherwise, I don't think the 24 years would have made so much difference.

I am by no means through with the Winfield, Vicksburg, Three Apostles area yet. I've got may let it rest awhile, I've got so many other places to tell about.

Question Box

Question No. 557: "Is there any individual who more exalts himself than the person who is so absolutely sure that he knows how others should be educated and is willing to send his agents to initiate force if necessary to compel others to pay for his services?"

Answer: It is hard to think of anyone who exalts himself more than a man who is so absolutely sure that he knows how others should be educated and will not even answer questions about his beliefs for many times more than he is being paid, or for the sake of truth.

Certainly these people have exalted themselves to such an extent that they have become abased. As the great teacher said, "Whosoever shall exalt himself shall be abased; and he that humble himself shall be exalted."

When a man comes to the point where he is willing to initiate force to make others pay for the services he renders, even if those persons do not want to use them or pay for them, then that man certainly has exalted himself to a very high degree.

LOTS TO LOSE

To the Editor:

Why should we admit Soviet scientists to visit our nuclear centers, even on an exchange basis? We have nothing to gain, and lots to lose. We know our men going to their centers will not be spies, and we also know from past experience that all their visitors will be spies; they have to be, in order to be allowed to leave their country. That is the rule for all the Russian delegates to U.N. and the Russian embassy in Washington. We gain nothing by exchanges, and we lose every time, no one knows how much.

How silly can we be? We have committees negotiating about burning a lot of our aircraft if Russia will burn the same number of their aircraft. We may need our B-47's badly, and should keep them on hand for emergency. Why should we talk to Russians about our business, anyhow? They find out all about our defenses during these talks, even though nothing is done about it. These negotiations in Switzerland with Russians have never produced any benefit, and they are very expensive. All they do is pay a lot of men that call themselves diplomats to waste their time and our money. Bring them home.

Our Disarmament Committee is still talking in Geneva, and making proposals that Congress would not ratify even if they were accepted by Russia. That bargaining should be stopped. We know that Russia is increasing their power all the time. Why should we talk disarmament? Even if it could be done, it would be the worst thing for our country that could happen to it.

Think of our President negotiating with an enemy after discovering that the embassy in Moscow had been wired for years, so that they knew all our secrets before our ambassadors did. Weeks after selling wheat to them, they shot down our unarmed plane, and returned two corpses. What a friend to try to please and negotiate with. Kennedy did it and now Johnson is doing it. They are enemies, even if our presidents don't know. We should have no business with them. They owe us billions from World War 2 and now they owe for wheat which was supposed to be cash, but was not, and never will be paid for. They will claim we sent damaged, spoiled wheat, and deserve no pay (after the wheat is used up, leaving no proofs).

The case against Russia is an open book, and any president or congressman that favors them does so knowing that they have robbed this country from the first start of their present nation. They have not respected any treaty they have made with us, they have stolen all the secrets they could get their hands on. After World War 2 they contrived with the help of traitorous Americans to get a big stockpile of nuclear material sent over by planes by our army which gave them their start toward their present supremacy. By every method their spies in Canada, England and United States have broken all the rules of allies helping each other to win, and have helped themselves to everything they could get their hands on. We have helped them do it, by being too soft; even today their agents get the patent office's record, as fast as new patents are recorded. Tons of vile communist literature is distributed free in U.S.A. every day and no president has had the good judgment to stop it. Even they know it is all lies to subvert the young folks in this country. They have a policy of trying to ruin the young folks of any nation they expect to conquer. They begin with morals, then drink and opium, anything to debase their enemies so they will easily surrender. Russia and her satellites are the enemies of all freedom.

TAMMANY-STYLE

To the Editor:

President F. D. Roosevelt, who was thoroughly acquainted with the shady and shoddy methods employed by the benevolent society of Tammany in controlling the government of New York City, saw a wonderful opportunity shaping up in the Great Depression, and in 1933 and the years following initiated the same procedures in our national government. Some politicians saw what was going on, but couldn't stomach it, so, as loyal Americans, they withdrew from the advisory councils.

The Tammany method is simple. Just buy the votes of people by doing something special for them: blankets in cold weather; turkeys at Thanksgiving; doles of food for the hungry; jobs for the unemployed, with little or no work involved; squashing court actions; freedom from jail sentences; and so on in endless array. The "boss" thus becomes well known as a great benefactor, and the recipients of these values naturally see to it that he gets what he wants from the electorate.

The method can be carried on effectively without any concern of the boss as to the real welfare of the people. After all, to him each person represents a vote, and only a vote. Who cares about the loss of personal moral integrity, of initiative or of independent thought? Of course, the boss realizes that a thorough application of the method costs money, MUCH money, which must be gotten from the public purse. But, who counts the cost when, by this means, control of the government can be assured?

So it was done. Done, not for a month or a year, but for many years. And now, over thirty years later, the Tammany method still rules in national affairs and continues, not only with its power unabated, but so widely expanded that it touches every aspect of social life. Not only have individuals come under its sway, communities and even states have deserted their normal responsibilities and have become subservient to the centralized power in Washington.

The method has gained respectability under the guise of "liberal government," and the Democratic Party has greedily held on to the designation, "The Liberal Party." Of course, there has been in existence a conservative philosophy of government which, even though in the minority, and often labeled, "reactionary," has broken through in some local and state elections, but in general the Republican Party has been without an adequate answer to the "liberal" thought. Too often it has been justly accused of virtually saying, "ME TOO! We can do the same thing, but do it better!"

The Eisenhower administration came into power for eight years as a kind of semi-conservative movement, because of the popularity of a national hero, but frankly nothing happened then to upset the controls held by the Tammany method. Not until 1964 has the Republican Party, in response to popular demand, dared to brand itself as "conservative," and so become an outright opponent of the Tammany method, and really different from the Democratic Party. The question now arises, will those timid politicians who see hope of victory only in espousing the "liberal" concept unite wholeheartedly in the new emphasis?

And what is the hope of success? Viewing the history of New York City, we find that revolts against Tammany have come, sometimes very dramatically. The voters realized that taxes had become exorbitant, that civic debts were tremendous, that graft and other evils were widespread, and that they had paid too high a price for their benefits in loss of liberty and other values. So, too, a national revolt is now in the making. Even the millions of those who have been the recipients of doles and jobs are beginning to realize that there must be a better way. Citizens are more and more beginning to view the future with real dread as they see the steadily mounting national debt with its threat of national bankruptcy, and as they note the steady move toward socialistic controls under the label of "paternalistic government."

An astute politician, President L. B. Johnson, thought up a "war on poverty" in an election year and desperately fought for very expensive bills to be passed by Congress to this end before Election Day. Anyone with half an eye can see here the master stroke of a Tammany-like boss, and judge it accordingly.

Victims of Urban Renewal

By RUSSELL KIRK

The bulldozer method of social reform does not appeal to this columnist. Although genuine "urban renewal" is very badly needed throughout this country, much of what we have done with such federally subsidized projects is to destroy the housing and familiar resorts of poor people without making really adequate provision for their resettlement, and to replace picturesque — if shabby — streets with standardized monotony or a rubble-strewn desolation.

The California capital of Sacramento is one of our handsomer and more interesting cities; and in its urban-renewal projects, at least some attention is paid to the preservation of historic and architecturally interesting buildings. Down in the quarter near the railroad station, block upon block of old Sacramento has been demolished. But one side of Second Street is to be preserved and restored, praise be: it deserves survival.

Most of the Second Street restoration is already accomplished, and will endure in the shadow of a freeway. Among other interesting buildings is The Firehouse, the fanciest restaurant in town, established in old Firehouse No. 3, a fine venerable building. Across the street, alas, the Fratt Building (1870), with its lidded windows and wrought-iron galleries — a great impressive block, until recently a cheap hotel — seems to be doomed. But it is heartening to find anything spared in this ruthless time of demolition.

One Sacramento establishment which I shall be sorry to see vanish — for it is condemned to destruction — is the Espanol Hotel, with its cheerful old bar and restaurant. (Here a Basque chef cooks Italian food for Spanish customers.) What will become of its splendid long wooden bar, with the busts of famous men up near the ceiling? What, indeed, will become of its friendly Italian proprietor?

Some people have greater worries than the proprietor of the Espanol. These are the "old soldiers," the hard cases and derelicts who still crowd the surviving tough bars along Second and Third streets. My friend at the Espanol estimates that in fine weather, a thousand derelict men may be seen basking on the sidewalks in this colorful slum; on cold days, most of them vanish magically. Where will they live, when their flophouses are but brick-dust? About 30 per cent of these fellows are willing to work, says the proprietor of the Espanol Hotel — if anyone will hire them. The rest are beyond redemption; still, they need roofs over their heads.

Sacramento will not get rid of the "old soldiers" by effacing their familiar streets. Already some of them are moving toward the dome of the capitol—creating a new slum, perhaps, just as the bums expelled from the Bowery are pressing into Greenwich Village.

A wild, ragged, hairy man, with two great mysterious sacks over his shoulders, reeled into the bar of the Espanol as I talked there; he wanted alms. Good-naturedly enough, the proprietor eased him back out the door. Well, even failure deserves its place in the sun. The slack, the shiftless, the drunken have their right to life, too; and mean streets will survive to the end of time. To employ an odious comparison, one does not really extirpate rats by burning down barns.

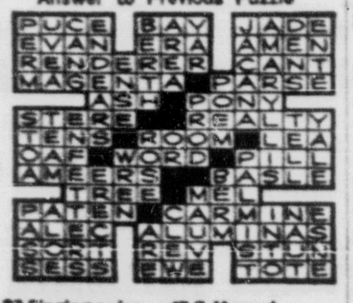
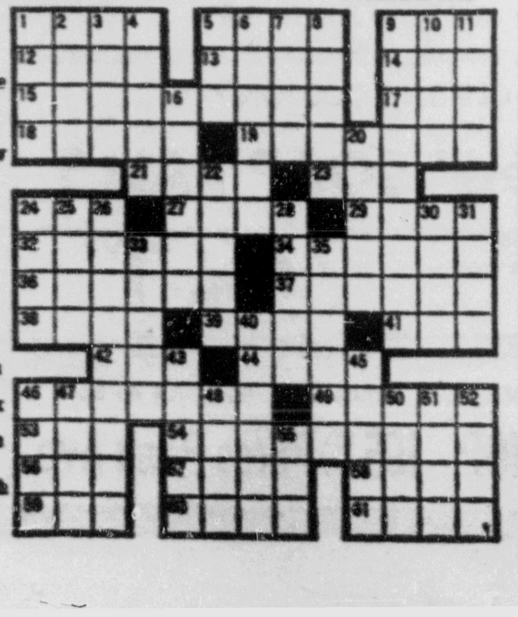
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Monopoly Is Own Undoing

By OSCAR COOLEY
Professor of Economics
Ohio Northern University

"The laws of economics are fine," some people say, "if they would only work." They fail to work, it is said, because people won't let them work.

But a natural law "works" regardless of what people do. Consider the laws of gravitation and of thermodynamics. Man is powerless to set aside these laws. He can only learn how they work and adapt his life to them as best he can.

The National Farmers Organization has been trying to prove there is no glut of soybeans and therefore no reason for the price to be low. NFO officials went to soybean processors and tried to buy soybean meal. They claim they were unable to buy much and that this proves there is no over-supply.

In a letter published in The Lima News, Clyde Clayton, chairman of the Van Wert (Ohio) NFO, alleged the price is low, not because of large supply, but because "the soybean processors are organized and operate as one unit." In these words, he suggests the firms that buy soybeans and process them into meal and oil have come together and agreed upon a single, low price they will offer the suppliers of beans, thus holding the price down. He hints they then proclaim the price of beans is low because of a glut, when in reality there is no glut.

Mr. Clayton evidently believes in the laws of supply and demand. According to those laws, the price of soybeans drops when — and only when — demand decreases, supply increases, or both happen simultaneously. The price of beans now being low in the NFO view, what is the reason?

The NFO claims the supply has not increased. Therefore, the demand must have decreased. But where is the decrease of demand?

Presumably the users of soybean products have not reduced their use. They are buying normally. Therefore, it must be that the soybean processors are not buying beans. And how could they all stop buying beans unless they had put their heads together and agreed to do so?

The fault with this conclusion is it conflicts with another law or principle in economics, namely, that men are in business for profit and they try to do the thing that will bring them the most profit. Thus, monopoly tends to be self-correcting. (Exception: when monopoly is conferred by government.)

For example, if by conniving to hold down the price they pay for soybeans the processors widen their profit margin, they thereby increase the attractiveness of the soybean processing business. The large profit per unit of sale powerfully tempts each processing firm to sell more units. To do this it must buy more beans. To accomplish this it must offer the suppliers of beans a higher price, and when it does, the monopoly crumbles.

Further, the large profits engendered by the monopoly act like a magnet to pull other firms into the soybean processing business — firms now making other things, and new firms not yet organized. To get beans to process, these new firms have to offer a higher price than the monopoly firms are paying, and so again the monopolists are stymied.

In fact, monopolies do not come into being for the very reason that entrepreneurs know these things are bound to happen and that therefore it does not pay to monopolize. In every industry, the existing firms have enough competition right now, heaven knows, without inviting any more!

The secret of success in business is to make a fair profit, but not enough to attract so much competition that no firm in the industry makes any profit.

A monopoly is impossible so long as entrepreneurs are free to expand output of their present lines and to enter new lines.

To hold, like the NFO, that farmers are oppressed because farm producers "are organized and operate as one unit," is to deny that businessmen seek to make maximum profit, or to hint they are blind to profit opportunities, or to suggest they are too short-sighted to see that monopoly profits will generate competitive losses. If any of these things were true of a businessman, he would not be in business long.

Bribe Attempt Fails to Pay Off in Russia

MOSCOW (UPI) — Citizen Goldberg, who went to Communist officials for advice, is an honest man, but he also is poorer as a result.

According to the newspaper Soviet Moldavia, Goldberg's troubles began when he went to buy a bathroom fixture at the Kishinev factory for sanitation parts. Kogan the foreman wanted a bribe for the fixture.

Kogan: "Give. You don't give, you don't get. One hundred and fifty rubles (nominally worth $165)."

Goldberg was stunned by the demand. "What?" he said.

Kogan: "One hundred and fifty rubles."

"Citizen Goldberg tried to shame Kogan and talk to him but it did no good," Soviet Moldavia reported. "Goldberg got tired of this bribe - taker and went to the prosecutor's office."

The prosecutor mapped a plan. He told Goldberg to pay off, and Goldberg followed the advice.

Kogan was arrested and sent to jail for four years. Then Goldberg went to the judge and asked him to return his 150 rubles, which had been used as evidence.

The newspaper said the judge only smiled.

"Money given as a bribe goes to the state," he said.

Goldberg: "But look, I gave it to help the police and the prosecutor."

Judge: "We know that. We thank you for your help. But we can't return the money."

Goldberg, the newspaper said shrugged and went back to the factory to get the bathroom fixture his money had paid for.

"But here another blow awaited him," the newspaper reported. "The director of the factory, learning Goldberg was the one who turned in Kogan to the police, got angry at him and tore up Goldberg's order."

"Now citizen Goldberg ponders," the newspaper said. "On one hand, exposing bribe-takers is honorable and necessary. But on the other hand, it costs a lot."

Boy, Wounded in Heart, Recovers at Hospital

DENVER (UPI)— A 13-year-old boy wounded in the heart by an exploding gun barrel July 20 was released Friday from Colorado General Hospital.

Hospital officials said the youth, Frederick M. Callaway, 13, of Las Vegas, N.M., had recovered from surgery which removed metal fragments from his heart.

Two fragments, each less than three-eighths of an inch in length, were removed from the boy's heart muscle. Doctors said it was the first time such an operation had been performed here.

The youth was injured when a friend brought a pistol to his home. When it accidentally discharged, the barrel exploded, sending metal fragments through the boy's right shoulder.

The youth's father, J. Roger Callaway, is admissions counselor at New Mexico Highlands University. The boy was operated on July 22, two days after the accident.

JEALOUS FRIENDS

LONDON (UPI) — A juvenile court here was told Friday two 10-year-old girls were so jealous of a school friend's nice clothes they crept into her home and cut up all her dresses with scissors.

The girls remained in custody for two weeks for an investigation.

Denver Officer Faces Charge in Killing Negro

DENVER (UPI)—Dist. Atty Bert M. Keating said Friday he would, as a mere formality, file a murder charge against a Denver police officer who fatally shot a young Negro Thursday after a high speed chase through downtown Denver.

"I haven't seen the police report yet," said Keating, "so I don't know if this will be merely a suit to clear the officer's name or a full-blown trial."

The victim of the shooting was ex-convict Ronald J. Braddy, 20, of Denver, who police said was driving a stolen car at the time.

Patrolman Jack H. Wurtzebach, 38, said he fired the fatal shot which struck Braddy in the back after the man crashed a stolen vehicle into a parked car and truck.

Braddy left the car and continued to run even after three warning shots had been fired, Wurtzebach said. The fourth shot struck Braddy.

Police had feared the slaying might trigger demonstrations by Negroes, but all was reported quiet.

Raymond Stuart, chairman of the Denver chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), urged peace and order. He advised Denverites to "avoid the mistakes of other cities" — a reference to recent race riots in Harlem and Rochester, N.Y.

Police said Braddy had been identified as one of two men who beat and robbed 50-year-old Robert A. Havers of Denver last Tuesday.

Deputy Mayor William McNichols Jr. urged citizens to remain calm, while a thorough investigation was being made of the shooting. "I don't think anybody—white or black—would want any kind of special treatment for a person like this Braddy," he said.

Labor Cost Increase Reported by Hospitals

CHICAGO (AP) — A five-fold increase in labor costs since 1946 have been a prime factor in the rising costs of hospital care, the American Hospital Association said today.

The association's annual survey of the nation's hospitals showed their labor costs up 545 per cent since the end of World War II.

The average cost to the hospital for each day a patient spends there rose by 314 per cent, from $9.39 in 1946 to $38.91 in 1963, the report said.

The increased labor costs were traced to these factors:

High salaries for hospital personnel.

More highly paid specialists and technicians.

New York GOP Will Campaign

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Republican State Chairman Fred A. Young said Friday the state committee would conduct "a full-scale campaign" for presidential nominee Barry Goldwater "just as we have in past presidential campaigns."

Young made the comment in announcing a meeting of Republican county chairmen and vice chairmen in Albany Aug. 6 to establish the 1964 Republican State Campaign Committee.

Young was handpicked for the committee post by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller who opposed Goldwater for the nomination, but, after the Arizona senator was nominated, pledged his support in the campaign.

Later, Rockefeller sharply criticized Goldwater's acceptance speech.

New York's two U.S. senators, Jacob K. Javits and Kenneth B. Keating, both Republicans, have said they could not support Goldwater's candidacy "at this time."

Motorists Should Watch Out for Highway Crews

Motorists are urged to keep watch for highway maintenance crews who may be repairing shoulders, cutting weeds or repainting center lines or edgts of roadways. These men are working to further the comfort and safety of those who use the highways.

Their job will be made less dangerous, and travel will be made more pleasant, if a little extra care and caution are exercised when driving past them.

LaLeche League Women Learn Lost Feeding 'Art'

(Editor's Note: This is one in a series of articles about your health which will appear regularly in The Gazette Telegraph as a public service feature.)

By The Colorado Medical Society

Several thousand Colorado women are quiety and happily paying $1 a year to learn more about, and encourage each other in, a lost "art" which most women over most of the world's history would have regarded as a natural part of life.

These Colorado women are pleased to have other women join them, but they're really not out on any membership drive. If you're interested, welcome. If not, go your own way and blessings on you.

The women are members of a unique international organization called "La Leche" — "The Milk" — and the lost "art" they cultivate is the breast-feeding of their babies.

It is an organization which was formed seven years ago in Chicago and already has spread to 40 other cities and to Canada, England and Mexico. More than 10,000 women participate. In Colorado there are now 13 groups, 10 of them in existence more than two years.

The La Leche League is a non-profit, non-sectarian organization of women from all walks of life, and their announced purpose is: mothering through breast-feeding. They contend it is easier, more satisfying and more satisfactory to mother a baby who nurses at the breast.

One hundred years ago such an organization would have been a fantasy. No need for it. Even today, it might seem that a group of this kind with such an objective is merely a symptom of an over-organized society. But its existence actually is a symptom of a more profound change in our society; only 42 per cent of mothers in the Rocky Mountain region are breast-feeding their babies seven days after birth. At 30 days after birth, the figure drops to 25 per cent.

More than 90 per cent of mothers are physically able to breast-feed, but only about one-third do.

The leaders of the La Leche movement believe most of the problems which lead to such statistics are practical and social, not medical. When medical problems arise, the mothers are referred to their own doctors.

Members pay $1 a year for a subscription to the organization's memeographed bi-monthly newsletter. (Interested persons can address La Leche League News, 4622 Hirschberg St., Schiller Park, Ill.) Also available is a book, "The Womanly Art of Breast Feeding," which is a reference manual for mothers who would like to nurse but don't know how.

Members, and any other interested mother, participate in a series of five monthly meetings conducted by the nearest group of the league. The meetings discuss, the advantages of breast-feeding to mother and baby; techniques of breat-feeding and overcoming difficulties; pregnancy, childbirth and nutrition — how and when to start solid foods; the family in relation to the breast-fed infant, the when and how of weaning the discipline of children under 2, and the fifth meeting — "for fathers only" — is conducted by a physician or qualified expert on marriage and the family.

Techniques and schedules are discussed, not by lecturers but by mothers who are themselves nursing their own babies. Treatments for cracked or sore nipples are exchanged and debated. The first few weeks are the most difficult, new mothers are told, but mostly it's a matter of encouragement; usually a mother is doing the right thing and still worrying about it.

Nervous mothers who breast-feed learn to relax with their babies, La Leche believes, and the old story of "not enough milk" is usually a myth. Breast-feeding is a demand and supply situation. The more the baby feeds, the more milk will come.

La Leche suggests these advantages to the mother: promotion of faster healing after childbirth, decreased chances of breast cancer later, the convenience of no formula to make, bottles to heat, no worry of sterilization, no extra cost, elimination of the need for early solid foods for the average baby, and a secure knowledge that a baby is being given the best possible start in life.

For the baby, these advantages are cited: less constipation, fewer digestive upsets and disorders, more protection against infection and allergies, a feeling of love and security.

Old Doc Experience advises:

1. Most doctors agree there are great plus values in breast-feeding.

2. Nutrition usually is better, there is less danger of infection, and no chance for the tragedies which sometimes occur when mistakes are made in formula preparation.

3. These factors are more subjective and difficult to measure, but as a general rule it is observed that there is more security, warmth, contentment and exchanged love between a breast-feeding mother and her baby.

4. The barriers to breast-feeding are nearly always social or medical.

5. if you are expecting and think you might like to nurse your baby, talk it over with your family doctor or obstetrician. Be frank with him, and encourage him to be frank with you.

6. If you would like more information about La Leche, write to the president of La Leche League of Colorado, Mrs. T. J. Kerwin, 3430 E. Seventh Ave., Denver 80206.

Chuck Hole Eliminators Installed Within City

Concrete dips, designed to eliminate chuck holes and save maintenance work, have been installed at several intersections in the city, M. R. Pearce, director of public works, said today.

He said that in addition to the dips, some street patching was done to complete the street intersection improvement. He said his department planned to make some of these concrete dip improvements each year. A total of 19 intersections were improved under the current program.

CAPITOL STUFF

Washington—The decision of the Organization of American States to crack down on Cuba is not only a victory for President Johnson. It also is evidence of a significant change of attitude in Latin America.

Not so long ago, many of the most important nations south of the border were strictly ho-hummish about the Castro threat. They regarded this country's concern as an unfortunate excess, probably related to domestic politics.

But when the foreign ministers of the hemisphere met in special session here last week, they were in a militant new mood. This caught even the State Department's experts by surprise. Most of the statesmen were eager to hit the Castro regime hard—and some were even gung-ho about it.

The result was that the U. S. got more than it expected. The OAS didn't just recommend new sanctions. It called for a mandatory break in diplomatic relations and a cutoff of trade and sea communications. It also branded subversion as an act of aggression which might warrant collective counteraction even the use of armed force.

Many complex factors contributed to the new mood reflected in the OAS action. One of the most important of these, perhaps, was the recent overthrow leftist-dominated Brazilian government of Joao Goulart. The New rulers, headed by President Humberto Castelo Branco, are strongly pro-U.S. and anti Communist. And Brazil threw its considerable weight behind mandatory sanctions.

Other elements contributing to the growing support for Cuba's isolation were the flagrant Castro attempt to destroy Venezuela, a general decline in popular infatuation with Castroism throughout Latin America, and Secretary of State Rusk's personal negotiating skill.

RECOVERED FROM THEIR MISGIVINGS

In the background, however, was still another factor which is the least discussed but in some ways the most significant. It is the way that the Latins have recovered from the deep misgivings they developed about U.S. policy at the time of President Kennedy's assassination.

Kennedy's death was a shock because it immediately raised the spectre of the U.S. once again losing interest in Latin America. More than any other President since Franklin D. Roosevelt, he had personally involved himself in the hemisphere's problems. Whether or not the Alliance for Progress had made any real progress, it symbolized Kennedy's interest

Johnson recognized this threatened spiritual defection of the Latins and moved almost immediately to head it off. In his first business session with any foreign dignitaries - just four days after the assassination—he called hemisphere leaders to a "family gathering" in the White House to emphasize his own interest in their problems, his early links with Roosevelt and his dedication to the alliance.

The President's first major action in the foreign field was to order an overhaul of the whole management of hemisphere problems, installing his own man, Thomas Mann, as assistant Secretary of State for inter-American affairs and top coordinator for the alliance.

CALLED IN THE AMBASSADORS

Johnson met with the ambassadors to Latin America later in March and then called them to the White House again May 11 to give them a progress report and pep talk on the alliance. In between times, he was peppering Tom Mann with instructions.

There was some initial fumbling in the handling of the Panama crisis, mainly because some of the President's top aids were still operating on the old Kennedy wave length and hadn't tuned in on the LBJ signal. This apparently caused some psychological reverses around the hemisphere.

But Johnson kept his personal diplomacy rolling. During the first week in July—on the eve of the OAS meeting—he called the Latin American ambassadors to the White House in small groups on three different days. And he let them talk about their problems—how to increase hemisphere exports, how to coordinate trade policies, how to improve the alliance.

Johnson didn't press anyone regarding Cuba. He emphasized America's determination to help the hemisphere. But he warned that the Latins would have to do the alliance job themselves. He particularly exhorted them to put more of their own private money into the effort.

QUESTION STILL IS: WILL IT WORK?

It is too soon to say how successful Johnson's personal diplomacy will be. The problems of the hemisphere are so staggering—so utterly complex, so entangled in the coils of dead history, so intractable—that no one is tempted to be optimistic.

The Alliance for Progress urgently needed reoganization and generation when Johnson came to power. He has done what is necessary, but only time will tell whether the alliance will now work well, or even work. In the final analysis, it will rise or fall on the performance of the Latins themselves. And their record is less than promising.

But diplomats say the special attention Johnson has given to the hemisphere and the effort he has made to get the alliance back on the track has helped quiet Latin fears about his intentions. And this, in turn, contributed to the salutary outcome of the OAS session on Cuba.

Rusk Says Meat Quota Poses Policy Problem

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Friday Senate approval of strict quotas on meat imported into the United States poses "very severe problems" in foreign relations.

His statements followed a protest by New Zealand and an expression of concern by Australia of the Senate's action.

Rusk said it did not seem to be a very good time for the Senate to approve stiff quotas since the United States is involved in trade negotiations in Geneva which are trying to reduce tariffs and other trade barriers.

Rusk said the administration strongly urged Congress not to pass the legislation since its object already had been achieved by voluntary agreement of meat exporting countries to decrease their exports and by the strenuous efforts of the United States to increase its exports of meat, principally to Europe.

Rusk said U. S. meat imports were primarily used for manufactured meat products and therefore did not compete with American beef.

Sources said Australia and New Zealand stressed that the proposed quotas would gravely affect their meat exports to the United States.

WSC Receives NASA Contract For Research

GUNNISON — A $40,000 research contract has been awarded to Western State College by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Dr. T. D. Violett, associate professor of physics and director of the project, reports that under terms of the contract, research in the extreme ultraviolet regions of the solar spectrum will be continued. The work was begun under a $38,000 grant from NASA made in 1962.

Ultimate goal of the program will be to develop a spectrograph capable of analyzing in great detail the radiation emitted by the sun. The instrument being developed will be flown in a rocket to altitudes of over 100 miles in order to observe those solar radiations which are strongly absorbed by the atmosphere, and which are therefore inaccessible to observation from the ground.

As a result of these studies it is hoped that some insight will be gained as to the mechanisms of solar flares and the energy and temperature distribution of the solar chromosphere.

A laboratory prototype of the rocket spectrograph has been biult with the aid of the 1962 NASA grant, Dr. Violette reports. It is presently undergoing testing and mofification in the physics department at Western State.

Some laboratory studies undertaken with this instrument include investigations of the exact extent which certain solar radiations are absorbed by the earth's atmosphere.

This study may yield information that will be helpful in understanding the processes responsible for the formation of the ionosphere, a thick layer of electrically charged particles which is very important to radio communication.

Glynn O. Cress, candidate for the master of arts degree at summer commencement, who has been serving as research associate on the project, will remain on the campus in the same capacity. Funds will be available to employ graduate and undergraduate physics students as research assistants on a part-time basis, Dr. Violett reports.

RANGOON — A paper mill now being built in Burman will be used for making stock for the country's money supply.

By DORA FOSTER

The following has been sent in by Mrs. H. K. Barton of 1212 Palmer Park Blvd., whose father, Henry Botting, had a dairy at the Brookside Farm on Cheyenne Creek, for many years:

Hardly know where to start my story, but guess I will begin with myself: I was born in Alhambra, Ill. in 1882; as my father had asthma so badly, he and mother decided to go to Kansas to see if it would help. So about 1883, they came West and my father filed on 160 acres of land near the little town of Sun City, Kan. — there is no such place now. We had a tiny little house just on the outside and were very happy here. Soon my uncle, Tom Botting, came from England and he and father, Henry Botting, each bought a team of big mules and a lumber wagon apiece and freighted supplies from the nearest big town to where we lived — about a hundred miles, I believe. There were no railroads in those days out in that part of the country.

The cowboys used to come through from Texas with great herds of cattle and would stay over night and drink and gamble, then move on north next day. One night the livery stable caught on fire and such a holocaust, no one dared go near as all the boys' guns were in their saddles and as the fire burned, they were popping and shooting, so several ponies and saddles were burned.

We lived in this town about two years, I think, and as my father's asthma did not get any better, he decided to come to Colorado. So he and another man, Dock Hudson, I believe, was his name, drove through in a covered wagon.

My mother and I went to Pratt Center, Kan. to stay with my aunt, Mrs. Joe Stepp and grandmother, Mrs. McMichael. I might say her, my father was an Englishman and had come to the United States when re was 14 years old to see Old Uncle Bob Mighell, who lived in Arkansas. Later father drifted up into Illinois and that was where he met my mother. They later were married and as I have already said, I was born there.

After father found work in Colorado — he worked as a cook in a hotel at Green Mountain Falls — he sent for mother and me. We came on the train and spent the summer up there, then moved to Colorado Springs. We lived on Dale Street for a while, then moved to Cache la Poudre.

Those days they had the gas street lights and funny little street cars drawn by ponies, Texas ponies they said, with a little bell around their neck and they would come tinkling down the street.

Later we moved to North Weber where my sister, Dolly Botting, was born. Father worked for Samuel Dexter Bradford, in his greenhouse, for a while, then Mr. Bradford wanted him to be foreman on a ranch he owned about a mile east of Fountain, so we moved down there.

Meantime, my Uncle Tom Botting in Kansas had married and he came to Colorado with his wife and two children. As he had no job he came to work on the ranch. As the school was in Fountain, a mile away, and you had to cross two railroad tracks, the Old Union Pacific, which ran just in front of the ranch and the Denver - Rio Grande, at the edge of Fountain, my father had to take me to school with the horse and cart, so one winter I came into Aunt Mary Stepp's and went to the Liller School. She had two children, Roy and Ada, and lived next door to the school. Miss Kittie Pasture, later Mrs. Fryhoffer, was my second grade teacher. The Vaux family lived on the other side of Aunt Mary. Sadie, now Mrs. Melvin Clotworthy, used to take us to Sunday School to the Methodist Church, which was on the corner of Kiowa and Nevada. Then Aunt Mary's two younger brothers came to live with her. They were just young fellows, about 20 and 22 years of age, Frank and Jesse McMichael; they worked in Phil Struble's Barber Shop. "Dummy," as they all called him had the chair next to theirs — he was the father of the actor, Lon Chaney, whose father and mother were both deaf and dumb. There were three children, I believe.

Uncle Frank bought one of those big front wheel bicycles, with the little wheel at the back. It was fun to see him get on; he would go hopping along until the pedal came right, then jump on and ride off. He played the harmonica and the guitar and Uncle Jesse had a guitar and a triangle, that he played with his foot. They belonged to some little band around town.

Unce Jesse would go to the house to shave Mr. Stratton and he would give him five dollars and boy! five dollars in those days was something.

After that winter, I went back home to the ranch and as the Bradfords had three children and had moved down there, they hired a governess and I went to school with them.

Later my father bought some of Mr. Bradford's cows and Uncle Tom came up to what we called then Cheyenne Canon and started a dairy, The Brookside Dairy. We rented a little house of Mrs. Rice and moved up there. It was just west of what was then Cheyenne School. The school, a little wooden building, was on the left hand side of the road. Mr. Wolfe gave several acres of ground for a school in the early days. I think there were 13 pupils the first year I went. A big stove was in the middle of the room — one of the boys always came and made the fire and brought in the coal. As a class was called by the teacher, we would walk up to a long bench in front and recite; afterward go back to our seats and the next class was called.

We later moved up the canon farther to the Mark Foster place and father rented the old Brookside Farm to put his cattle on. There were barns there and a pasture, that ran clear up to the Short Line. We lived at the Foster place about a year, then moved down to the Brookside place and lived there over 30 years. The street cars came out over Broadmoor to Stratton Park. They would reverse the trolley at the end of the line and come back into town. I graduated from Creyenne and came in to Cutler Academy, a preparatory school for Colorado College. I had to walk up the Broadmoor Hill from Brookside to catch the street car and often my father would walk up to meet me, if I was a little late getting home. The Cripple Creek Stage went up that same hill, on the way to Cripple Creek. There were one and two stages a day going up in the morning and coming back down in the afternoon. They were big hacks and they drove from four to six horses. They went up past Dixon's, which had been a toll gate at one time, on past the Voss cabin and the Wade cabin, where I believe they changed horses and on into Cripple Creek.

When Cripple Creek was in its prime, they built two big mills, the Golden Cycle and the Portland, down near Colorado City, and shipped the ore down there to be crushed, fired and assayed and then sent to Denver. The mills were later torn down and one built up near Cripple Creek.

While my father had his dairy, Mr. Stratton, a man, who made his millions in Cripple Creek, came to him and said he had bought a tract of land in the canon and he wanted to put another street car line down in the valley and it would run right through where my father had two big hay stacks, so Mr. Stratton told father he would have his hay all baled for him and build a shed to keep it in, if he would let him take his car line through, so father did and we had the car line not more than a hundred yards from the house. They built a nice bandstand up in the park and the Midland Band gave several concerts a week there.

IDA EUDORA MCMICHAEL

Those nights the cars would be packed, a closed car in front and an open car trailer. Harry Irvine was the director.

Later they built a dance pavilion near the end of the park and everybody went and such good times as we had. The dances were from eight until eleven o'clock. There was a refreshment pavilion near, run by the Havis. That was the end of the trolley and went back to town.

I used to work at the elections and really enjoyed it. Mr. Nancreede and Mr. Jack Anthony were two of the judges and many times we would be there in the school house counting votes until dawn, then a judge and a clerk would bring them into the Court House.

Later I married Harry K. Barton and we moved over on the West side — old Colorado City had just been annexed to Colorado Springs, so we lived in the 2100 block on Colorado Avenue. as Hal, as he was always called, was one of the meat cutters at Borsts Meat Market. After living there for a year or so we moved to South Cascade Avenue. Then we bought the little stucco house at 307 Cheyenne Blvd., and moved there, as Hal was working at Sommer's Market. Our neighbors there were Mrs. Ella Jeanne, the Browers, three families of Breunings, Parse Bruce, Theodor Adams, the Perrins.

In 1918 our first baby, Elizabeth Louise, was born. We were very happy there and had a nice garden and later built another house at 311 Cheyenne Blvd.

In 1919 our second baby, Kathryn Jane was born. By that time Hal was working for Mertin Robbins at "Robbins on the Corner."

They had built a new brick school house and moved the old one away — they gave it to Miss Elizabeth Davis down the road for a dwelling as her house had burned down — but the new school house was not big enough, so they went farther west and across the road and built the present building, as it is today, with additions. As the school owned the land across the road they named it, "The Nature Preserve," and gave some of their plays over there in the open — it was so nice.

Miss Turner was the first principal in the new building, then Miss Maude Sheridan and later Dr. Lloyd Shaw. Both the girls spent all their school days there and graduated from high school. My mother and father lived on the old Brookside Farm until about 1923, they they bought the little house at 414 Cheyenne Blvd. and spent the rest of their lives there.

I must add this one note — the Aunt Mary Stepp, I spoke of above, married William "Bill" Larabee who was constable, and well known around town. He died here in the Springs and she died in Denver, where their daughter, Mrs. R. F. McReynolds lives.

The risk of mental illness in New York City is only slightly higher than in a remote rural village in northeastern Canada, according to a recent U.S. government study. About 20 per cent of the rural Canadians showed a definite need for psychiatric help, compared to 23.4 per cent with serious psychiatric symptoms in midtown New York.

HOW IS THE WEATHER?

These few words are perhaps used more than any other word in the English language and yet this question is difficult to answer for weather can change with every passing hour. In this flying age, weather is very important, and yet little heed is paid in present times. The word weather does not occur at all in the original text of the Bible, all of which was written in lands enjoying a Mediterranean climate.

The Mediterranean people have no special word for weather but have always used expressions that mean times or seasons of atmospheric happenings in that region, where a dry summer with occasional storms is succeeded by a winter with capricious rainfall and sudden gales.

Many scientists hold that there is a certain element of chance in the motions of the atmosphere but even those would agree that modern research has shown there is some system in even the most fickle climate.

We all know that there is a certain amount of moodiness of the atmosphere, which varies from place to place. The hottest temperature ever recorded in the world was at Aziaia in the Lybian Desert of northern Africa; the coldest officially recorded was at Verkhoyansk, Siberia. The driest weather is in Arica, Chile, where a few showers during certain years may total no more than a half inch of rainfall. The wettest weather is on the western side of Cameron Peak, near the Gulf of Guinea. The sunniest weather is in the Nile Valley of upper Egypt.

In the United States, certain characteristic weather may be located in specific regions. The hottest is in Death Valley, the coldest blankets Montana, the wettest is in the Olympic mountains of western Washington. The driest is in southwestern Arizona. The sunniest weather is in Sonora Desert on the Arizona-California border.

We all like good weather but this condition cannot prevail all the time. It would become monotonous if every day was fair. It is often noticed that a period of bad weather is broken by splendid weather.

The U. S. Weather Bureau gives much information regarding changes to take place but sometimes the forecast fails and unexpected storms come up. On the other hand, bad weather may be forecast only to clear suddenly.

The sun and moon play an important part in weather conditions and many signs center around them, such as "rainbow at night, sailors delight," or "rainbow in the morning, sailors warning," or "moon with a circle brings water in her beak." All these signs seem foolish, yet they are important to observe.

There are peculiarities of weather in mountain districts and on the coast, which makes the mountaineer or the old salt wise about the weather, yet few people take heed.

More heed is taken in the Alps for many people have lost their lives by not taking warnings. Sailing vessels often came to an unfortunate ending by disregarding weather forecasts.

Many airplane crashes might have been avoided if the pilot had heeded weather warning. There is an old proverb which runs thus, "The farmer prays for rain, the traveler longs for sunshine, but God gives what is best for both."

Higher Prices Noted For Cattle, Hogs, Milk

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Higher prices for cattle, hogs, and wholesale milk contributed most to a 1 per cent increase in overall farm prices during the month ended July 15, the Agriculture Department reported Friday.

The hike in farm prices was partly offset by lower returns for apples, wheat, and oranges. Even with the mid - month increase, farm prices were 4 per cent below those of a year earlier.

Farmers' expenses for the month were one - third of 1 per cent below those of a month earlier, and the same amount below those of a year earlier.

The parity ratio for the month was 75, up a point from mid - June but down 3 points, or 4 per cent, from mid-July, 1963. Parity is the price needed to put the value of commodities sold by farmers on a par with the cost of things they must buy.

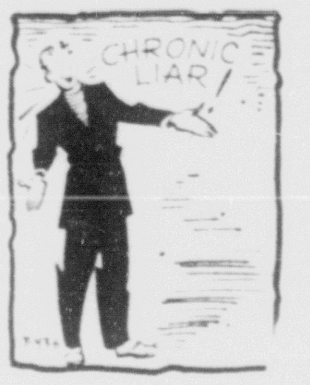
WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D. Ph.D.

Hal's complaint is not rare among the general public but it is rather unusual in his profession, so be sure to study this case carefully. And you parents better be careful about even little white lies! Little lies, like baby rattlesnakes, soon grow up!



CHRONIC LIAR!

By George W. Crane, Ph. D., M. D.

CASE T-436: Hal M., aged 32, is a talented clergyman.

"But, Dr. Crane," he protested, "I have shifted from one denomination to another several times.

"For my past soon catches up with me and I run away. For I am a pathological liar.

"I admit it and I know how it all started, but still I can't seem to cure myself.

"Although I have prayed and vowed to tell the truth, I seem pulled toward lies as if I were hypnotized.

"In fact, I will tell a lie when the truth is easier and simpler.

"My two brothers are also chronic liars, just like me. For we had a brutal father who drank heavily and blamed us for everything.

"So we developed the habit of lying in order to try to escape his beatings.

"Alas, the habit now has us all in its grasp just as firmly as if we were chronic slaves of whiskey. What can I do?"

In psychiatry we encounter Korsakoff's Syndrome which is a psychois based on chronic alcoholism. In it the patient tends to have lapses of memory.

But he will not admit them, so he conjures up weired stories and thus will fabricate beautiful lies to hide the blank spots in his memory.

But Hal is sober, rational and a clergyman, to boot, so his problem is doubly intriguing.

He has diagnosed its onset, which is the first step in trying to effect a cure.

The second step is to learn that your condition is not unique in the annals of human history.

Most patients think they are the only victim of their special complaints since Adam and the Garden of Eden.

As soon as you realize that mental problems are just as often duplicated as appendicitis and other medical ailments, you are largely freed from your obsession that you are a psychological "loner."

In Hal's case, too, I urged him to consciously go WITH his problem to the extent of joining the annual "Liar's Tournament" where men compete for the telling of the tallest tale.!

Everybody in the group knows everybody else is lying, so it is much like the Alcoholics Anonymous meetings where each chronic drunkard knows all the others have been gutter bums, too.

* * *

A third specific prescription for chronic liars is for them to focus their talk on the present instead of the past.

For their companions can't check on their past as easily, so they often feel tempted to fabricate dramatic stories.

But the present situation is fairly evident to all, so lying about current events is more difficult.

Liars are often looking backwards, to cover up or avoid. So they must start living in the present, which is an open book and thus more conducive to truth.

Prayer is helpful but God can't help those who will not try to help themselves, for God seems to prefer team-work.

And you parents should avoid even little white lies, since your children don't make such qualitative distinctions. Fibs are fibs to them!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Airmen May Receive Liberal Studies Degree

According to William Bailey, director of education training, an agreement just consumated between the Academy and the University of Oklahoma, is especially designed for servicemen whose duties prevent attendance at conventional off-duty college classes.

Requirements for a Liberal Studies Degree can be fulfilled through independent study and short resident seminars.

Under the new program, students read a series of writings in an area designated by the university, undergo a comprehensive examination, and then attend a three-week resident seminar.

After completing work in the humanities, social science, and natural science, plus an area combining all three, students are awarded a degree.

District 8 Board Splits Votes on Insurance Plan

The Fountain-Ft. Carson District 8 School Board had two split votes on an insurance plan for district employes.

Agents of two insurance groups tried to sell the board insurance Friday night, including a representative of the Colorado Educational Association (CEA).

Board member Wendell Sample advocated requiring employes to participate in a group life insurance plan with a private company as a condition of employment with the district.

"If School District 11 can tell them they have to take it (group life insurance), so can we," Sample said.

Board member Rufus Marshall warned that compulsory life insurance might cost the district some teachers.

The vote was two for and two against making the insurance compulsory, with Board President Clifford Johnson deciding the issue by voting against compulsion.

The next vote — to extend the district's present group insurance plan with the private company — ended in another tied vote. Again Johnson voted, this time to continue the insurance.

Mark Fox, administrative assistant, reported on summer maintenance programs at district buildings, including Fountain Junior High School where the attic was fogged with cyanide crystals "to discourage bats."

—Aug. 20, High School football practice starts.

—Aug. 31, School begins.

—Sept. 7, No school, Labor Day.

Oklahoma Must Reapportion

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A special three-judge federal court Friday wiped out Oklahoma's spring primary legislative elections and ordered new elections based solely on population.

The court ruled membership of Oklahoma's 1965 legislature must comply with recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings requiring apportionment of legislative seats on an equal population formula.

After vacating the spring primaries, it directed Gov. Henry Bellmon to proclaim and conduct special legislative elections under a stern population-only reapportionment order it adopted.

The court warned that if its order is not followed, it "stands ready" to implement it by judicial decree.

AFA Musical Groups Plan Four Appearances

The Academy Band is scheduled to take part in the annual Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo Parade through downtown Colorado Springs Thursday.

Three appearances are slated for the Drum and Bugle Corps. Two of them are in Colorado.

The Corps will play Aug. 22 at the Broadmoor and Aug. 25 in Pueblo as part of the State Fair Parade.

Aug. 22, the Corps will perform at Hill AFB, Utah.

Russians Foresee Bumper Harvest

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Communist party organ Pravda Friday published optimistic forecasts of the biggest grain harvest in the history of the virgin lands.

Leaders of the Kazakhstan Republic pledged to sell the state 16 million tons of wheat, more than three times last year's deliveries after a disastrous harvest.

The anticipated harvest would exceed the bumper crop of 1948 and was slightly more than the Kazakhstan leaders promised last February at a Moscow party meeting on agriculture.

GETS FOURTH STAR

SAIGON (UPI) — The fourth star of a full general was pinned Saturday on Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in South Viet Nam, by U. S. Ambassador Maxwell Taylor.

"We've come a long way since you were a lieutenant colonel and we served together for the first time," said Taylor, a former general who resigned as chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff to take the ambassadorship.

Sales of candy rose to $2.7 billion last year up from the $2.5 billion mark of 1962, the National Confectioners Association reports.

Joy Schneebeck Becomes Bride of George Ritchie

Miss Joy Schneebeck and George H. Ritchie were united in marriage at 8 p.m. July 18 at the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Schneebeck of 1420 E. Cache la Poudre St. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson of Colton, Calif.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the bride's father. The church was decorated with arrangements of white gladioli and chrysanthemums, and lighted by candelabra. Mrs. Theo Fenlon at the organ played Purcell's "Trumpet Tune" for the processional and a Bach Choral Prelude for the recessional. She also played accompaniments for the hymns sung by the congregation.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, Harold Schneebeck Jr. of Independence, Mo. Her floor length gown of white silk organza was trimmed with appliques of white rose embroidery. Her bouffant veil was held by a circlet of pearls, and her flowers were pink sweetheart roses with feathered white carnations.

Miss Marianne Ament was maid of honor and Mrs. Harold Schneebeck Jr. was bridesmaid. Both wore rose street length dresses styled like that of the bride, with matching accessories. Their flowers were feathered pink carnations.

Harold Schneebeck Jr. was best man and Richard Best of Denver was groomsman. Ushers were William Grimes and Gary Williams.

Miss Cindy De Salvo of Pueblo presided at the guest book during the reception. Mrs. Lee Brice, Mrs. William Grimes and Miss William Lacy, all of Colorado Springs and Miss Judy Schrunk and Miss Virginia West served.

The couple plan to go to Europe this fall, to spend a year in Germany, while the bridegroom will be studying under a German government grant.

The bride attended Graceland College at Lamoni, Iowa, where she was a member of Lambda Delta Sigma honors society. She was on the Dean's list and plans to continue her education, majoring in English.

Mr. Ritchie was graduated with honors from the University of Redlands, Calif., receiving a B.A. degree in psychology in 1962 and a Master's degree in music in 1963. He plans to begin work toward a Ph.D in music.

Behavior Begins With Mom

By RUTH MILLETT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"How can I make my children obey me?" so many mothers write.

Well, here's what one of my readers who taught school for many years has to say about this:

Being interested in children she has watched with special interest the way different mothers handle their darlings and has come to this conclusion:

"Before a mother can hope to make a child mind — she has to be able to make herself mind. By that I mean she must realize that it is the small weaknesses and indulgences which build up into bigger faults.

"So, even though it might be easier at a particular moment to ignore the fact that Johnny is doing something he has been forbidden to do, the wise mother disciplines herself by refusing to take the easy way out. She stops whatever she is doing to see that Johnny doesn't continue to disobey.

"She doesn't have to be harsh — just firm in her voice and manner.

"The child who never minds is usually the one who hears his mother say a hundred times a day, 'Don't do that' — but in an absent-minded or halfhearted tone the child knows he can disregard. Then suddenly, without warning, he disobeys once too often and mother flies at him in a rage, confusing and antagonizing him.

"That kind of mother needs to control her own behavior before she can expect to control her child's."

If you're having trouble disciplining your children, take a good look at yourself. You may find that your own behavior is the cause of the trouble.

Luncheon Meat Goes To Supper

There are always days when you need hurry-up suppers, those quick and easy-to-fix kinds.

It's a great convenience to have several cans of luncheon meat on the pantry shelf for just such meals as this, points out Reba Staggs, meat cookery expert. Open the can, slice the meat and place it on top of already-cooked lima beans blended with a few other convenience foods. Presto! Supper's ready except for a short baking period while you set the table.

Luncheon Meat, Lima Supper

1 can (12 ounces) luncheon meat, cut in ¼-inch slices
1 package (10 ounces) frozen lima beans, cooked and seasoned
1 can (4 ounces) mushroom stems and pieces, drained
1-3 cup chopped onion
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed tomato soup
½ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon thyme
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1-3 cup grated Cheddar cheese

Combine lima beans, mushrooms, onion, tomato soup, dry mustard, thyme and pepper. Arrange luncheon meat slices on top of lima bean mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 20 minutes. Sprinkle with grated cheese and continue baking 10 minutes. 4 servings.

Complete the menu for this casserole with a fruit salad made of a combination of melon balls from watermelon and cantaloupe, cherries or berries and a whipped cream dressing.

Carry Out Barbecue Mood Even on Range

Cubed beef steaks are recommended for this dish by widely known meat authority, Reba Staggs. The meat comes from the hindquarter of beef, specifically the sirloin tip and heel of the round. A machine cuts the steak fibers, giving a cubed effect, thus making the meat more tender.

After browning, the steaks are braised in the barbecue sauce until they are tender. A tight cover for the pan as well as a low temperature are essential.

It's easy to give a picnicking mood to the whole meal by serving the steaks on buns with French fried potatoes and crisp vegetable relishes.

Spicy Barbecued Steaks

8 cubed beef steaks
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
6 tablespoons lard or drippings
¼ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
½ cup catchup
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon ground cloves
1 cup juice from peach, apple, bread and butter or sweet pickles
2 tablespoons Worchestershire sauce

Combine flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Dredge the steaks in seasoned flour. Brown in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add chopped onion and brown lightly. Mix remaining ingredients and pour over steaks. Cover tightly and cook slowly 40 to 45 minutes or until meat is tender. 6 to 8 servings.

Larry Clyde Hardt Weds Miss Gay Ann Genschorck

The Audubon Heights Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Gay Ann Genschorck and Larry Clyde Hardt at 4 p.m. June 27. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Genschorck of 841 William Ave. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hardt of 2526 N. Logan Ave. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John H. Skeen, who also officiated at the wedding of the bride's parents 22 years ago.

Sheryl Van Gundy, a college classmate of the bride, sang "One Heart, One Hand" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of white silk organza over taffeta, with lightly beaded bodice, scoop neckline, cap sleeves and chapel train. The bouffant veil flowed from a puffed rose. She carried yellow carnations centered with gold roses on a white Bible which belonged to the bridegroom.

Mrs. Donna Dempsey, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor, wearing a floor length gown of mint green brocade with bell skirt. She wore a matching pillbox with veil and her flowers were yellow carnations.

The bride's table was decorated with silver candelabra and daisies surrounding the three tiered white fruit cake topped with the bride and groom figures that was used on the wedding cake of the bride's parents. HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Listen Gals:

I am so tired of buying expensive ironing board covers, so I learned recently that they can be washed when the dark spray starches "fill-er-up" . . .

I use the silver-type cloths.

Yes, that is the one thing I splurge on—a good cover and iron. But I have had my problems, too, with the spray starches filling up all the pores until it feels like you are ironing on plastic.

So . . . I removed mine, soak it in "cold" water first. This is "most" necessary because the starch will liquefy again as soon as, and if, you put the pad cover in soap and you will really have a mess, then I took a scrub brush and scrubbed it good.

When all the "slickness" was gone (you can tell this by running your hand over the pad) then wash the pad with your suds. Rinse it well and put it back on your ironing board while still damp.

The pad will be wrinkled but both the cover and string will be wet and it will shrink tightly.

While still damp I heated my iron and ironed it beautifully.

I found that "half" those darn scorches weren't scorches at all! It was burned starch! Remove the starch and the scorches leave . . . So the idea is to wash your ironing board cover.

And most important is to put two layers of heavy foil—and three is even better—under that cover before putting it back on. Then watch your ironing go twice as fast.

Come on now. Get out of that chair. Put some cold water in your sink.

Take off that dingy cover. Put it in the sink to soak in "cold" water while we have another cup of coffee. Only takes a few minutes.

Save, save, save . . . those pennies make dollars and dollars give us security. —Love ya, Heloise

P.S. I am well aware it says "do not wash silver ironing board covers" but it sure beats throwing it away. Mine is fine after putting foil under it.

Letter Of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

We can't have our cake and eat it too.
Tho' it is something we'd all like to do.
The only alternative that I know
Is before it's baked, save part of the "dough" —A. H. A.

Dear Heloise:

Here is a little hint which was handed on to me by a Chinese friend:

When measuring water or milk for scrambled eggs, use the egg shell for a measure. I use two half shells for each egg. —Marjorie Milne

Dear Heloise:

My maid has her own trick for tucking the rubber bath mat out of the way when not in use.

She rolls the mat into a compact cylinder and lays it across the hot and cold water faucets at the end of the tub.

Result—a more orderly appearance to the bathroom, which is something we all strive for. And also helps prevent a mildewed mat . . . B. Brown

Dear Heloise:

Here is a hint for the ladies who have trouble getting a patch on straight . . . use your small embroidery hoop. It holds the material taut and straight.

To patch the knees of your little boy's pants, let out one of the side seams and patch on your machine. Then just run the seam up again. It's a lot faster than hand-patching. —Mrs. E. Bowman

Dear Heloise:

Those heart-shaped cans that small imported hams come in make excellent molds for jellied salads. I use the small two-pound cans for cranberry jelly salad and set it in the middle of a bed of lettuce. Most attractive. —Mrs. M. H. Southside

Girls, any fancy shape can also be used for molds of tomato aspic, etc. —Heloise

MISS BIRGITTA BERGLUND

Visitor From Sweden

Miss Birgitta Berglund, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Bengt Berglund of Hedemora, Sweden, has been a house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Heinlein of 1776 Mesa Ave. Miss Berglund was an American Field Service exchange student at Washington Lee High School, Arlington, Va. in 1958-59. In the meantime she has completed her training as a graduate physio - therapist at Sjukgymnastinstituet (Karolinska Hospital), Stockholm, Sweden, and is now on an extended tour of the United States, observing physio - therapy methods in this country. For the past few days she has been doing so at the hospitals of Colorado Springs. Miss Berglund is strongly considering moving permanently to this country to practice her profession.

In 1960 Mr. and Mrs. Heinlein visited at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Berglund in Sweden. Dr. Berglund is a private, independent physician in a country having socialized medicine, and is an example of the fact that many people prefer to select and pay a physician of their choice rather than avail themselves of socialized medicine.

Before returning to Sweden Miss Berglund will attend the fiftieth anniversary convention of the American Field Service in New York City, Aug. 2 to 5. The AFS is a private organization, founded during WWI, which now is primarily for exchange students, both directions.

Public Invited to Attend Concert at First Methodist

Five soloists will give a program of music in the First Methodist Church, at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. The soloists are Fritz Funk, violinist; Arline MaKinney, soprano; George Garriques, tenor; Verda Lawrie, organist; Helen Sherman, pianist.

This will be a program of great variety and is one of the high-lights of the summer concert series for visitors as well as the local music lovers.

Fritz Funk will play his famous genuine Stradivarius violin made in 1722. This great instrument is a concert violin capable of filling great concert halls and yet the loveliest and most delicate tones that come only from such violins of Stradivarius. The opening number of the program is the brilliant violin solo "Fantasie" of Brahams-Liszt, followed by two violin solos from "The Mid summer Night's Dream" by Mendelssohn.

Arline Makinney will sing two beautiful solos, "Villanelle" (The Swallow) and the ever-favorite request, "The Last Rose of Summer."

Verda Lawrie who gave a brilliant concert three weeks ago and Helen Sherman, an accomplished pianist, will play two duets, "Grand Aria," a brilliant and exciting duet by Demarest, and an old melodious piece entitled, "Old Dutch Lullaby" arranged by Dickenson.

George Garrigues, known for his singing in church and in opera and many other musical programs, will sing "Sound An Alarm" by Handel and "In Native Worth," by Haydn. There will be a soprano and tenor duet by Arline MaKinney and George Garriques, the ever popular Song Cycle by Smetana, and to complete the concert, the five soloists will join in the great favorite, "Peace to This Dwelling."

The program will last about one hour and is open to the public without charge. Everyone is invited. A free-will offering will be taken for the benefit of the television fund.

Men Savor Engagement Glow

By Ruth Millett
Newspapers Enterprise Assn.

Men experience much more self-esteem when they get engaged than women do, according to a recent study by Dr. Bruce Sklarew of the George Washington University School of Medicine.

The men had better enjoy that feeling while it lasts.

For never again will the girl on whose finger a young man puts an engagement ring work so hard to build him up as she does from the moment she decides she is going to marry him until the moment when he finally "persuades" her to be his wife.

She listens to his opinions with respect. She laughs at his jokes with delight. She assures him that all of his dreams for the future are a sure thing, and makes him feel strong, handsome, daring intelligent, and witty. At long last he feels he has found someone who understands him and appreciates his uniqueness as a person.

So he puts a ring on the girl's finer — and his self-esteem hits a new and beautiful high.

Let him enjoy the feeling to the utmost, for never again will the girl work quite so hard to build up his ego.

Once that engagement ring feels secure and the wedding plans are set, the girl will start to relax a little. When the wedding band joins the engagement ring, she'll relax even more in building up his ego.

She will begin to see some little flaws in him that need correction. His humor won't always strike her as funny as it once did. Some of his big ideas will suddenly seem to her like pipe dreams, and she will feel it her duty to encourage him to have a more realistic idea of the future.

A new toothbrush cleans between the teeth, on the surface and gently massages gums—all at the same time, the manufacturer reports. It's the "first new development in a non-automatic toothbrush since nylon was used as a replacement for natural bristles 25 years ago," the manufacturer added.

Teach Laymen Technique Of Starting Stopped Heart

CLEVELAND (UPI) — An organization to teach laymen how to save lives by restarting hearts that fail has been warmly received by doctors here.

To meet this need, the Resuscitators of America, Inc., was formed to teach volunteers the first aid techniques of closed chest massage for restarting hearts.

Mrs. Harry R. Horvitz, president of the organization, expressed the hope chapters could be formed throughout the country.

"It could mean saving the life of a relative or a close friend if you knew how to restart a heart," Mrs. Horvitz said, stressing the importance members of the organization attach to their work.

About 130 persons in Greater Cleveland have been trained in the program. They will form a committee to ask others to take the courses being given by doctors.

Mrs. Horvitz, who did most of the work in getting the program established, said it was her hope that personnel of hospitals, health and welfare departments, schools and persons in business and industry would encourage their staffs to participate in learning what to do when a heart emergency developed.

The classes are taught by Dr. Claude S. Beck, professor of surgery, at the Western Reserve University School of Medicine.

Persons who complete the classes would be able to start a heart in an emergency and keep the stricken person alive until police or other rescue personnel arrived, Mrs. Horvitz said.

Dr. Paul Dudley White, the distinguished Boston heart specialist, and many members of the American Surgical and Thoracic Association have approved the program.

Dr. White suggested that first aid stations be established wherever possible with medical personnel immediately available.

Doctors report there is considerable evidence to indicate that many persons who died of heart attacks could have been saved if they had received immediate treatment.

Dr. Lester T. Adelson and Dr. William Hoffman made a study of 500 consecutive deaths from heart attack recorded by the local coroner.

Their study showed that about two-thirds of the hearts examined showed no new anatomic disease. They also found that in about 26 per cent of the cases the heart muscle appeared to be in good order and capable of several years of good operation if the heart beat could have been restored.

REVEAL ENGAGEMENT — Mrs. Wyvonna Mulhollen of Rt. 2, Calhan, announces the marriage of her daughter, Wyvonna Sportsman, to James E. Gorman, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Gorman of Colorado Springs. Miss Sportsman attended Wasson High School. Mr. Gorman was graduated from St. Mary's High School, class of '63, attended Southern Colorado State College, and is currently employed by the U. S. Bureau of Roads at Nederland. The wedding will take place in late August.

Ham-Filled Pancakes

Add finely chopped, cooked ham with chipped green pepper to medium thick cream sauce and place a spoonful on thin 4-inch sized pancakes. Roll and serve with currant jelly.

Deviled Mushrooms

Select large fresh mushrooms and remove stems. Fill with deviled ham. One can (2¼ ounces) will usually fill 6 large mushrooms. Broil 3 inches from heat 8 to 10 minutes. Wonderful to serve with beef roast or steak.

Hot Dog Month — July

Chilled, cooked macaroni, an old favorite salad ingredient combined with sliced celery, sliced stuffed olives, a suggestion of green onion, sliced frankfurters and mayonnaise sings of summer, picnics and patio suppers.

How about layering, in a lettuce-lined bowl, drained kidney beans, very thinly sliced onion circles and frankfurters and sliced sour pickles? This calls for French dressing.

Sandwich Time

Keep Them Cold

Cold cuts should be treated just as you do cooked meats, like roast: keep them wrapped and chilled in the refrigerator while you wait until time to eat. Well-refrigerated meats keep their flavor and nutrients better than if you're careless about leaving them standing on kitchen counter or table.

WINGED VICTORY FOR TAXES

NEW YORK (AP)—Many of the world's airports charge what they term "embarkation taxes" to help pay airport operating costs. France levies a $5 tax on passengers leaving on overseas flights; Belgium charges $1; the Bahamas, $2; Bermuda, $2.80; $1.12; Great Britain and Eire, about $1.03; Denmark, $1.01, and Spain, 85 cents. Tahiti, a French possession, charges $4, but all baggage handling is free and no tipping is permitted.

The United States, Canada, Portugal, Switzerland, and Germany are among the few countries that levy no embarkation tax.

Feet Facts Point to Growth Of Femme Sizes

NEW YORK (UPI)—Any modern Prince Charming trying to trace his Cinderella with a glass slipper had better do some market research before stepping out.

If the slipper is very wide, happens to be an "A" in width, he's better off starting his search in Texas, Kansas, Nebraska or any midwestern state where most women rarely have feet wider than a "B."

If the slipper is very wide, meanwhile, he's best advised to start in Minnesota, where the shoes that really fit come in great length and breadth.

The vast regional difference in feet and shoe size preferences has been collected for many years by Dunn and McCarthy Inc., who claim their Enna Jetticks were the original pioneers in width-sizing.

The firm maintains that it makes more sizes per style than any other shoe company in the nation. Consequently, its records show in great detail how the feet of fashion vary from state to state.

Paul Flynn, product manager of the firm, has been keeping America's shoe sizes for 38 years. He said one shoe may come in as many as 112 sizes and widths from "AAAA" to "EEE."

During the last several years, the most diverse call for size ranges comes from California.

Flynn said that's probably because persons from all over the nation have moved to California, bringing with them their own special ethnic characteristics.

On the other hand, the east is notorious for wide widths, going to "C," "D," and "E."

Feet have been changing slowly but surely over the past few generations. Flynn said women's feet have grown a full size in the past 20 years. They are getting narrower as they get longer. Size 7 is today's average size.

Probably no public figure has helped the fashion acceptance of the woman with long feet more than Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

When it was reported that she wore size 10, women everywhere who were afraid to admit they wore even a size 8 breathed a sigh of relief and no longer felt they had to whisper their size to the salesman.

Flynn said the status symbol today is having a narrow width, not in having either a small or large size.

Don't try to oil the lock of a door or car. Oil the key and insert it. Turn key back and forth a few times.

The Mature Parent

Stop Playing God

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: I missed the point of what you recently wrote about putting a room between quarreling children and calling it the Pacific Ocean. I don't want to miss it, because my boys, 10 and 12, fight so bitterly. I have strong ideas about family loyalty and have tried so hard to teach them that brothers should stand together. I believe that it is parents' responsibility to instill mutual affection in their children, and I have failed to . . .

ANSWER: My point in plain words is parents must disconnect themselves from their children's feelings toward each other.

Disconnection from your kids' resentment of each other is what you want. You can't make it because the notion of such detachment conflicts with your notion that you have to "instill" mutual affection in them. I am now going to disarrange your moral furniture. So take me easy.

Those of us who undertake to "instill" brotherly love in children invariably think of ourselves as especially moral or religious. We are not. We just revel so in our feeling of virtuous allegiance to God that we cannot see we have undertaken His work. When we fail to develop brotherly loyalty in our children, we can either choose to welter in our discouragement and grief, or we can use these emotions as discipline of our arrogance.

We can begin to perceive that it is not our business to create "love" in other human beings. Love is in people to be developed by time and growth. Bowing our heads before the mystery to life, we should quit trying to manipulate and control it.

You've made a botch of God's business by trying to manage it for Him.

Once we're clear on the difference between us and God, we lose all sense of obligation to direct the unfolding of our youngsters' brotherly love. When they start squabbling, we let it go on until it bores us. Then, we say "Stop it, John, go into the living room and stay there until you settle down. Buddy, come into the kitchen with me."

It is when we can be delighted with the difference between us and God that gaiety enters our treatment of fighting children and we can say, "O.K., you scrappers, the dining room between you is the Himalayas. you've settled down, I'll get out daddy's old travel magazine with pictures of the Himalayas and a man who climbed one. But for now, do what you're told."

Sleeping Late? Serve Special Muffin Brunch

Lazy summer days when you have a chance to sleep late call for brunch rather than breakfast.

Here's a brunch dish festive enough to be called "Sunday Special." It stars tongue and dried beef, toasted English muffin along with peas and horseradish mustard.

Cook tongue by simmering it gently in water until tender, advises Reba Staggs, meat authority. Tongue may also be purchased already cooked in glass jars.

Sunday Brunch Special

12 slices cooked tongue
4 ounces dried beef, shredded
3 English muffins, cut in half
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk
1 cup seasoned cooked peas
2 teaspoons horseradish mustard

Heat tongue slices in broiler while toasting English muffins. Melt butter or margarine in saucepan. Stir in flour. Add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add dried beef, peas and horseradish mustard. Heat through. Place two tongue slices on toasted side of each muffin half. Spoon creamed dried beef over tongue. 6 sandwiches.

TALENTED AND BUSY! — Talented Miss Margaret Romero, Colorado College student and Ft. Carson organist, is a young lady who has her "ups and downs" these days. One of the college students employed at the Summit of Pikes Peak, she ascends and descends the Peak daily. She attended the Liberace concert bemoaning the fact that she had been "snowed on, hailed on, and rained on" all day Wednesday.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Strictly for Girls!

DEAR ABBY: I am 17. I copied someting out of your book, DEAR TEENAGER, and typed it up and I carry it with me. It has helped me a lot. Two of my girl friends did the same thing. You would be doing many girls a big favor if you would print it in you column. So many girls are having trouble in this line. Thank you, Abby.

"Girls need to 'prove their love' through illicit sex relations like a moose needs a hatrack. Why not 'prove your love' by sticking your head in the oven and turning on the gas? Or playing leap frog in the traffic? It's about as safe.

"Clear the cobwebs out of your head. Any fellow who asks you to 'prove your love' is trying to take you for the biggest, most gullible fool who ever walked. That 'proving' bit is one of the oldest and rottenest lines ever invented! Does he love you? It doesn't sound like it. Someone who loves you wants whatever is best for you. But now figure it out. He wants you to:

Commit an immoral act . . .
Surrender your virtue . . .
Throw away your self-respect . . .
Risk the loss of your precious reputation . . .
And risk getting into trouble . . .

"Does that sound as though he wants what's best for you? This is the laugh of the century. He wants what's best for him: he wants a thrill he can brag about at your expense . . . Love? Who's kidding whom?

"A guy who loves a girl would sooner cut off his right arm than hurt her. In my opinion, this self - serving so - and - so has proved that he doesn't love you. The predictable aftermath of "proof" of this kind always finds Don Juan tiring of his sport. That's when he drops you, picks up his line, and goes casting elsehwere for bigger and equally silly fish.

"If he loves you, let him prove HIS love—by marching you to the ALTAR!"

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who talks about himself all the time. He doesn't even listen when someone else is talking. He just waits for them to get through so he can talk. And he doesn't ever talk about anything except himself. Otherwise he is a nice person. He is intelligent, good - looking, and takes great pride in his clothes and grooming. He would be perfect if he overcame this fault. How can I tell him about it in a nice way? —GOOD FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Tell him he is practically perfect, but his "I's" are too close together.

DEAR ABBY: At a neighborhood get-together this she-cat latched herself onto my husband. (She's married, too.) My husband didn't exactly push her away, but it was plain that she did the pursuing. Suddenly they both disappeared. It seems that he lured him into another room just to "talk." I know nothing went on, but I was miserable. When we got home I told him how hurt and humiliated I was. He said I was "narrow-minded" and that he couldn't very well have hurt her feelings by refusing to listen to her. Don't you think he owes me more than he owes her? This same feline is to be at another get-together we plan to attend. Please tell me what to do, or I might take matters into my own hands and wind up in jail. Thank you kindly. —HURT

DEAR HURT: Of course your husband "owes" you more than he owes her. But he knows that. He should have given her the straight arm instead of the soft shoulder. But if it happens again, I suggest the following simple, forthright statement: "I'M JEALOUS — so cut it out!"

The bidding:

Opening lead: Ten of ♦

A great many safety plays are designed to avoid a finesse. Today's hand, however, presents a rather different twist. Declarer finds himself in a position to take an early finesse in a side suit for the purpose of determining whether he can afford to make a safety play in trumps. But enough of these abstractions. Let us get down to cases.

South opened with one heart and North, holding the equivalent of an opening bid with protection in four suits, preferred a descriptive response of two notrump to a temporizing bid of two clubs. After this response, South could see at a glance that the partnership had sufficient high card strength to justify a slam but deferred the final commitment for a moment by rebidding the hearts. Having an unbalanced hand himself, he preferred to play the slam at that suit if North should support it. When North did support hearts his course was clear.

The ten of diamonds was opened and declarer won it in dummy. He could see that there were two chances for the contract: One, hearts; if that suit could be picked up without the loss of a trick, he was home; two, if a trick had to be lost in hearts, he would have to fall back on the club finesse.

Acting under the impulse which seems natural to most players in a slam contract, South started with the trumps, playing the king from dummy. When East showed out, South's name was added to the casualty list. North expressed himself sharply as to partner's technique, insisting that he should have employed the textbook safety play by leading the ace of hearts first. Such play limits the loss of one trick even if the outstanding trumps are in one hand.

Though South had been guilty of an error, North's indictment was not properly framed. Declarer should first have tried the club finesse. If it should lose, then delcarer must go all out to pick up the heart suit and the play of the king of hearts would be indicated. But if the club finesse wins, as it would have in this case, then declarer can afford to lose one trump trick, and he should therefore execute the trump safety play which insures against the loss of more than one trick in the suit.

The proper play at trick two, therefore, was a low club from dummy.

More Hot Dogs Used in July Than Other Months

About two billion frankfurters were consumed in July alone—that's a good reason for naming it National Hot Dog Month.

This is also the hot dog eatin'-est country in the world, with annual consumption reaching 14.4 billion.

Convenient, ready-to-eat, versatile and flavorful, frankfurters can go into almost any kind of main dish. In this barbecue dish, taste-testers, according to meat expert, Reba Staggs, found them very appetizing. As a kabob, they're easily threaded and quickly cooked.

Frankly Delicious Barbecue

8 to 10 frankfurters, sliced ½-inch thick
1 cup thinly sliced onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1-3 cup catchup
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 can (16 ounces) barbecue beans

Brown onion and green pepper lightly in butter or margarine. Add sliced frankfurters, catchup, Worcestershire sauce and beans. Cook just until heated through. 4 to 6 servings.

Tangy Frankfurter Kabobs

1 pound frankfurters
2 small onions, cut in quarters
8 small sweet pickles
1-3 cup catchup
Dash of hot sauce, if desired
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 teaspoon brown sugar
8 six-inch metal skewers

Cut each frankfurter into 3 pieces. Thread frankfurter pieces, onion quarters and pickles alterntely on skewers. Mix together catchup, hot sauce, vinegar and brown sugar. Brush kabobs with sauce. Place 3 inches from heat and broil 2 to 3 minutes on each side. 8 to 10 kabobs.

SHARE-A-PLANT

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Each spring citizens of Arlington are invited to participate in a "plant giveaway." Anyone having surplus plants is asked to bring them in. Residents are invited to come and select plants whether they themselves had any to give away.

The idea originated with a long-time Arlington resident—Mrs. Helen Wessler — who believes that a part of gardening is to share what you have with others.

CANADIAN MOONLIGHTING

TORONTO, Canada (AP) — Moonlighting—or working at two or more jobs—is less prevalent in Canada than in the United States, according to a Canadian government study. The study showed that an average of 2.6 per cent of all Canadian workers held more than one job, as compared with an average of 5.7 per cent in the United States.

"BIG SCRUB" IS BIGGEST

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Ocala National Forest — familiarly known as the "Big Scrub" —covers 36,2000 acres of central Florida's lake and hill region. This southernmost national forest has one of the largest deer herds in the East, some of the best bass fishing, and the largest stand of sand pine in the world. More than 20,000 acres of ponds and lakes, 50 miles of spring runs, and 150 miles of rivers give the angler ample elbow room. Thirteen hunting camps are open in season for deer, squirrel, fox, bobcat, quail, and migratory waterfowl.

Crisp Textured Salami Does Well in Salad

Summertime has been aptly called salad time. Those bouquets of greens and vegetables, many of them from your own garden, are easily gathered for salad making.

When you add salami to a vegetable salad, you make a main dish out of it, advises Reba Staggs, home economist, and at the same time, give it a nutritional boost in the form of protein.

Salami is sometimes made of beef, at other times, of pork. There are some salamis which use a combination of both meats. The processing of this sausage gives interesting texture to a salad while the flavors of smoking and curing add an appetizing touch to the vegetables.

Salami Salad

½ pound salami, cut julienne style
½ medium cucumber, peeled and sliced
1 medium sized tomato, cubed
½ medium green pepper, coarsely chopped
1 medium head lettuce, broken into bite-sized pieces
¼ teaspoon onion salt

Toss all ingredients lightly.

Dressing

1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened
1-3 cup chili sauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Mix all ingredients together and pour over salad.

Strawberries are delicious served with orange juice for breakfast and both fruits offer generous amounts of ascorbic acid (Vitamin C). Add the orange juice just before serving the berries.

A FAIR ENOUGH JOB

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Lyn Antonson, a student at Smith College, thinks she has one of the great summer jobs. As a staff member of the Travel Department of the Mechanix Bank she was sent to spend a week at the New York World's Fair—all expenses paid and with instructions to see as many exhibits as possible and eat in as many restaurants as she could. When she returned to Concord, she was equipped as an expert adviser to local Fair visitors.

Vorhes, Waymire to Open Branch Stores in New Plaza

Two local stores have announced they will open branch departments in the Pikes Peak Plaza approximately the last of August or first of September. Jack Waymire, CC Waymire of the Waymire Store, 24 S. Tejon St., and Roy W. Allen, executive president of the Vorhes Shoe Stores, have signed leases for the shopping center stores.

Both stores will be located in the new plaza shopping center in the 2200 block of East Platte Avenue near the new Super's Safeway, Furr's Cafeteria and Ward stores.

Officials of both stores said they both believe in the future growth and development of the Colorado Springs area and are planning their stores to take care of customers living in the northeast, and southeast area.

Near both stores an exclusive ladies clothing store, the details of which will be announced later, will be located.

The Waymire store, to be called Waymire's of Pikes Peak Plaza, will feature 2,850 square feet of interior space with Colonial walnut furniture complimented with red carpet and brass appointments.

Both store's construction is under the supervision of Ron Houseman, United developer. Further details of the Vorhes store will be announced later.

Waymire will continue to feature quality name brand clothing such as Hart Schaffner and Marx, Arrow, McGregor, Stetson, Jocky, and many others that are carried in their downtown location.

For Vorhes, this will be the third family shoe operation in Colorado Springs. The Vorhes Shoe Company is a home-owned corporation and the downtown store was established in 1890.

Allen, together with Robert Aluise, assistant to Allen, have turned from the east and middle west where they have bought new fall shoes for the new store.

Allen has been with the Vorhes Shoe Company for 25 years. He and his wife live at 1117 N. Meade.

Glenn Lilly, longtime employe of Waymire, will be the new store manager. Lilly, a native of Texas, was employed in the clothing business in that state before coming to Colorado Springs in 1947. He operated a motel court, the Van Horn Cottages in Manitou Springs, until 1957. He has been employed by Waymires since 1959.

Lilly is active with local service clubs and is president of the Manitou chapter of the Kiwanis Club.

He lives at 2922 King St., with his wife Pearl. He has one married son who resides in Manitou Springs.

Major Corp. To Make Carbide Tire Studs

The growing interest in use of metal tire studs for increased traction and winter driving safety on icy roads has brought a major American corporation into the manufacture of tungsten carbide tire studs it was announced here today by Robert Quayle, president of the Franklin Appliance Division of Studebaker Corporation.

Quayle said his division of Studebaker has acquired licenses to manufacture the popular Secomet carbide-tipped tire stud from the parent company in Finland.

After a period of preliminary testing of the studs in cooperation with major tire manufacturers, orders for an additional test marketing quantity of more than 6,000,000 studs have been placed with Franklin by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. and the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., among others according to Quayle.

These studs, which are inserted with a power gun into pre-moulded holes in the treads of snow tires, are quiet in operation, have no marked effect on dry pavement, and will almost double the stopping ability and cornering traction of automobiles on glare ice, Quayle said.

Use of metal tire studs, which originated several years ago in Finland, has spread rapidly through Scandinavian countries for winter driving. The use of studded tires by competitors in automobile rally contests, both in Europe and Canada, first brought attention of U.S. tire manufacturers to this possible solution of ice traction problems, Quayle said.

Market Closes Sluggish Week, Losses Slight

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market has just wound up a sluggish week with a slight los but managed to hold a gain for the month of July.

Wall Street's analysts saw stocks as going through still another period of consolidation and the attitude in the financial community was one of watchful waiting.

This was reflected by the fall in volume to 20,781,050 shares from 22,264,110 the previous week. It was the lightest trading since the week ended June 3 when 20,158,810 shares changed hands.

In the week just ended, the Dow Jones industrial average took a slight loss of 4.54 at 841.10 but its net gain for July was 9.60.

The final reading for the month showed a "correction" of the latest historic peak of 851.35 achieved July 17.

Although the latest week recorded a loss, the week ended on an uptick of three straight sessions of irregular advance. The rise was cautious and much of it was ascribed to purely technical factors. For seven straight sessions prior to the string of gains more stocks had declined than advanced.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week was off .9 to 319.3, its second straight weekly decline.

Of 1,525 issues traded, 729 fell and 630 rose.

Early in the week, a decline in weekly steel production was reported but buying of machine tools, an important indicator of industry's plans for expansion, was reported booming.

Automatic Control Set for Region Power Stations

Automatic equipment designed to control the output of five hydro-electric power plants in the Bureau of Reclamations South Platte Transmission System has been shipped by Leeds and Northrup Company, Phila.

The equipment will be installed at the Bureau's Region Seven Flatiron Dispatch Office located near Loveland. The plants to be controlled are Flatiron and Estes in Colorado and Seminoe-Kortes, Fremont and Alcova in Wyoming.

Costing $78,000, the equipment employs the latest transistorized components. The completely solid - state "closed - Loop" control will provide optimum power plant output while maintaining the correct tie-line schedules to neighboring systems. Fully automatic operation is expected by Oct. 1, this year.

Dr. Maynard Miller, professor of geology at Michigan State University, says the most widely accepted theory about earthquakes is that they are caused by titanic shifts in the earth's crust along cracks called faults. Portions of the crust are under constant tension. When the strain becomes intolerable, the rock gives way at some weak point.

$7 Million Paid In Auto Mishap Insurance Claims

Automobile insurance companies last year paid almost 7 million liability claims for automobile accidents. This, according to the 1964 edition of Insurance Facts, represented about 1.5 million bodily injury claims and 5.5 million property damage liability claims.

The booklet, published by the Insurance Information Institute, reports that for every 1,000 insured cars there were 23 bodily injury claims averaging $1,150. There were also 77 property damage liability claims for each 1,000 insured cars and the average cost of these was $179.

The overall economic loss from traffic accidents last year reached $9 billion. This is equivalent to a bill of $47.42 for every man, woman and child in the nation.

In the last 25 years, the booklet notes, the cost of property damage — both insured and uninsured — and the cost of legal, medical, surgical and hospital services, loss of income because of absence from work and the administrative costs of insurance totalled $113,390,000,000.

American motorists invested almost $7 billion in automobile insurance protection in 1963. This is about twice as much as was spent ten years ago and more than ten times the amount paid 20 years ago.

Automobile insurance constitutes the largest single classification in the property-liability business, according to Insurance Facts, an informational booklet about the propery and liability insurance business.

Premiums for all classes of property and liability coverage totalled $17 billion in 1963, an increase of 6.9 per cent over the previous year. This insurance was purchased from approximately 3,400 insurance companies.

In 1963 the insurance business paid 1,605,211 claims for automobile accidents involving bodily injury, representing an average of 23 claims for every 1,000 insured autos in the country.

The fact book points out that New York led all states in this type of claim. There were 42 claims paid for each 1,000 insured cars in that state. The fewest paid claims were registered in Wyoming, only seven for each 1,000 cars.

The average cost of settling a bodily injury claim was $1,150 in 1962, the most recent year for which this information is available. In the last ten years investor owned companies selling this type of insurance suffered an underwriting loss of about $900 million.

Last year the companies paid 5,328,964 claims for property damage averaging 77 claims for every 1,000 insured autos. The cost of settling a property damage liablility claim averaged $179.

An important development recorded in the 1964 fact book is the rising incidence of automobile thefts. The fact book reports nearly 400,000 cars were stolen in the United States in 1963 — one every 90 seconds. Auto thefts increased 11.5 per cent over 1962 to reach a record 398,418 in 1963. About 10 per cent of all the cars stolen are never recovered — a loss last year of more than $37 million.

30-MILLIONTH CUSTOMER — Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Gerdes was named here Friday as the honorary 30,000,000th passenger to board a Braniff International Airways flight since the airline began service over 36 years ago. Gerdes who resides 2124 Alpine Drive, was presented a commemorative certificate in airport ceremonies conducted by Norman Coleman, president of Chamber of Commerce, and Braniff District Sales Manager Warren A. Jensen. The honoed passenger boarded the Braniff flight 161 which departed for Houston, Texas at 1:34 p.m. Braniff statisticians had predicted that the 30,000,000th passenger would be carried during the mid-day period Friday, but as it was not possible to predict the exact place or moment or to select the exact person, similar ceremonies were held in the 50 cities which Braniff serves in the United States and Latin America. Braniff, now one of the 10 largest airlines in the world in number o passengers carried each year, was founded in 1928. The airline carried 10,000,000 passengers in its first 27 years and then took only five more years to reach the 20,000,000 mark. The third 10,000,000 has come about in only four years. Theft Dressed Up LegallyIs Still Just Theft

By SAM CAMPBELL

One reason that oppression of business is so widely tolerated is that the businessman himself doesn't know what is going on.

His condition is like that of a person who has a fatal disease, but doesn't know it. He feels the symptoms, but he can't relate them to the cause. And so he wastes away in painful ignorance when he should be diligently seeking a cure.

Part of his difficulty in understanding arises from the fact that interpreters of the business scene have not told the story of present conditions in language that is clear. Let me give you one example on that point.

Explanation Of Theft

Frequently this column uses the term "theft". The word means the taking of property without the consent of the owner and has been defined not infrequently in this case.

The definition is both accurate and concise, yet it fails in clarity because it does not convey the several and devious means by which theft can be accomplished.

For instance, the ordinary idea on theft is that the thief illegally breaks into your house or car and carries some object away. That indeed is one form of theft, but there are other forms as well.

One other variety is legal theft as when a person is deprived of his belongings by due process of law.

Invisible Theft

Yet another form is partial theft wherein a person continues to occupy the visible aspects of his property, but is deprived of some future potential. An example of this might be the widow who lives on a farm, but is swindled of her oil rights. Yes, she continues to occupy the premises. Nonetheless she has been robbed.

Theft is most subtle and especially hard to recognize when it is both legal and partial.

An instance of this kind occurs when a planning commission lays a precise plan for a roadway across your property. In this case the taking is cloaked with carefully legality. Further, the taking is completely invisible. A passerby or even your neighbor may never know what has happened to you. You may continue to physically occupy the property in peace.

Nevertheless — just as in the case of the widow who was swindled of her invisible oil rights — you, too, have been robbed. At some future date when you apply for a building permit to enlarge or remodel, the permit will not be allowed until you give up your land for roadway.

The fact that the theft was legal, the fact that it was partial, the fact that it was slow, the fact that it went undetected by most other persons do not alter the substance of the matter; property has changed hands against the consent of the owner; a robbery has occured.

This type of invasion is only preliminary. It establishes the precedent of what is to follow. Thus the late John F. Kennedy claimed zoning and planning laws as the legal forerunner of the now current race legislation.

The fatal disease of business, therefore, is lack of understanding as to what is taking place. Indeed, theft is the taking of property without the consent of the owner. Another way to express the same thought is to say that theft is the laying of an unjustified claim upon your property.

SHORT BOOM

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Secretary of State Dean Rusk says he's not surprised that President Johnson eliminated him as a possible Democratic vice presidential candidate.

Rusk laughingly told his news conference Friday that he was the subject of the "smallest and shortest boom in history." He said his candidacy was launched by one sentence in a news story last Saturday, he knocked it down in a television interview Sunday, and Thursday Johnson "confirmed" the end of the boom.

Workers Income Up 2.2 Billion From Last May

During May, American breadwinners brought home $2.2 billion — or 5.8 per cent — more income than they did in the same month a year ago. What's more, this robust rise in personal income came in the face of sharply lower farm receipts and severe cutbacks in defense-related employment.

Here's proof, if any was needed, of the board, solid base of the nation's current economic expansion.

According to Business Week's latest Measure of Personal Income, all but one of the 50 states showed a rise in income in May (the most recent month for which figures are available). Across the country, nearly 1½ million more persons collected paychecks during May than did a year ago.

The biggest employment lift came from trades and services, where jobs expanded by more than 700,000 over the year. Some credit for the gain accrues to the New York World's Fair, which created 35,000 jobs at the fiargrounds alone, plus many more in establishments catering to fairgoers.

Gains here, as well as in education, manufacturing, and construction, were more than enough nationally to offset losses in farming and defense.

These two soft spots continued to pinch pocketbooks in farm states and several Eastern states. Nationally, cash receipts from farm marketings dropped 2 per cent below last year, but the pinch was more painful in the heavily agricultural states. In North Dakota, the only state where personal income actually fell in May, farm receipts dropped 44 per cent below a year ago.

Ironically, the state with the biggest gain for May was the one in the worst physical shape: Alaska. The crash program designed to rebuild after the disatrous Good Friday earthquake created jobs for thousands of construction and government workers.

The average age at marriage has been declining in the United States over the past 50 years, a report by Robert C. Cook, President of the Population Reference Bureau, points out. Today the age at which women most frequently get married is 18.

Light Being Shed on Alaskan Quake Costs

The answers aren't all in yet by any means, but with several government and military agencies still closely analyzing what happened, along with real estate and mortgage loan groups who stand to suffer losses, much light is expected to be shed on earthquake - resistant building construction.

"Portfolio," a publication of New York Life Insurance Company's real estate and mortgage loan department, touches on some points made by this company whose interest in the subject stems from its investments in the state of over $21 million, of which $9.5 million is in mortgage loans on 81 residential and 13 business properties.

Of this amount, mortgage loan investments in the Anchorage and vicinity disaster area amounted to $4,150,000 of which 53 were FHA residential home loans totaling approximately $1.2 million.

Only three homes were totally destroyed, representing about $90,000. The remainder of the properties in the damaged area were apartments, office building, a motel and a Post Office building. Some of these suffered minor damage, and the land on which they are located may by condemned by the authorities.

The quake did not shake New York Life's belief in the mortgage investment future of growing Alaska. Richard W. Baker, Jr., vice president in charge of real estate and mortgage loans, has stated the New York Life will continue making both FHA home and apartment loans and conventional commercial loans in Aslaska, and has recently even slightly increased the allotment for such investment funds in that state.

Whether the company will tighten its lending requirements in Alaska will depend upon further findings of geological and construction experts and FHA decisions.

Meanwhile shortly after the quake New York Life sent a team of real estate and mortgage loan department officials to the damaged areas. Their preliminary observations included the following:

1. Of importance to construction in all quake - prone areas strata. The actual subterranean fault that caused the damage in Anchorage may have been a hundred miles or more away, but because of the unusual depth of soil under Anchorage — several hundred feet — its effect on the underlying soil there was like that of a bowl of jelly. This accounts for the large amount of damage caused by landslides and slippage and the lateral movement of the buildings.

2. In Alaska where lumber is plentiful, most home construction is frame and this, when properly nailed and braced, can take a lot of jarring and twisting. Masonry elements such as chimneys, doorsteps and cinder block foundations lack resiliency and are liable to damage. Fortunately, brick veneer construction is almost non-existent in Alaska.

3. Damage to large structures such as apartment buildings was found to be mainly cracks and breaks at column connections. Evidentally more attention should be given to stiffening the entire frame and to provide for lateral thrusts at each separate floor.

4. In the lateral movement of large buildings due to land slippage certain shear - resistant concrete walls were found to have a stabilizing influence, as do also concrete-enclosed stair wells and elevator shafts. But in larger buildings where each floor acts as a rigid diaphragm, such walls have to be of considerable strength, as do the column connections.

5. In large buildings with several wings it was found that the lateral displacement of the wings was often in different directions, indicating a superiority of compact design as against that of varying wings.

As government engineers and geologists continue their study of the Alaskan earthquake, and as construction experts bring in their findings, it is possible that changes will be made in the Uniform Building Code for earthquake areas on the Pacific coast.

Also, a stricter adherence to this code should provide mortgage investors with added protection. And, of course, as many this code should provide mortgeologists have pointed out, on this still-shrinking cooling planet earth, quakes may yet occur in areas other than those now known to be vulnerable.

However, New York Life's confidence that more earthquake-resistant construction can be achieved is reflected in its decision to continue its mortgage lending activity in Alaska. It feels that when the land sways, the rightly constructed building can often roll with the blow.

New Tire Design Developed by B. F. Goodrich

The B. F. Goodrich Company announced today the development of a new type of passenger car tire that provides a higher degree of safety and 50 per cent more mileage than is possible with tires of conventional construction. It is reported to be the first in the industry.

P. W. Perdriau, president of B. F. Goodrich Tire Company, said the tire, which features steel - cord bands under the tread, is a result of the company's improvements on the radial tire principle known to the tire industry but never successfully produced commercially in passenger sizes in the United States.

He said the company may offer radial passenger tires for sale in limited quantities in 1965. "We are currently expanding our range of sizes for further testing on fleets, private cars and at our test track at Pecos, Tex.," he said.

The company's design improvements in the radial tire principle have been proved in more than 100 million miles of testing and actual service in truck tires, he said. B. F. Goodrich began commercial production of radial truck tires a year ago, following several years of extensive testing.

"The engineering, construction and performance of a radial tire is entirely different from that of a conventional tire," Perdriau said at Akron, Ohio. "The cords in a radial tire run at right angles from the centerline of the tread, like a zebra's stripes, while the cords in a conventional tire run at about 36 degrees, criss - crossing in a herringbone pattern."

The radial ply construction is used in combination with inextensible steel cord bands under the tread. "The result is a tire that rolls as easily as a hoop. The steel, of course, provides resistance to tread punctures and increases tread area's resistance to damage from sharp objects and chuckholes," he said.

Developmental passenger car radial tires of B. F. Goodrich design roll about 25 per cent more easily than conventional tires. This means a savings in fuel," he said. "Tests also indicate that about half again as many miles can be expected from the radial passenger car tire."

THE WALLS WILL GO UP NEXT — The new Merritt Packing and Crating Service Inc., building, unique in design in Colorado Springs, await the concert slab walls which will be swung into place by a Weicker Company crane. The $170,000 building is being erected by the Rocky Mountain Constructors of Denver. It will contain 17,100 square feet and is a branch structure to the Denver headquarters building, a 60,00 square foot enclosure.

Merritt Building Set For September Completion

By DICK MOORE
Gazette Telegraph
Business Editor

Sept. 1 is the date set for Merritt Packing an Crating Service, Inc. to move into their new 17,100 square foot building now being erected at 602 Industrial Rd.

The estimated $170,00 building is being erected by the Rocky Mountain Constructors of Denver under the direction of Architect J. C. Kupfer Jr., and engineer S. J. Flook, both of Denver.

The building is composed of pre-stressed, all concrete and brick materials and is the only structure of this design now in Colorado Springs. It will feature facilities such as air conditioning, push button phones, an inter-communication system, an asphalted area surrounding the exterior and a 100,000 pound 60-foot electronic public scale costing an estimated $20,000.

This bonded scale, also the only one of its type in Colorado Springs, is open to the public for the weighing of trucks and other heavy equipment, and insures correct weights with no possibility of human error.

Another facility at the new building is a recessed rail siding allowing the use of fork lifts both inside and outside the warehouse.

A specialized packing and crating area plus complete modern van and door-to-door container facilities are also part of this modern plant designed by Keith S. Merritt, president and founder of the headquarters plant in Denver.

Individually locked rooms provide complete protection for goods being processed for shipment in the new building.

The new Merritt warehouse will have more than 2,000,000 pound capacity for containerized household goods storage. In addition to the recessed rail siding for more efficient loading and unloading of rail cars, a feature unique with the Merritt operation in the Rocky Mountain Region, the warehouse is equipped with a special electric forklift, making it possible to take advantage of the full building height in stacking storage containers.

Pioneering the door - to - door container shipment industry in the Rocky Mountain area, Merritt now represents 22 of the top door-to-door container shipping companies throughout the world.

"Door-to-door container shipping is the fastest, safest and most efficient way to ship household goods to any part of the world," according to Merritt. "By this method, containers are loaded and sealed at the customer's home and shipped to destinations where they are unsealed and opened.

Loss of any goods is eliminated and handling of the goods is reduced from approximately 10 handlings to only two, further minimizing handling damage."

Much of the equipment used by the firm was designed by Merritt, and includes van and door-to-door container trailers and many items for specialized handling and improved efficiency.

Due to the greater efficiency of the new Merritt operation, officials of the firm indicate that the expected future growth of the company will exceed that of the past years. The firm presently employs approximately 75 persons - 22 of which are employed at Colorado Springs.

In charge of the new building here is Philip W. (Phil) Terry, branch manager and a director of the Merritt Corporation. Terry, a native of Missouri, came to Colorado Springs in 1951 after serving with the U.S. Navy in the South Pacific War Theater during World War II.

While Terry was stationed at Prospect Lake Naval Training Center, before his discharge from the service in 1952, his wife Erma carried on the familys' first operational work with Merritt Company by phone. Terry took over the work of operating the warehouse at the time of its opening here 12 years ago. The couple have two daughters and reside at Route 3, Box 55A, Colorado Springs.

Since its opening in Colorado Springs, the business has showed a yearly 10 per cent increase in business and last year an approximate 5,000,000 freight poundage in freight was handled.

The Merritt Company was individually owned until its incorporation in 1963, at which time Terry was made a director of the corporation.

Merritt, agent for worldwide National Van Lines since 1946, is now the third largest moving and storage company in the Rocky Mountain Region. The Company owns eight diesel tractor-trailer units leased to National Van Lines in full-time national moving service. The van lines also represent 22 carriers shipping to all parts of the free world. The local office holds a yearly joint packing and crating contract for local personnel of Ent, Ft. Carson and the Air Force Academy.

In 1939, Merritt started his own business in Denver with a small ad in the telephone directory and one small truck, primarily packing fine china and other fragile items. Business increased at a rapid rate and within a short time it became necessary to expand.

Recently he opened a new 60,000 square foot warehouse and office located at 4700 Ivy Street, Denver, this modern warehouse is the only facility of its kind in the United States for the completely containerized storage of household goods, according to Merritt.

Scholar to Talk About Coming British Elections

A British scholar who specializes in politics and economics will discuss "The Coming British Elections: conservative or Labor?" at 8 p.m. Monday in Rastall Center on the college campus.

The lecture, open to the public without charge, is sponsored by the Colorado College Summer Session. A question and answer period will follow the talk.

The speaker is Dr. Royden Harrison, senior lecturer in public administration and economics at Sheffield University in England. He is the author of books on British politics and numerous articles in scholarly journals.

Dr. Harrison, who is attending national political conventions this summer in the United States, has attended the conventions of both the Conservative and Liberal Parties in England.

A graduate of Oxford University with M.A. and D. of Phil. degrees, the visiting lecturer spent a part of last year as a British and European history at the University of Wisconsin.

Ft. Carson Unit Receives Strike Command Citation

The 2d Battalion 11th Infantry was one of 10 units to win Strike Command citations for "exceptional achievement" during Exercise Desert Strike in the initial list released by General Paul D. Adams, commander-in-chief of Strike Command.

The 2d of the 11th was one of the leading assault battalions in the Colorado River crossing. It was cited for achieving all of its assigned objectives early in the exercise. One particularly deep objective was an important break-through in enemy defenses.

Nine other units cited on the first list were the 838th Air Division at Pope AFB, the 84th Engineer Battalion from Fort Ord, the 1457th Engineer Battalion of the Utah National Guard, the 481st Tactical Fighter Squadron from Cannon AFB, the 41st Signal Battalion from Fort Lewis, 613th Tactical Fighter Squadron at England AFB, the 2d Reconnaissance Squadron from Ft. Hood, the 118th Military Police Company from Ft. Bragg and C Company of the 4th Engineer Battalion at Fort Lewis.

First Carson men to receive the Joint Service Commendation Medal were SFC D. J. Radford, 1st Battalion 10th Infantry, Capt. William Hornish, 3d Brigade S3, and CWO James Jacobs, 5th Aviation pilot.

Gen. Adams praised the river crossing accomplished by the 5th Division, calling it "one of the best executed operations I have seen anywhere in peace or war.

ATTENTION! COLORADO ACREAGE OWNERS NEXT TO CITIES

You can make $2500 per year and more from five acres of cropland growing nursery stock and Christmas trees under a Santa's Forest® Franchise. Locally grown trees are superior because there is no freight, no waste, no shedding, a minimum of deterioration, and a reduced fire hazard. Families can also select their growing nursery stock and Christmas trees.
This is an exceptional opportunity for a conscientious man with acreage close to a city. It can be a fine retirement program, a family project, or a way to self-employment. Similar programs have proved themselves very profitable in other cities throughout the U.S. One half of most of the profits from a Santa's Forest® is tax free.
The Santa's Forest® Franchise Program is sponsored by a reputable company with no gimmicks or fine print. If you feel you and your land could qualify, contact Great Lakes Nursery Corp., 2640 Elmwood Lane, Denver 21 Colorado.

Japanese Assailant Found to Be Insane

TOKYO (AP) — Tokyo authorities said today they have decided not to prosecute the Japanese youth who stabbed U.S. Ambassador Edwin O. Reischauer last March because tests show the 19-year-old was mentally unbalanced.

The decision reportedly was reached after a psychiatric examination showed that the assailant, Norikazu Shiotani, was suffering from a severe case of schizophrenia.

Looking at Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER

Dennis Weaver Takes TV Co-Star Into Home

HOLLYWOOD — Dennis Weaver moved his Kentucky Jones co-star, 10-year-old Ricky Der, into his home, bag and baggage. In their TV series, Dennis adopts the little Chinese boy, who's been living in a motel here with his mother. He was unhappy with the lodgins, so Dennis took him home and he's palsy walsy with 11-year-old Robbie Weaver. It's a scream how portective Dennis is about the little boy, who is great on the show. He keeps warning his wife Gerry, "Now don't you let Ricky hurt himself." . . . Vic Mature went to Spain for a picture, but the camers haven't rolled. From Granada, he postcards: "I'm staying here until all the money is deosited in the states. No actor should leave the United States until all the money's in the bank." . . . . John Ericson, so good in "Dr. Lao," is about to make a picture in Spain opposite Terry Moore, with King Vidor directing. And I'll be darned if it isn't a western called "Apache Rising," one of Gen. Eisenhower's favorite yarns.

DAVID WESTHEMIMER, author of "Von Ryan's Express," is writing a TV series, a comedy about an Italian prison camp called Campo 44. Buzz Kulik will direct the pilot and produce the series. Westheimer's publisher, Doubleday, keeps wanting him to come back to New York. He said, "If you've got the money, I've got the time." So far there's been no check in the mail. Maybe they're mad because he sold the picture rights to "Express" himself . . . If you're in the market for an island, Alma Diebolt of Vancouver, B. C., is the girl to contact. She runs a shopping service that finds everything (camels, embroidery thread, bulldozers) for everybody (Bing Crosby, Raymond Burr, Phil Harris), and that includes islands. She said: "They're rather scarce, but highly prized by those who own 'em. Please tell your collector friends, like Sir Howard Hallstrom, that we will locate any item he wants — maybe even Sir Winston Churchill's topper."

TOM SIMCOX starts his Universal - International contract playing a leading role with Jimmy Stewart in "Fields of Honor," a real break. He just finished a Hitchcock TV show segment with Ed Begley, and tells me he's officially engaged to that talented actress, Kit Smythe. She's got the diamond to prove it. They've been going together five years: "Another five and we should be ready for marriage," said Tom. But when I pinned him down, he said the wedding takes place next spring . . . . Jimmy Stewart got a call from a New York reporter checking a tip that he was being urged by a committee to run for governor of Pennsylvania. Stewart replied: "The question did come up about my running for governor — quite a while back. It was my uncle who called me and said, 'You oughta run.' It was a nice compliment but I said it might be better if I made a success in the business I'm in first. That ended my campaign."

Cesar ROMERO'S home from his tour in "Strictly Dishonorable," a play he's been doing off and on for 34 years. His troop of six played Holyoke, Mass.; Vineland, Ontario; Nyack, N. Y., and Elitches Gardens in Denver. They'd had a fire in the Nyack theater, and the air conditioning was out, so business was off. But in Denver they played to packed houses. "I was really touched by those audiences," said Cesar. "They're sensational!" . . . . Danny Kaye starts taping again next week and can hardly wait. His show was sold to the Scandinavian coutnries; is No. 1 in seven foreign countries.

BEN FINNEY sets me straight: "One does not go on safari in Nairobi. That's a city." Then he tells one about a kid thrown in a jail cell with a tough old criminal who asked what he'd done. 'I stole a transistor radio,' said the kid. 'You can buy one for six bucks. When you rob, rob big — like a bank,' said the old hand. 'I can't,' said the boy. 'I don't get out of school until 3 o'clock,' " . . . . . . When Fabian played a psychokiller in "Bus Stop" his fans were horrified. Now he'll do it again. Kills a man and strangles a woman in "The Virginian," . . From Paris, Abe Saperstein postcards: "What a shame the French are high pricing themselves out of the lucrative tourist trade. Everything worthwhile is skyhigh." Come now, Abe, with the money your Harlem Globtrotters make, you can afford it.

Slide Projector Families Takes On 'New Look'

By BART KINCH
United Press International

The Kodak Carousel family of slide projectors has taken on a slightly new look. The new line still retains the 80-slide circular tray but the rest of the unit is smaller, lighter and quieter in operation.

There are three projectors in the famous gravity-fed Carousel line with prices ranging from under $90 to almost $150 for the super deluxe model.

The bodies of the new projectors have been reduced in size by almost half, according to the manufacturer, and the weight has been reduced by six pounds for easier handling and carrying. The Carousel projectors now weigh 12 pounds.

The new models now available are the 600, the 700 and the 800. A brief note about each:

The Carousel 600 is the economy model and sells for under $90. It has a select button to advance slides and by pressing the button to its maximum position, it is possible to stop at any position in the circular tray of 80 slides. The projector comes supplied with a 500-watt DEK lamp, 12-foot power cord, one tray, and a choice of lenses.

The model 700 offers remote control, has forward - and- reverse slide selection and a high-low lamp and fan switch. The 700 also is equipped with a 500-watt DEK lamp, has a 12-foot remote control cord plus the other features of the 600 and sells for less than $125.

The Carousel 800 projector costing about $150 features remote control forward - and - reverse slide changing, an interval timer that enables the user to select projection durations of 5, 8 or 15 seconds plus all the other features of the 600 and 700 models.

All are constructed with a rugged, die-cast housing and feature a swing-away lamp and condenser compartment for the hard glass DEK lamps and a more efficient blower system. The new projectors are said to operate 40 per cent cooler than the older models.

Finally, the 700 and 800 models have a lamp circuit receptacle for use with the new Kodak Carousel Dissolve Control — an innovation for the amateur who wants the ultimate in slide showing but more suitable for professional or advertising and sales use.

The Dissolve Control, first of all, requires the simultaneous use of two projectors — which can be either 700s or 800s or one of each. The control allows the projectionist to make use of the motion picture dissolve technique of fading one scene into the next. Thus, there are no blank intervals on the screen when one slide is being replaced by the next.

This is how it works: Let us assume you have a Carousel 700 and an 800. Now, the 700 is in operation, projecting a scene on the screen. At the end of the selected time interval, the lamp of the 800 projector gradually brightens to superimpose a second image on the screen. At the same time, the lamp of the 700 projector gradually is dimmed and the first image fades from the screen. While the lamp is out in the 700 projector, the slide is changed and ready to repeat the process.

The Dissolve Control costs about $200, so for the amateur it is a luxury item — especially in view of the fact that a second projector also is needed. But for professional or business use, its place is apparent. With the Dissolve Control the projectionist can make use of animation, progressive disclosure, charts and graphs and comparison shots to illustrate various facets of business or sales.

Because the system makes use of two projectors, a 160-slide presentation is possible without changing trays. This is useful where continuous displays are set up. Of course, the system can be used in conjunction with synchronized tape for visio-audio presentations.

Academy Class To Take AF History Course

To many members of the Air Force Academy Class of 1968, the victories of World War II aerial combat are remembered only as brief sentences in high school history books.

So that these future officers (many born durning the last years of the war) may know and understand the history of the U.S. Air Force, the growth and development of the nation's air arm is traced through a 25-hour course during summer training.

Specially selected and trained upper classmen teach the first 23 hours of the course beginning with the early days of aviation from 1903 through World War I.

The struggle for recognition of the air arm in the 20s and early 30s and the role of air power pioneers such as Billy Mitchell is then traced. World War II operations such as the Doolittle Tokyo raid, the strategic bombing of Germany, the attack on the Poesti refineries are covered in detail.

Post War developments, such as the B-36 bomer and the first supersonic fighters, the air war in Korea, and the Air Force of today and the future, are also major topics.

To offer a personal insight into the demands of modern aerial warefare, the final two hours of the unique course are devoted to dicussion of the air war in Korea with pilots who actually took part in the conflict.

More Autos Than Ever Built by Industry in U. S.

DETROIT (UPI) — The American auto industry ended 1964 model production Friday by building more cars than ever before in history in one of the shortest production years on record.

Moreover, the mix of the cars reflected the trend of affluent Americans for more plush and posh at a higher price. Economy models and compacts fell off in production and sporty, luxurious and full-size models scored big gains.

Production of 1964 models totaled slightly under 8 million. Ward's Automotive Reports placed the figure at 7,891,200 units after the last car rolled off the assembly lines Friday, while Automotive Industries magazine was more conservative, placing the estimate at 7,877,987. Even the lower figure represented at 7 per cent increase over the previous record model run established last year, of about 7,340,000 new cars.

This despite the fact that this year's shutdown for model changeover to 1965 production was the earliest on record.

Chrysler's Dodge division showed the most spectacular percentage gain, 33 per cent over the 1963 model run. But Chevrolet, the most prolific auto division, was the overall champ, producing more than 2,326,000 new cars, more than the entire Ford Motor Co., the industry's second largest corporation.

MOUNTAIN STATES

DENVER (UPI)— Mountain States Telephone & Telegraph Co. announced Saturday it will spend $10.5 million on an immediate expansion program at its downtown Denver headquarters. President Walter K. Koch said the program includes an addition of seven stories to the five story administration building put up two years ago and an eight-story building nearby.

Science for You

By BOB BROWN

PROBLEM: The Airborne Paper Clip.

NEEDED: A magnet, paper, an iron paper clip, string, book, pencil.

DO THIS: Wrap the magnet so that it is hidden, arrange the string and clip so that the book and pencil hold them down, and you have a mystery trick.

WHAT HAPPENS: The magnet pulls against the iron paper clip, holding it up. The clip will stay suspended until it is moved far enough away from the magnet for gravity to exert a stronger pull than the magnet.

A collection of the "Science For You" experiments is in book form and sold in better bookstores. It is called Science Circus.

Three Records Are Broken in Denver

DENVER (AP) — Two—and possibly three — records were broken in Denver last month.

One was in the weather. The U.S. Weather Bureau said Denver experienced temperatures of 90 degrees or above on 27 days—the longest 90-or-above streak since the bureau began keeping records in 1871.

The second record was water consumption. Robert S. Millar, Denver Water Board manager, said capital city residents consumed 8.85 billion gallons during July. The previous record was 8.74 billion gallons in July 1963.

There were no figures to back up the third claimed record, but a beer company spokesman said that never before have so many persons bought quarter kegs of beer for patio parties.

Mothers of the program's child audiences make up about 30 per cent of the viewers of "Captain Kongaroo" on the CBS Television Network.

Ambulatory Patients Plan Own Recreation

Miss Curtis, who came here June 1 from a tour of duty in Wiesbaden, Germany, organized an Ambulatory Patients Advisory Council.

Staff Sgt. James Leslie was elected president and Spec. 4 Henry Fischer, public relations man, both to serve as long as they are at the hospital.

Each of the three military wards has a representative to serve as key man. This key man interviews all new patients for information on the kind of games he knows and prefers.

The current program includes bridge on Mondays, meetings on Tuesday, pinochle on Wednesdays and tournaments on Thursdays.

The program will be formally launched next Tuesday at 6:30 when representatives from the Ft. Carson Skydivers Club visit the hospital patients in the Red Cross lounge.

Miss Curtis, a Dallas resident, holds a bachelor's degree in sociology from Austin College in Texas and a master's degree in religious education from the Presbyterian School of Christian Education in Virginia.

She worked with juvenile delinquents in the Virginia State Reformatory before joining the Red Cross. She spent 30 months at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas, then went overseas to Wiesbaden, Germany, for two years.

WRONG CAN

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI) — Col. Roderick D. Eason and his wife had just put out the lights and retired for the night Thursday when squadrons of mosquitos began their nightly attack.

Eason was ready for them.

He fumbled around in the dark, found the push - button spray can he was looking for, and proceeded to counter-attack.

He buzz-bombed them in the air, on the walls and around the furniture.

When the Easons woke up the next morning, they found that the colonel had grabbed the wrong can. The bedroom was covered with blue paint.

DU to Teach Area of Mental Retardation

A new program for training students in the area of mental retardation will be established this fall at the University of Denver Graduate School of Social Work as a result of a one-year $24,287 grant from the Vocational Rehabilitation Administration (VRA) of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Under the grant terms, four students will receive traineeships and a field work unit for first and second year students will be established for the DU program at the State Home and Training School, Wheat Ridge, a state institution for mentally retarded children and adults.

A second one-year VRA grant of $49,497 was given to the DU school in the area of rehabilitation. The funds provide for eight student traineeships and salaries for two full-time field work instructors.

The University was one of 11 U.S. schools of social work awarded a grant to establish a program in mental retardation for social work students.

Mr. E. M. Sunley, director of the Graduate School of Social Work, believes the new program will attract more social work students to this crucial area.

At the State Home and Training School, DU social work students will not only have responsibility in handling intake cases, but will also assist in helping patients adjust to institutional life and in developing plans for the release of patients from the institution.

The program in mental retardation is the fourth DU program in the last two years which has received extensive expansion through federal grants. Other programs include corrections, child welfare and rehabilitation.

The DU Graduate School of Social Work expects the largest enrollment in its 33-year ihstory next fall. Approximately 175 students are expected to attend the school, Dr. Sunley said.

Top High School Students May Earn College Credits

An enlarged Advanced Placement Program which will allow outstanding high school students to earn college credit during their senior year was announced recently by Colorado State College.

Students will be able to take college courses their last year in high school and either accelerate their college program or take an enriched college program.

To be introduced this fall quarter, the program is designed to allow credit for courses in literature, English composition, American history, French, German, Spanish, mathematics, biology, chemistry and physics.

To provide students from small schools equal opportunity in the program, the college is establishing a special program for academically - talented high school seniors. Carefully selected students will take one or two courses at the CSC campus per quarter during the academic year.

Participants in this program would remain high school seniors taking the majority of their course work at their high scholl, thereby remaining qualified for scholarships upon graduation from high school.

Admissions requirements for the students who select either phase of the program (studying at their high school or at CSC) will include recommendation by their high school principal, placement in the upper third of an entrance examination and completion of a special advanced placement course in their high school.

The program was developed as part of the Experimental Teacher Education Project under Dr. Glen P. Nimnicht, associate professor of education. It will be administered by the admissions office under the Department of Student Personnel.

"Of major emphasis in the program is not the fact that students can accelerate their college program, but rather that they are given the opportunity for more enriched, in-depth study," Dr. Nimnicht said.

The two-fold approach — letting students take courses at their own high school or on the CSC campus — solves two major prior problems. Under the Early Admissions plan previously, students who entered college at the end of their junior year were not eligible for scholarships. Early advanced placement programs were limited to high schools with sufficient enrollment and qualified staff.

"Small schools," noted the CSC educator, "find it difficult to offer an advanced placement program because of the small number of students eligible to take such a course, scheduling problems and the shortage of qualified teachers."

Up to 9 to 15 hours of college credit will be granted in the specified areas of study depending on the student's test scores and the comparability of high school and college courses.

Students will take freshman courses and will be treated as regular students while on campus. Participating high schools and students will be responsible for scheduling the students' time and transportation. Tuition can be paid by either the school district or the individual.

The CSC program, according to Dr. Nimnicht, is one of approximately six such in the nation. "In fact, the only similar program that I know of offhand," he said, "is at Pennsylvania State University."

Studies indicate that advanced placement programs have proved to be very successful. "For example," said Dr. Nimnicht, "Harvard, which enrolls a large number of advanced placement students (a third of all entering freshman students in 1958), finds that these students are doing considerably better than those taking conventional freshman courses."

The first Colorado State College venture into advanced placement was announced last fall quarter.

Wage Proposals Made In Toronto Strike

TORONTO (AP)—The Globe and Mail says the wage increases which the three Toronto daily newspapers have offered striking printers amount to $8 a week in two installments over a two-year period.

The increase would be in exchange for a two-year extension of any agreement reached between the newspapers and the International Typographical Union, which calls the current situation a lockout.

The new wage offer would be coupled with publishers' proposals that the ITU has branded as union-busting.

The newspaper says the detailed offer by the publishers as well as the terms on which the complex computer issue was settled will be submitted to a union membership meeting today.

The three newspapers — the Evening Star and the Telegram and the Morning Globe and Mail —have continued to publish since the July 9 lockout, using supervisory personnel in the composing rooms.

Speedier Photo Cameras New Europe Product

By BART KINCH
United Press International

Fourteen West European camera and film manufacturers have introduced their new "Rapid System" of photography on the European market.

The system, which apparently has been in the works since shortly after the Photokina exhibition in Cologne, Germany in March, 1963, is western Europe's answer to Kodak's Instamatic cameras and Kodapak film packaging.

The purpose of both systems is extreme speed in loading cameras with film with built-in automatic exposure adjustment. The two systems offer this but for speed alone, the nod must go to the Instamatic and its Kodapak film counterpart.

However, the Rapid System may get the edge in sharper pictures at a slight sacrifice in speed of loading. This would results from the fact that the Kodapak is a single package with the film encased in its plastic container at all times. This container includes the film take-up spool and is bridged by a plastic back through which the film passes with each exposure.

The Rapid System on the other hand utilized two separate cassettes that, in effect, have been linked by automation. However, the system utilizes the camera's film pressure plate to ensure even distribution of the film at the time of exposure and may have a higher tolerance built into it than the plastic Kodapak containers. Time and usage will tell.

There has been no indication when the new European system will be introduced in this country.

The new Rapid Films, like Kodapak, require cameras that have been specifically designed for them—the new Rapid cameras.

However, with the Rapid System it is expected that most 35mm cameras already on the market can be modified to accept the new rapid films. Dr. Rudolph Kremp, director of the Agfa Camera Works of Munich, W. Germany, said a relatively simple engineering change in the film transport system of the conventional 35mm camera is all that is needed.

Basically, the heart of the new Rapid film loading system is a special film cassette that at present, holds enough 35mm film for 12 full-frame standard 24x36mm exposures. Eventually, the loads are expected to be available in the regular 20 and 36 exposure rolls.

An empty cassette serves as the take-up spool. In practice, a loaded cassette, with about an inch of leader extended, is dropped into the open camera back. The back then is closed.

As soon as the back is closed, the film leader is engaged in sprocket wheels. By simple advancing the film two frames, the take-up spool automatically engages the film and the camera is ready for use.

When the roll has been completed, no rewind is required. You simply remove the take-up spool for processing, transfer the now empty film cassette to the take-up position in the camera and you are ready to drop in your second roll of Rapid Film.

According to a spokesman for Germany, a wide variety of Rapid film types was made available for the European debut of the system. They included color negatives, and black - and - white in slow, medium and fast emulsions.

"Since simplification is the keynote of the Rapid System," the spokesman said, "most Rapid Cameras will offer some type of exposure automation.

"Camera film-speed settings are effected automatically by a small T-shaped piece of metal on the under side of the cassette. This key automatically adjusts the camera speed to the proper ASA (film speed) rating for the film being used.

"The make, film name and film type are 'printed' by perforations on the beginning and on the end of each film loading," he said. "The end also is marked 'exposed'."

First details of the Rapid System were disclosed in Frankfurt-on-Main last May 6. The films and cameras went on sale in western Europe and England July 1.

NEW CHIEF

NEW YORK (AP)—The new head of the World Council of Churches in the United States is the Rev. Dr. Eugene L. Smith of East Orange, N.J., secretary of the Methodist Church's overseas mission program.

BATTER UP! — Ray Phillips, center, chef for the International Pancake House, Southgate, gives the co-chairmen of the Kiwanis Pancake Day fete some pointers on the art of making good batter. Annual Kiwanis Pancake Day Set Wednesday

Wednesday will be Kiwanis "Pancake Day" in downtown Colorado Springs. That's the day members of the Pikes Peak Kiwanis Club don aprons and chef hats to flip buttermilk flapjacks, sizzle sausage, and serve hungry customers. The annual flap jack flippin' will start at 6:30 a.m. and continue until 7 p.m.

The Kiwanians will set up pancake operations in the drive in parking entry way at 109 E. Pikes Peak Ave. The annual project, which is repeated by Kiwanis clubs in communities across the nation, is held to raise funds for boys and girls youth activity projects which Kiwanis traditionally sponsors as part of its service to the community.

Several local business firms have volunteered support through supplies and equipment donations. Buttermilk pancake batter will be prepared by the International Pancake House, Southgate Shopping Center. Cooks and field kitchens will be provided by the U.S. Army at Ft. Carson.

Kiwanis sales teams announced this week that Pancake Day tickets are doing like hotcakes at $1 a copy — 50 cents for children under 12.

Club president Del Tolle said he is impressed by the "let's do it" spirit displayed by club members pushing to make this year's Pancake Day the biggest yet. Project co-chairman Dr. John Ordahl and Harry McWilliams are credited with much of the success in generating high club-wide enthusiasm for this year's project.

Tolle pointed out that several hundred stacks of pancakes served by Kiwanians last year have helped win a brisk repeat customer business for this year's Pancake Day event.

No Changes in Foreign Policy Seen by Rusk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk says the Johnson administration will not make any "significant changes" in foreign policy to meet Sen. Barry M. Goldwater's attacks because the American public would not stand for it.

The secretary told a news conference Friday that the bipartisan course followed since 1945 has brought public support. "If we were to bend those policies in any significant way, the American people would bend them back in the course of our discussion," he said.

Rusk took sharp issue with the Republican presidential candidate's suggestion of the United States threatening to break relations with Russia as a device to force the Kremlin to come to terms with the West.

"It would be unrealistic to suppose that they will roll over and play dead on the basis of anything that we say and do that might affect their vital interests," he said.

It was the first time Rusk has tackled head-on the challenge Goldwater has thrown down in the foreign policy field. He was answering questions based on positions the Republican candidate has outlined in recent articles and statements.

There is no validity to Republican arguments that the United States needs to take a "tougher" attitude on the foreign front, Rusk siad.

"Where our vital interests and the vital interests of our Allies are concerned, the United States is just as tough and just as stubborn as is necessary to protect our vital interests," the secretary said, "and that has been, I think, eminently demonstrated time after time."

The Russians are no more likely to "yield to pressures" or threats against their vital interests than is the United States, he added.

To Junk One Flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Frontier Airlines was authorized Friday by the Civil Aeronautics Board to suspend its service to Sidney, Neb., on its Denver-North Platte, Neb., route and provide similar service on the Denver-Omaha route.

The CAB said service to Sidney will be improved and the airline's subsidy requirements will be reduced by $57,000 a year.

Stopgap Housing Bill Is Given Okay by Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate passed Friday a $1.2 billion stopgap housing bill that included subsidies for persons uprooted from their homes and businesses by government slum clearance projects.

The bill, passed by voice vote, now goes to the House, where a slightly smaller $900 million version has been cleared by a subcommittee and is awaiting full House Banking Committee action.

Before final passage, the Senate decisively defeated, 64 to 19, a "bar bones" substitute offered by Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., to trim all but essential features from the measure.

As it cleared the Senate, the bill extended for 15 months — until Oct. 1, 1965 — major existing housing programs. It was stripped of most of the major frills recommended by President Johnson.

Extension Bill

Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., floor manager for the measure, explained that the intent was to draft a fairly simple extension bill to keep various housing programs in existence until an omnibus measure could be given more thorough consideration next year.

The stopgap bill includes authorizations for continuation of such programs as urban renewal, public housing, direct loans for farm housing, and basic federal mortgage insurance programs.

Tower said the Senate Banking Committee, which cleared the bill Tuesday, started out to draft a simple extension bill to keep various housing programs in existence until an omnibus measure can be given more thorough consideration next year. But "we kept adding things to it," Tower said.

Original Purpose

Tower claimed his substitute bill would have returned to the original purpose of a "bare bones bill," eliminating such things as subsidies for code enforcement, home improvement loans and relocation payments to persons displaced by government projects.

The bill carried a number of lesser innovations recommended by President Johnson, but not the major reforms proposed by the administration.

Eliminated, for example, was the Johnson proposal, inherited from the late President John F. Kennedy, for government assistance in building entire "satellite" cities.

The bill did include a new wrinkle in housing providing aid to persons displaced by government actions, such as urban renewal and public housing projects.

CALLED SHODDY

VIENNA (UPI) — Prace, a publication of Red Czechoslovakia's unions, said Saturday Czech women would be glad to wear last year's dresses if they could only get hold of a few.

The paper complained that the products of the Czech clothing industry are shoddy and "two to three years behind the rest of the world."

Little Girl Is Found Dead in Ice Box

PASADENA, Tex. (UPI) — Diana Burnham, 2, and Karen Lee Doherty, 3, were playing with an ice chest Friday at the Burnham home, taking turns getting in and out of it.

When it was Karen's turn, she jumped in gleefully and Diana closed the lid. When it came down it apparently mashed Diana's fingers and she went crying to her mother.

The pain made her forget her tiny friend who was locked in the chest.

Mrs. Burnham did not realize her other child was in the chest until her mother came looking for her.

Peace in Harlem Not Guaranteed, Mayor Is Warned

By RICHARD F. WHALEN

NEW YORK (AP) — The head of a Harlem unity committee says he can't guarantee peace there in the face of Mayor Robert F. Wagner's refusal to create an independent police review board.

Wagner rejected the demand Friday in a long statement, his first since the end of talks with Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. of Atlanta that began late Monday night.

And Hagner made no mention of the other major demand of New York City's Negro leaders — immediate suspension of Lt. Thomas A. Gilligan, a white policeman who shot and killed a Negro boy.

L. Joseph Overton, acting chairman of the Unity Council of Harlem Organizations, said: "He (Wagner) has made it virtually impossible for me to guarantee continued peace on the streets of Harlem."

In another development, police lifted a ban on demonstrations in Harlem and in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn. But even before the announcement, black nationalist groups scheduled a rally for tonight at a street corner in Harlem's heart.

Two weekends ago, racial rioting broke out in the two Negro sections after demonstrations protesting alleged police brutality. One Negro was killed and scores were injured in five days of disorders.

King, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said in Atlanta Friday night he was "very sorry" Wagner had not ordered creation of a civilian board to review charges of police brutality.

Wagner noted in his statement that a City Council committee is studying such board in other cities.

He also proposed a seven-point program that called for the creation of more jobs for unemployed young people and an increase in state and federal aid against poverty.

James Lawson, president of the United African Nationalist Movement, who earlier had defied the police ban on demonstrations, called for the rally. He said he spoke for 17 black nationalist groups.

A grand jury is looking into the July 16 shooting of the Negro boy, James Powell, 15. Police said Gilligan, who was off-duty, fired in self-defense when the boy came at him with a knife. Negro leaders have disputed the explanation.

Red China Diplomat Missing in Africa

By DENNIS NEELD

BUJUMBURA, Burundi (AP) — The U.S. Embassy and the Burundi government have exchanged angry words over the disappearance of a Red Chinese diplomat who took haven in the embassy.

The diplomat, Tung Chi-ping, defected May 25, the day after he arrived in the capital of this impoverished little African nation. He turned up at the U.S. Embassy in a taxi cab, wearing tennis shoes and a white undershirt and asked for asylum.

Tung, 24, said he wanted to go to the United States. He was given refuge and assigned a room in the embassy. But he vanished from the building Wednesday.

Britten, British Composer, Get Aspen Award

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Benjamin Britten, English composer who received the first Aspen Award Friday, told an audience at the award ceremonies that he was stunned when he received word he had been selected.

"It had not occurred to me, frankly, that I was the one to be chosen," he said after receiving the award to honor "the individual anywhere in the world judged to have made the greatest contribution to the advancement of the humanities."

The prize—to be given annually—carries a $30,000 tax-free stipend. Britten said he would use part of the money to establish an annual Aspen prize for a British musical composition.

Britten was chosen from among more than 100 artists, scholars, writers, poets, philosophers and statesmen who had been nominated by leaders in intellectual and cultural fields.

In accepting the prize, Britten told of his feelings when he was notified he was the winner:

"I read again the simple and moving citation. The key word seemed to be humanities.

"I went to the dictionary to look up its meaning. There I found that one meaning was 'the quality of being human', and I began to feel that I might have a small claim.

"I certainly write music for human beings—directly and deliberately. I do not write for posterity—in any case, the outlook for that is somewhat uncertain. I want my music to be of use to people."

Henry Allen Moe, president of the American Philosophical Society, represented the selection committee at the presentation. He said "in terms of baseball, Mr. Britten has everything. In terms of cricket, of which I am a qualified umpire, Mr. Britten never is out 'leg' before wicket."

The award was presented to Britten by Alvin C. Eurich, president of the Aspen Institute for Humanistic Studies.

Robert O. Anderson of Roswell, N.M., chairman of the institute, established the award.

He said later Britten's intention to establish a prize for British composers was "a most fitting gesture and a great honor for the Aspen Institute."

Britten said the jury awarding his prize "would be instructed to choose only that work which was a pleasure to perform and inspiring to listen to."

Six Month Toll On Highways 239 Persons

State Patrol Chief Gilbert Carrel has announced that 239 persons were killed on Colorado's streets and highways during the first six months of this year — the highest toll of traffic deaths for this period ever recorded in our state.

The 239 fatalities marked an increase over the 233 persons killed during the same period last year, which was the previous all-time high.

In addition, the Chief said, the 67 persons killed during June of this year established the worst record for any one-month period in the state's traffic history. The previous record month was July of 1961 when 62 were killed.

For the first five months of this year, total traffic accidents of all types rose 9 per cent and traffic volume was up 8 per cent over the same period last year.

The highest yearly toll of traffic deaths in Colorado was set last year when 508 persons were slaughtered on our highways.

Noting the record 508 deaths last year, Chief Carrel said that the total for the second six months of any year invariably is higher than that of the first half and that if the trend continues, Colorado is likely to set a new all-time record in highway deaths.

In conclusion, the Chief said that you don't have to be at fault yourself to die in a traffic crash, driving defensively and staying alert for the mistakes of other drivers will cut the odds against being killed or seriously injured in a traffic mishap.

UTERINE CRIES

Seven years ago we carried a story about an expectant mother who heard her baby cry before birth. Around the same time, the Lancet, a British medical journal, published a review of more than 100 such cases covering a period of years. Another English physician described a current case of a baby who also cried prior to birth. The membranes had ruptured and the infant was turned mannually to make delivery easier. As a result, air entered the uterus, which may explain the phenomenon.

The subject seems to intrigue British physicians and they continue to bring it up from time to time. A recent issue of the British Medical journal carried an item about the intrauterine cry. The mother had toxemia of pregnancy and the obstetrician decided to induce labor by rupturing the bag of waters. As he was withdrawing the instrument, the baby gave two cries that were loud and clear. The surprised mother thought delivery had occurred but it did not take place until 24 hours later.

This story was disbelieved by a Cambridge man who contends that human vocal cords, cannot function unless air passes through them. He doubts that crying could occur when there is no air in the lungs of the unborn babe. He says the "voices" heard by patients and their attendants probably stem from air in the pregnant woman's intestine.

The New England Medical Journal picked up the story and concluded: "The line between unborn and newborn is sharply drawn, the first 'breath of life' frequently being used as a symbol of entrance into the world at large." In other words, if real sounds occur, the baby is not unborn but newborn. The editorial continues, "intrauterine voices are stimulated by the shrill winds in the pregnant abdomen."

The May 16 issue of the British Medical journal has a followup letter from an Oxford obstetrician who says the phenomenon has been known for more than 2,000 years. In Livy's History of Rome, "he records a case which occurred in Italy during the critical days of the second Punic war in 214 B.C. On this occasion, the Romans were encouraged by a fetal cry —Io triumphe — to preserve and ultimately overcome the fears and trials of their time. It is to be regretted that the fetal cries of today contain no encouragement for us to endure our present hardships."

Drooping Stomach

Mrs. H. B. writes: Can a woman with a dropped stomach do all her housework?

Reply

Yes. It is normal for the stomach to sag or droop when standing, especially after a heavy meal. A gain in weight will help keep the stomach in place by providing fat depots in the abdomen.

Many Organs Involved

W. B. writes: Can lupus erythematosus affect the kidneys?

Reply

Yes. This bizarre diesase of connective tissue may involve all organs of the body. The skin and joints are afflicted most often.

Rheumatic Feer

Mr. E. R. writes: Does rheumatic fever in an adult differ from the childhood type?

Reply

Stomach Polyps

F. M. writes: Do many polyps in the somach mean cancer?

Reply

Not necessarily, as only 10 per cent of these lesions are malignant. Larger polyps are more likely to be cancerous.

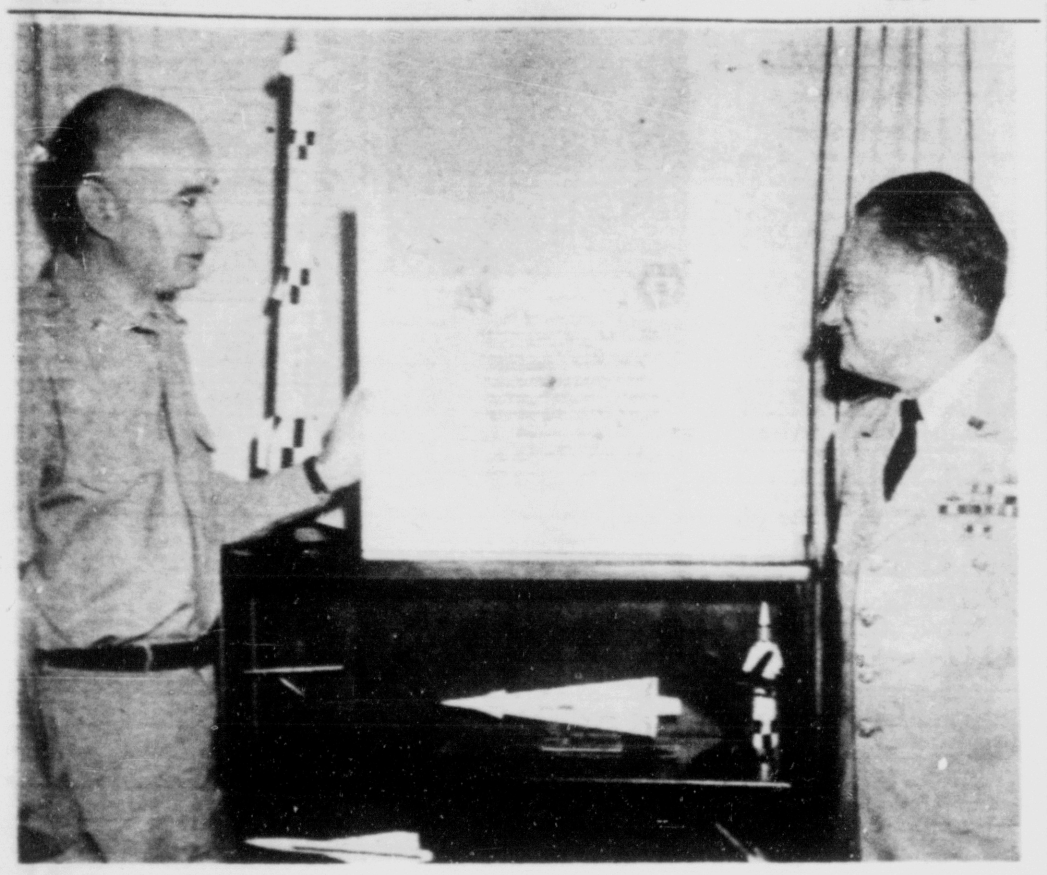
COLORADO SPRINGS—SUNDAY, AUGUST 2, 1964 SECTION E



GENERAL BECOMES THIRD LIEUTENANT — Brig. Gen. Kenneth I. Curtis (right), assistant chief of staff, G-3 (plans, operations, and training) of the Army Air Defense Command, receives a commission as a third lieutenant in the 1st Regiment of Artillery. It was the first such commission to be issued in the Army since the 1820's. Before that time, it was usual for the Army to have its quota of third lieutenants. The commissioning of General Curtis — in this case an honorary gesture — was performed by Col. George S. Pappas (left), who recently rejoined Gen. Curtis' office at the headquarters. He initiated the commissioning when he was commanding officer of ARADCOM'S 4th Missile Battalion, 1st Artillery, in Maryland. Gen. Curtis is now invested with the "rank, privileges, and responsibilities" not only of brigadier general, but of the lowest commissioned officer rank in 2911 Garland Terrace.

Education in Free Society Topic of Workshop Panel

The fourth annual Freedom School workshop which ended Friday after considering the subject of "Education in a Free Society," heard several formal papers Friday afternoon and participated in a panel discussion Friday evening.

John Russell, who moderated the four-day workshop, outlined for the students a formula for the "persuasive presentation of freedom." After establishing first a mental accord with the person with whom one is communicating, Russell said, it is necessary, while offering him suggestions, to allow him the "dignity of making his own decisions." The final step after he has been won over to the freedom point of view is to convince him of the necessity of affirmative action, Russell said.

William Smeeth, in his paper "A Free Parent Chooses," said that after a child learns self control and has sufficiently matured, the relationship between parent and child becomes a partnership with a sharing of responsibilities rather than the "benevolent dictatorship" of the parent which prevailed when the child was younger. The parent continues as the "senior partner" in the relationship until the child is ready to become completely emancipated.

Throughout the period during which the child is dependent, the parent is responsible for his training, and in a free society would not have to send the child to a school in which "an unknow teacher" would usurp this responsibility and where the child would be forced to learn social adjustment before he was ready for it, Smeeth said.

Tim Greenleaf, in his paper "Beginning Learners," said the years one to five are years in which children are first exposed to principles of morality. Government schools cannot be relied on to teach children the concepts of freedom, he said. Parents must assume this responsibility by setting examples to show how the freedom philosophy can be practiced. It is of prime importance that this example be set during the formative years before the child starts his formal schooling, the speaker said.

William Colson read a paper called "Education's Vital Center," in which he said the employer-employe relationship is a "magnificent area" in which to teach freedom. Explaining that employes can be greatly influenced by those who pay their salaries, he said businessmen could greatly enhance freedom by running their businesses according to non-collectivist principles.

Those who had read papers were members of a panel which discussed various aspects of the freedom philosophy.

Smeeth said that in order to be free a man must learn that an unfree society relies on government for decisions while the free society relies on the individual. Smeeth said the responsibility of making one's own decisions cannot be morally transferred to government. He said that in a free society disputes are settled by reason and not by the use of governmental force.

Mona Beardsley, saying that many persons consider profit more important than principle, accused advertisers of playing on the gullibility of consumers. She said that although profits are a good end, they do not justify immoral means. However, if victims give their sanction by purchasing products that have been falsely advertised, it is no business of the state, Mrs. Bearsley said.

The single most important concept needed to resist collectivism, Greenleaf told other panelists, is the freedom philosophy. Man must individually fight collectivism within his own mind by thinking in the framework of the freedom philosophy, Greenleaf said.

William Colson said the thing a man most needs to learn in order to be free is "how to learn." "If one can learn how to learn, he should be able to discover truth," Colson said.

Hanya Holm To Lecture FAC Members Friday

Hanya Holm, choreographer of such great Broadway shows as "Camelot," "My Fair Lady" and "Kiss Me Kate," will give a special lecture for members of the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center Friday, 7, at 8 p.m. in the music room of the center.

The lecture, one of the several member's programs each year, is open to all Fine Arts Center members who may bring two guests.

Miss Holm, long considered one of the leading figures in modern dance throughout the world, is currently conducting her 24th summer dance session at Colorado College. Her annual dance concert Wednesday, 8:15 p.m., at the Fine Arts Center, has long been a summer highlight for area residents.

Miss Holm is much in demand as a teacher and lecturer and is acknowledged as one of the most inspirational teachers in modern dance today.

She has lectured, taught and demonstrated in well over 60 colleges and universities of this country and is director of her own school of dance in New York City.

A native of Germany, Miss Holm came to this country in 1931 where she organized her present dance school and made her New York debut. Her first major dance-drama, "Trend," received the New York Times award for best dance composition of the year.

Since then she has choreographed and staged musical numbers for "Kiss Me Kate" in 1948, "Out of this World" in 1950, "Reuben, Reuben" in 1955, "My Fair Lady" in 1956 and "Camelot", in 1961, to mention only a few. She directed "The Insect Comedy" with Jose Ferrer in 1948, "The Golden Apple" in 1954 and in 1956 directed the original "Ballad of Baby Doe" in Central City.

She also choreographed "The Vagabond King" motion picture and has done television work including choreography for NBC's "Pinnochio." Her awards are numerous including the first copyright from the Library of Congress for "Kiss Me Kate" and a later copyright for "My Fair Lady."

Security Park Election Date Set Aug. 27

The election date of Aug. 27 was set Saturday night by the Security Park and Recreation District to decide whether or not to enlarge boundaries of the park system to include Widefield.

The park board set the date after a hearing at the park office, 805 Main St., in which Norman Enfield entered an objection on the ground that he intends to build a commercial recreation area between Fountain Valley Creek and U.S. Highway 85-87 and does not want to contribute to a rival recreation area, Park Superintendent Paul Morris reported.

Three election judges were named. They are Roy Adams, 131 Ithaca St.; Clifford Bowland, 109 Widefield Blvd.; and Mrs. Jacqueline Saye of 38 Gorget Dr.

A previous election on June 18 to include Widefield and outlying areas in the park district ended in a 47 to 47 vote and was accepted by the park board as "not being a majority in favor of inclusion."

Transportation Corps Observes 22nd Birthday

Transportation Corps wheels kept rolling Friday at Ft. Carson as the World War II-born Corps noted its twenty-second anniversary with various missions from Denver to the Continental Divide.

Lt. Col. Tracy J. Hardman, transportation officer, heads the staff of military and civilian administrative, driver and mechanical personnel. Their primany missions are to advise and assist the commanding general and his staff on all military transportation movements and commercial traffic.

Transportation effects movement of military freight, personnel and their household goods.

In the freight area, Carson transportation handled 6,106 incoming and 1,061 outgoing shipments. There were 5,454 inbound lots of household goods and 4,263 outbound in the past fiscal year.

There were 106 troop movements in the same 12 months with 17,833 personnel inbound and 14,797 outbound.

Under Army regulations, Ft. Carson supports military personnel in 40 counties of Colorado and 13 counties in Kansas for shipment of household goods and overseas travel of dependents. The mountain post is responsible too for military commercial transportation throughout Colorado and Wyoming.

These farflung missions are in addition to transportation's routine duties at Carson — ambulances on standby, trucks moving continually, buses carrying troops within the installation, taxi service, military driver testing and licensing.

Worldwide, Transportation Corps is among the first to start operations and the last to cease in crises on ground, sea and air. This young corps looks to the future with constant research and experimentation.

Three Theft Cases Reported To Sheriff

Three cases of theft were reported to the sheriff's department Saturday.

According to the officer, Reese had been playing at the Navajo Hogan, 2817 N. Nevada Ave., and the instrument was stolen from the band's bus when it was either parked at the Hogan or the Skylark Motel, 3830 N. Nevada. Reese said he did not report the loss at once as he though his boss had the guitar.

It is a medium size model with blond finish top and edges in a gray case with the name Jackie Burns on it.

Harry Virden, 1501 S. Tejon St., said that his $50 Ruger single six .22 caliber revolver had been stolen from a desk drawer at his service station, Virden's Texaco, 1501 S. Tejon St.

It has a six inch barrel with Jay Wood rosewood grips and was in a brown leather holster.

The last case was reported by John L. Peterson, 926 Bennett Ave., who said that tools worth a total of $135.50 were stolen from his unlocked garage. Among them is a skill saw and a craftsman drill.

CU Man Heads NAS Fellowship Screening Panel

BOULDER — The National Academy of Sciences has named Prof. Robert W. Pennak, chairman of the University of Colorado Department of Biology, as head of a panel to screen its graduate fellowship applications in biology.

The academy's graduate fellowship program is supported by the National Science Foundation and the application evaluation is made by the academy's National Research Council. Dr. Frederick Seitz, academy president, announced Pennak's appointment.

The panels will meet Feb. 15-19, 1965, in Washington, D. C. As biology panel chairman, Pennak also will be a member of the graduate board. It reviews the work of all the panels and makes final nominations.

Pennak is nationally known as an expert on limnology — the scientific study of fresh waters. He has been a member of the CU faculty since 1938, coming here upon completion of his doctoral study at the University of Wisconsin. In 1950 he was selected to give the 15th annual CU faculty research lecture and in 1963 he was chosen faculty lecturer in the Summer Lecture Series.

He has a lifetime appointment as American representative of the International Society of Theoretical and Applied Limnology and is president of the Society of Systematic Zoology.

He also is past president of the American Society of Limnology and Oceanography, the American Microscopical Society and and Invertebrate Section of the American Society of Zoologists.

He is author of a widely used book, "Fresh-Water Invertebrates of the United State," published in 1953, and a "Collegiate Glossary of Zoology," published this year. The first is in its third printing and has been called by reviewers, "monumental," "classical" and "indispensable." The glossary is the only one of its kind; it contains 19,000 zoological terms.

Pennak, 51, also has written approximately 50 scientific papers on the biology of lakes and streams of north central Colorado. For many years he has served on editorial boards of a wide variety of biology journals; currently he is on four boards.

Mansfield 'Rebukes' European Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., rebuked the press of foreign nations today for some of its criticism of Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater, the Republican presidential nominee.

"Much of the foreign press comment is, to say the least, in questionable taste and it could be, in the end, harmful to the relations between us," Mansfield said in a Senate speech sternly inviting the foreign newsmen to mind their own business.

"There is no panic in the United States over the nomination of Barry Goldwater," Mansfield said. "Much less ought one to be induced abroad to the detriment of overseas U.S. relations."

Americans, he said, are perfectly capable of making their own judgments at the voting polls in November and "have no need to be frightened or prodded as part of the process of forming their judgments, by a panicky European press."

Mansfield singled out no foreign newspaper by name in his speech nor did he mention any specific country's press or disclose which comments had aroused his wrath.

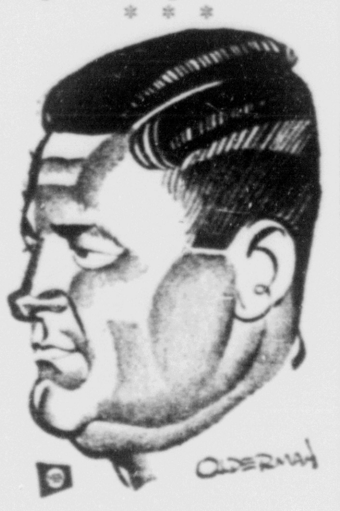
But Where's the Drop

Along about the same time that the now infamous designer bugged a few eyeballs with the creation of the topless you-know-what, there's been an awful lot of talk about curves.

Ball players have been chasing 'em for ages — both off and on the diamond — but it seems there's been some hubub about what is which and why. Most of the curiosity surrounds the so-called "slider" as this has been one of the most frequent weapons used by pitchers all the way from the kiddies' leagues to the majors.



EARLY WYNN
No Fireworks

* * *

And hat with the abundance of none, one, and two hitters lately, there's a rumor going around that the batters are trying to legislate some of this magical trickery into antiquity along with the "spitter" and other slight-of-hand that keeps popping up out of the hurlers' haul of pitches.

Much of this mystery comes from the definitions or nicknames tagged to a certain pitch. And many insist that there's been nothing new added to the game of baseball since shortly after the turn of the century.

Anybody who ever dirtied his jeans sliding across a sandlot in days of yore can remember all the "sufff" the kids used to throw plateward in the vacant lot. Most of us called them the curve, fastball, inshoot and drop.

But what about that slider?

Now Early Wynn, a 300-game winner and current pitching coach for the Cleveland Indians, emphatically says this pitch has done more to change the game of his life than the inception of the New York Mets.

"Batters have so much going for them now that the pitchers have to use every trick they can think of," Wynn said recently.

"Does anybody shoot fireworks when you strike out somebody? No, and just to humiliate you, it's Fourth of July every time some guy belts one off you," Wynn continued.

"If you pitch a great game, everybody yawns and looks for the exist. Who says this is the pitcher's era?" said the Indians and White Sox ace. "When we do poorly, we're bums, but if we do great, everybody wants to know what's wrong with baseball.

This pitch is supposed to come into the batter looking just like a fast ball. But at the last second it breaks off to the outside on a right-handed batter before he has the chance to adjust.

The main difference between the slider and a regular curve is that the slider breaks on the same plane as a fast ball would travel. It sort of "slides" out on the hitter. The curve breaks downward across the plate.

There was some research done recently on the subject and it was determined that it actually came into being about the same time as the Great Stock Crash.

"There is something new under the baseball sun," an article in 1929 written by umpire George Moriarty stated. "The big leaguers call it the 'slide-away ball.' Pitcher George Blaeholder, who brought it into the major with the St. Louis Browns, induces eagle - eyed batsmen to lunge and slap grounders to his cast. The 'slide-away' ball deviates several inches but looks deceivingly like a straight fast ball."

Jim Bunning, perfect game pitcher of the Phillies, describes how it's thrown: "You hold the fast ball with two fingers across the ball. The slider has the same grip, except your fingers are off-center. It's thrown with a firm wrist and breaks maybe six inches or a foot with a lot of speed. When it doesn't break it'll jump off anybody's bat right out of the ball park, though."

Okay. But how about the drop and the inshoot?

Seems the closest thing to that now is the sinking curve, at least according to Philadelphia manager Gene Mauch. All the better pitchers throw it, but Mauch says he doesn't like his pitchers to use it because "it's too slow. . .too easy for a strong hitter to set himself and hit it downtown."

The old timers, however, do not see it quite the same. The curve was the curve and the same for the drop. And if so, the major leaguers of today have no such animal.

The inshoot. Well, Mauch says he remembers that one from the sandlots around Kansas City, too.

"I'd say the inshoot as we knew it when kids was just like Don Drysdale's fast ball — tails into a right hand batter. But not many guys have one," he said.

So it would seem that there's really nothing new in the game, after all. They're doing the same things now that used to be pulled off in the backyards across the country by the kids growing into major leaguers.

But what about the drop?

Well, if you actually want to see one, try making a visit to one of the better softball games in any city. There you'll find all the pitches described above — plus more, including the true drop ball that takes a dip just in front of the plate and yet doesn't tail-off like the curve.

You'll also see the hard-to-throw inshoot that only Drysdale has mastered, the rise ball they don't even talk about in baseball, curves in either direction, and a fast ball that actually travels faster than any major leaguer can toss it.

The misnomer of "soft" ball, however, will always keep a lot of would-be fans away from the park. But in so many ways, the game has baseball beaten and it's a sure bet you'll never go away bored like from the game on the bigger field.

C. K. Yang Wins Decathlon

TORONTO (AP) — C. K. Yang of Formosa, world decathlon champion, compiled 8,087 points Saturday and won the men's decathlon in the two-day Canadian Olympic decathlon and pentathlon trials.

In the women's pentathlon, 20-year-old Dianne Gerace of Trial, B.C. pick up 4,716 points to defeat favored Jenny Wingerson of Toronto. Both girls surpassed the Olympic standard of 4,500 points. Miss Wingerson qualified with 4,549.

Bill Gairdner, 23, of Toronto ran second to Yang, and his points total of 7,030 surpassed his own Canadian record of 6,857 and the required Olympic standard of 7,000 points.

Osuna Topples Strolle

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Rafael Osuna, the reigning U.S. singles champion, swept over Australia's Fred Stolle in straight sets 6-2, 7-5, 6-4 Saturday and brought Mexico a split of the opening singles matches in their American Zone Davis Cup semifinals.

Roy Emerson of Australia, generally considered the world's No. 1 amateur, got the Aussies off to a quick start with an 8-6, 6-3, 6-3 conquest of out-gunned Antonio Palafox.

The doubles match will be held Sunday, doubtlessly matching Osuna and Palafox against Emerson and Stolle. The final singles in the best-three-of-five eliminations are scheduled Monday.

The opening match, in which Palafox was clearly out of his depth, lasted only 90 minutes. A crowd of 3,500, including President Adolfo Mateos, looked on.

Denverite Upends Springs' Phelps

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

The Pikes Peak Invitational is being played in Colorado Springs as usual this summer — but a check of the cast for today's finals would seem to suggest that the tournament has been displaced from Denver.

At least the 36 holes championship match which is to get underway at 8:30 this morning will feature a pair of young sluggers from Colorado's Capitol City. Gary Polumbus, the remarkably consistent defending champ, will place his title on the line against 19-year-old Arnold Abel, a young power-plant who displayed the delicate shots of a champion in his semi-finals battle Saturday.

Following the first 18 hole tour of the Patty-Jewett Course, the golfers will break for lunch. Action is scheduled to resume at 1 p.m.

Saturday's results were another in the long line of triumphs for the college stars in area tournaments this year. Polumbus pulled away by winning three straight holes on the back side to defeat veteran Claude Post of Wichita, Kan. 3 and 2. Abel, who was a virtual unknown when play started this week, crushed Colorado Springs' Jim Phelps with a magnificent five - under - par round, winning 4 and 2 on the 16th hole.

If the first six days of this annual tournament were any indication, there will be little to chose between these two excellent young stars today. Polumbus, a former Colorado University student who will enter the University of Denver Law School this fall, apparently thrives on adversity. He has been as many as two holes behind in every match this week and seemingly does not get his game into swing until disaster is threatening.

Just how well that formula will work today is a matter for speculation. Abel who attended Whitman College in Washington last year but will enroll at Colorado University as a sopohmore this fall, seemed to enjoy the position of frontrunner Saturday. He also indicated that it will probably require a sub-par effort to subdue him.

Polumbus, who has struggled with the middle holes on the front side all week, ran into the identical problem Saturday. He and Post halved the par-five first with birdies, although Gary's eagle putt rimmed the cup. Post then rolled in a slanting 50 foot birdie on the second hole to take the lead and increased it at the third when Polumbus chipped short and bogied.

The lanky Denverite recovered swiftly, however, with the aid of his opponent. Post hooked his drive into the trees at the fourth and laid his second up short of the green. From there it required a pitch and two putts to get down while Polumbus stroked in an easy par. Gary then tied the match at the fifth and went ahead at the sixth as Post bogied again after both had missed the par-three green.

At the seventh Post flipped in a 20 foot birdie putt, but Polumbus slipped in a two-footer on top of it. Gary went two up at the eighth with a par putt but Post knocked in another long birdie at the ninth and Polumbus was just one-up at the turn.

The defending champ lost the 10th after hitting his tee shot into the trees and bogeying and the two moved through the next three holes even before Gary finally broke through with a scrambling birdie at the par-five 14th. His tee shot flew nearly into the neighboring 15th fairway and his second just carried several trees to the right of the green. From there he ran a brilliant recovery shot to within a foot of the hole and won when Post went down in regulation.

At the 15th Polumbus put a seven-iron on the green from far down the fairway and two-putted from 40 feet while Post bogied. The match ended at 16 when Post pulled his tee shot to the left of the par-three green and chipped poorly while Polumbus two-putted from 25 feet. Gary finished the round one-under for the 16 holes.

Phelps, who was thwarted again in his attempt for a third PPI title, could never get started on the front side where he had buried every previous opponent this week. He started by missing a seven-foot birdie putt at the first after Abel had stuck the first of a run of excellent iron shots within eight feet of the pin. Abel missed the eagle putt but still won the hole.

At the second, the Denver youth dropped his tee shot eight feet from the pin on the long par-three hole and rammed in the putt to go two up. He increased the margin at four when his iron to the green stuck 18 inches from the cup for another birdie. Abel also won five with a par and then increased his margin to a whopping five holes at the seventh as Phelps hit his tee shot into the ditch at the left of the fairway and eventually bogied.

The local standout refused to bow to the inevitable, however. He won his first hole at the eighth with a 25 foot birdie putt and could have reduced the margin to three at the turn but slid a four-foot birdie attempt by the hole.

Phelps did get within three with a win at 10 and had a shot at an 18 foot birdie putt at 11 but missed. Abel then applied the crusher to the rally at the 12th by sticking an iron two feet from the pin from the right rough and winning with the birdie. Phelps got one back at 14 with a two-putt bird from the edge of the green but saw his final hopes die at 16 when Abel knocked his tee shot stiff on the par-three hole. Phelps missed the green to the left, rolled his putt near the hole, and then picked up to concede the match.

Indianapolis Overpowers Denver in PCL Play, 9-6

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indianapolis used nine hits effectively Saturday night to overcome Denver's homerun power and scored a 9-6 Pacific Coast League baseball triumph.

The Tribe pushed across four tallies in the second inning on a double by Jim Hicks, two walks, a two-run single by Ken Berry and a ground ball error by right fielder Purnal Goldy.

In the third, singles by George Williams and Len Johnston of Indianapolis chased Cecil Butler from the mound, giving him the loss, his fifth against five victories.

Ed Hobaugh, who relieved the Indians' starter — Dave Debusschere — in the fourth, held the Bears to only four hits and one run. The relief hurler collected his sixth victory against one loss.

Athletic Club Team Tops Greeley in Semi-Pro Play

HUGO, Colo. — The Colorado Springs Athletic Club baseball team qualified for the semi-finals of the Colorado State Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament tonight when the Springs squad, behind the steady pitching of Bob Gill, dumped the Greeley Monfort Packers, 10-9, here Saturday night.

The Colorado Springs nine will face the Boulder Collegians tonight in the semi-finals and should they win they will advance to the finals this Tuesday night. Tonight's game is scheduled for 8 p.m.

Although the Greeley team tabbed Gill for nine hits, the Springs' chucker only gave up three earned runs. Gill struck out eight Greeley batsmen and walked three.

In addition to his pitching chores, Gill contributed two hits and drove in two runs as the Colorado Springs AC's went on a hit barrage collecting 14 during the nine-inning encounter.

Second baseman Al Dahl paced the AC's hitting attack with three singles and two RBI's. Dave Chase also contributed three hits to the winning cause including a double and two singles. Chase also scored two runs and collected one RBI.

Paul Dyer took the loss for the Greeley aggregation as he was touched for seven runs during his five and two-thirds innings on the mound.

The Greeley group came within winning distance in the ninth frame when they scored four runs. After Gill struck out the first batter in that stanza, the Greeley squad collected four runs on three hits and two AC miscues.

Broadmoor Action Opens Monday

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

The Broadmoor Women's Invitational, one of the top way-stations on the summer tour for the nation's top lady amateurs, is due to start a week-long run over the slopes of Cheyenne Mountain Monday morning and another exceptional field is already assured for the 22nd playing of this annual tournament.

The Invitational, which departed the small-time ranks several years ago, has zoomed into prominence during the past couple of summers with the appearance of many of amateur golf's top-ranked players. This time around, with the U.S. Women's Amateur approaching and selections for the Curtis Cup team also near, the majority of the lady stars are expected to have their games at a keen edge for their appearance here.

Leading the way into Monday's qualifying round will be six scratch golfers, all of whom are among the nation's finest. Three of the group, Judy Bell, Barbara McIntire, and Jean Ashley, are members of the Broadmoor Golf Club, and all are former titlists in this event. Miss Bell has won three times while Miss McIntire and Miss Ashley each own a single crown.

In addition to their work in the Invitational, Miss McIntire's most recent major victory was in the 1963 Women's Western, which was also played at the Broadmoor. Judy won the '63 Women's Western, which was also played at the Broadmoor. Judy won the '63 Trans-Mississippi and just recently set a single round scoring record of 67 while playing as an amateur in the U.S. Women's Open at San Diego. Miss Ashley's top successes in the past two summers include a second place finish in the 1963 Western Amateur and a trip to the semi-finals of this year's Western two weeks ago in Chicago.

Joining the Broadmoor trio in the spotlight will be three other outstanding amateur stars, Julie Hull of Anderson, Ind., Barbara Fay White of Shreveport, La., and Carol Sorenson of Janesville, Wis.

CAROL RETURNS—Carol Sorenson, popular star of the women's amateur golf circuit, will be back in Colorado Springs this week to compete in the prominent Broadmoor Women's Invitational. Carol was runner-up in this same tournament a year ago and also competed here in the Western Amateur.

Miss White will undoubtedly enter this week's play as a slight favorite off her brilliant showing throughout the 1964 tournament season. Her latest success was the championship of the Western Amateur in Chicago but that merely capped a long line of triumphs that started on the southern circuit in the early spring.

Carol Sorenson, who is a former winner of the National Collegiate title and was the 1962 Western Amateur champion, played exceptionally well here last year before losing to Natasha Fife in the finals of the Invitational. She then surrendered her Western crown, but only after battling Jean Ashley for six extra holes in the quarter-finals.

These six ladies will top a field that will also include a number of other low-handicap players, including Jeanne Butler of Harlington, Tex., Vi Ann Beadle of Belton, Mo., Mrs. E. H. Gabriel of Tulsa, Okla., Mrs. Raleigh Hall of Tulsa, Pam Kingsbury of Wichita, Kan., and Mrs. Joan Birkland of Denver. Late entries could fill the ranks with even more standouts.

Monday's schsdule calls for the entire field to run through an 18 hole qualifying round. The low 32 scorers will be placed in the Championship Flight with all others going into flights of 16 each. This year, for the first time in its history, the tournament will also have a senior flight for players 50 years and over.

Match play is scheduled to get underway Tuesday and will continue through the 36 hole finals Saturday.

Mrs. Fife, the 1963 champion, recently turned professional and thus will not be eligible to defend her title this summer. She had won the Broadmoor tourney three times, a feat she shares with Judy Bell and Babe Zaharias.

WESTMINISTER, Md. (AP) — Defensive back Bob Boyd suffered a knee injury Saturday as the Baltimore Colts wound up drills before their Monday night intra-squad charity game.

A club spokesman said the injury probably would not prevent Boyd from playing Monday night.

Others on the injured list for the last few days but expected to see action are running back Lenny Moore and tight end John Mackey.

Shollander Sets 200 Meter Mark During National AAU Swim Meet

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writ

LOS ALTOS HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Muscular blond Don Schollander sped to his second world record in two nights Saturday with a timing of 1:57.6 in the 200 meter freestyle of the National AAU outdoor swimming championships.

The 18-year-old from Lake Oswego, Ore., who beat Murray Rose and Rose's world record in the 400 on Friday, lived up to his own prediction when he beat his own official world record of 1:58.4 and the pending mark of 1:58.2 by Germany's Hans Klein.

Schollander, representing the Santa Clara, Calif. Swim Club, was second to Bill Farley of Los Angeles after 50 meters and he trailed Rose after 100. But on that turn, he took the lead and finished 1½ lengths, or about three meters, ahead.

So the fleet swimmer, Uncle Sam's No. 1 hope in men's Olympic events, added the 200 record to the 4:12.7 for the 400.

Finishing behind Schollander and Saari were Gerg Buckingham, also of the Santa Clara Swim Club, at 2:01.5, Rose, and John Nelson of Pompano Beach, Fla. at 2:02.6.

Sharon Stouder, the 15-year-old whiz from the City of Commerce in Los Angeles County, bested the official world record of 1:06.1 in the 100-meter butterfly with 1:05.4.

However, Ada Kok of The Netherlands has a pending record of 1:05.1.

In the Friday event, Miss Stouder set an American record of 1:00.4 in the 100 meter freestyle so she racked up her second American record in two nights.

Husky Don Schollander smashed his second world swimming record in as many nights and lovely Marilyn Ramenofsky added one for the gals in the National AAU Outdoor Swimming championships on Saturday night.

Miss Ramenofsky, 17, from Scottsdale, Ariz., swam the 400 meter freestyle in 4:41.7 for her record. Both are Olympic events.

The Arizona lass smashed her own pending world record of 4:42 and the official world mark of 4:44.5 set by America's 1960 Olympic queen, Chris von Saltza, in 1960.

Patty Caretto of the City of Commerce, Calif., the 13-year-old who broke world records in the 800 and 1500 meters on the opening afternoon of this four-day meet, finished only seventh in 4:49.8.

Miss Ramenofsky said she was surprised at her time and thinks she'll hit her peak at the Olympic tryouts in New York. Schollander also expects to be better by Olympic time.

History repeated again on consecutive nights when Claudia Kolb, 14, set a meet record of 1:19.0 in the 100-meter breaststroke. On Friday night she eclipsed the American record in the 200 with a time of 2:49.8. Both times she beat Anne Bancroft of Los Altos who had set meet records in the preliminaries.

Donna de Varona of Santa Clara, Calif., set her second American record of the meet with a time of 2:29.9 in the 200-meter medley. She held the old record of 2:31.8. Her medley mark was the eighth American record for the three days of competition.

Other winners on the third day of the four-day competition were:

Men's 100-meter backstroke—Rich McGeagh, Verdugo Hills, Calif., 1:01.6. In this event world record holder Tom Stock of Indianapolis failed to qualify for the finals.

Men's 200-meter breaststroke Bill Craig of Verdugo Hills and Chet Jastremski of Indianapolis tied for first, both timed in 2:31.8.

Pueblo Tops A&M in Opener

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Behind the one-hit pitching of John Jackson, the Pueblo Foremen's Club won the opening American Legion "B" District playoff game Saturday afternoon, 3-0, at Memorial Field against A&M Transmission.

The two teams return to Memorial Field for the second game today at 1 p.m., and if required, a third game is scheduled to start 30 minutes after conclusion of the first game. This District playoff is the best two-out-of-three series.

The winner of the District playoff will advance to the regional this weekend at Alamosa to meet the winner of the Grand Junction-Alamosa playoff for a berth in the state finals. The regional winner will face the northern playoff victor for the Legion "B" state championship a week from Saturday, Aug. 15 at Alamosa.

Although the visiting Pueblo team tabbed Tafoya for five hits during the seven-inning contest Saturday, the Foremen's Club nine managed to cash in three runs in the opening three frames on three A&M miscues.

Tafoya only gave up one earned run on five hits and the Palmer chucker struck out five and walked one.

Rick Larson spoiled Jackson's bid for a no-hitter as the A&M's right fielder singled in the third inning. However, Jackson managed to control things from the mound from that point on as the Pueblo right-hander denied the home team any hits the next four frames.

Tim Graham supplied the stick power for the Foremen's Club aggregation as the first baseman collected two hits for three times at bat. Dave Galich, Steve Kopasz and Jackson each collected a single hit to round out the five-hit attack.

The visitors scored single tallies in the first three innings to put the games on ice. The A&M nine had an opportunity to score in the third frame when Larson singled to start things off. Tom Slade drew a walk after John Kohl popped out to third base.

Then Bill Doud grounded out to the shortstop and Lindy Elton popped out to the catcher to end the scoring threat.

Pueblo Takes Lead in Legion Series Over Mistake-Plagued Sertoam, 2-1

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

PUEBLO — Teammates of Sertoma's American Legion league champs traveled here Saturday night, with sweet dreams of victory in the district playoffs — but came back to Colorado Springs two hours later with a nightmare of mistakes.

Pueblo's Legion entry in the state playoffs walked in their winning run in the last of the ninth inning to take the initial lead in the best-of-three series, 2-1. The same teams will clash here at Runyon Field again this afternoon in a possible doubleheader, starting at 1 p.m. Another victory by Pueblo in the opener would wrap up the district title.

It was a bitter pill forced down the throat of losing pitcher Bob Kochis, who had limited the Steel City's lone Legion A team to but two hits through the first eight innings.

But after a second base-running miscue of the evening, which probably cost the Colorado Springs squad the game, the ceiling tumbled down on Kochis and all his mates. And nothing went right from that point on.

In the bottom of the ninth, Jimmy Smith allowed the first Pueblo runner, Ralph Huddin, to reach first. Catcher Bruce Heath then sent a roller to the mound, but the throw trying to get the lead runner at second went wild.

Clay Chambers was then beckoned to the mound from second base, and pitching cold he filled the bases with an intentional walk and then with a full count on second baseman Luther Nava the side-arming right hander threw a fourth ball to walk in the game-ending run.

The only two hits off Kochis were a liner down the first base chalk line in the third by Scott Esslinger, and a sixth inning triple with one out by first baseman Wayne Woodyard. Woodyard scored on a freak play that again involved Smith as Huddin popped to deep shortstop and as he was fielding the fly Smith tripped and fell and Woodyard came across on what was a sacrifice fly.

Sertoma had scored earlier in the fourth, but even that rally was cut short by fate. Johnny Wickham dropped a looper into right, stole second and came home on Smith's wicked liner to left-center. Smith went to second on the throw-in, but was erased coming home after tripping at third when catcher Budgie Hamilton's single fell into short left field and the throw to the plate was a bulls-eye.

So the score reamined at 1-1 going into the top of the ninth and both Kochis and Pueblo's ace Ross Beatty seemed in full control. But the Springs' nine had a golden opportunity to take the lead.

Smith, staying alive when the Pueblo catcher misjudged a pop foul on his second strike, blasted a triple to the left-center fence. But with Hamilton making no motion toward the ball, Smith streaked in on an obvious squeeze play. The catcher had him nailed easily in the rundown.

Had the runner remained on third, he would have had two opportunities to score the go-ahead run as Hamilton flied to center for what could have been a sacrifice fly, and the next batter, Frank Baird, singled to right. Baird and the walked John Brakefield died on base after a Kochis strikeout.

Coach Chris Talbott explained after the game that "half" the squeeze signal was on at the time Smith dashed for the plate. He had given the sign, hoping Pueblo would recognize it and throw balls and this would put the batter ahead on the count and force Beatty to come in with a fat pitch. He was right in that Beatty threw a pitchout, but because the "indicator" for the signal wasn't given Hamilton made no effort to bunt the ball.

It was the second time during the evening that Sertoma had failed to bring in a run with the leadoff man on third. The first time came in the first inning when right fielder Al Maynard drew a walk, stole second and went to third on a wild throw on the steal. But after a strikeout, Maynard tried to sneak home as Wichham was bunting. The ball popped up to the pitcher who trotted over to third base for an unassisted double play.

This was the second time this summer these teams had met, with Sertoma getting an easy 8-2 vitcory in Colorado Springs during non-league play.

However, Beatty was handling them at nearly every turn this time in what must have been his best pitched game of the year. The Pueblo lefty struck out 10, as did Kochis in his eight innings. Three ofthe six hits off Beatty came in the fourth when the first run was scored by the Colorado Springs squad.

In today's second go-round here in Pueblo, Talbott has elected to go with right hander Bob Torrie in hopes of evening up the series. If Sertoma wins the opener, the most likely starter for the third game would be Chambers.

The winner of this series will advance to the state finals, also slated here in Pueblo, Aug. 7-9. They will meet Grand Junction in the first round of the state tourney.

Former Pro Hockey Player Dies

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — Clarence (Taffy) Abel, 62, first United States-born player in the National Hockey league, died Saturday.

14,000 View Giants Full Dress Scrimmage

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP) — The New York Giants staged their final full-dress training camp scrimmage Saturday before a record crowd of 14,000 at Fairfield University.

The offensive unit scored twice against Coach Andy Robustelli's defensive team, once on a 35-yard pass from Y. A. Tittle to Aaron Thomas and then on a 70-yard touchdown strike from Glynn Griffing to Thomas.

Thomas caught five passes for 135 yards and ex-Cleveland Browns' end Bob Crespino hauled in five for 65 yards. Fullback Phil King injured his right shoulder near the end of the scrimmage was taken to a nearby hospital for X-rays.

Constellation Captures N.Y. Yacht Club Cup

MARION, Mass. (AP) — Constellation caught American Eagle on a clumsy maneuver on the final leg and beat her America's Cup competitor by 28 seconds Saturday for the New York Yacht Club Cup.

The cup race was a special one limited to the five 12-meter sloops.

Constellation's victory was her fourth on the New York Yacht Club cruise and her third straight. Each time American Eagle, unbeaten in her six America's Cup observation trial tests, was runner-up. American Eagle won the other two races on the current series.

These races have no bearings on the competition for selection of the U.S. Cup defender which enters the final trials phase off Newport, R.I., beginning Aug. 17.

The British trial horse, Norsaga, was third followed by Nefertiti and Easterner.

The second leg was a broad reach back across the bay and Constellation cut American Eagle's lead to 30 seconds.

Caper, a 57-foot-sloop owned by Irving Pratt, won the Astor Cup by two seconds corrected time over J. L. Madden's Gesture, another 57-foot-sloop. Matinee was third, 23 seconds behind the winner.

GOT A PROBLEM? ASK THE PRO

Q On TV a Pro always waits until the other fellow has putted before he even starts to line up his own putt. Is there some rule that prohibits more than one golfer from lining up their putts at the same time? It sure would speed-up play for us weekenders if we were ready to putt one right after the other.

—Asks Earl Wakser, Dallas, Texas

A There is no rule prohibiting a golfer from lining up his own putt while another is putting. In fact it is recommended provided it does not in any way bother or distract the player who is putting.

RMKC Oval Opens Season, Aug. 22

"We have contracted what we believe is the strongest listing of kennels that we have ever had the privilege of presenting to the greyhound racing fans of the Pikes Peak Region in any season since we began, 16 years ago; we are proud of our 1964 bookings and we are confident that fans will be, too," was the statement that Al Binns, general manager of the Colorado Springs' Rocky Mountain Kennel Club made to the Gazette Telegraph Saturday.

Binns continued, "Frank Jones, who has been RMKC's director of racing and racing secretary for many years, and Ellwood Green, RMKC's chartman, are arriving in Colorado Springs today to get the program lined up for the current meet."

"The plant is ready, the new tote board has been installed and is receiving its final testing and the closed circuit monitors that will show the latest pari-mutual odds to the fans from nine different viewing points within the plant-site, have been installed. Vinyl tile will be installed on the floors throughout the wagering areas and this will be completed long before the official schooling races get under way on Aug. 12," he concluded.

New innovations at RMKC this season will be an eleven race card each night, excepting Sundays, throughout the entire season; previous seasons have featured 11 race cards on Fridays, Saturdays and Mondays with ten-race cards being presented in mid-week.

The "Twin-Quin" will be a nightly feature this season. This is the first season that racing fans at RMKC have had the opportunity of picking the "twin-quin" which will be on the tenth and eleventh races each night.

Twin-quin pay-offs have reached fantastic amounts, many times being in the thousands of dollars at tracks across the country where it has been introduced. Fans selecting the two winning greyhounds in the tenth race, the win and place greyhounds, will be allowed to exchange their winning ducats from the tenth race for their choice greyhound combination in the eleventh and final race on the card each night.

Mets Pull Squeaker Over Colts

NEW YORK (AP) — Catcher Bob Taylor hit a two-run homer in the fifth and scored the other run after he doubled in the seventh Saturday, leading the New York Mets over the Houston Colts 3-2.

The victory was the third straight for the Mets over the Colts. The New Yorkers now have a 6-5 season edge over their fellow expansion team.

Al Jackson went all the way for the Mets, allowing five hits. Both Houston runs came in the first inning on two walks, an infield hit, a fielder's choice and a single by Bob Aspromonte.

Taylor doubled in the seventh, went to third on an infield hit by Roy McMillan off pitcher Gordon Jones' glove, and scored when Jones threw wildly to first.

Goldsmith Crashes Car; Sets Record

Goldsmith, testing tires for the Labor Day 500-mile race, had recorded two identical laps at 136.363 miles per hour over the tricky 1 3-8 mile oval before he spun out in the No. 2 corner.

Reds Slip Past Cardinals Joey Jay Picks Up Win

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Rookie Mel Queen, a .171 hitter, capped a five-run seventh with a three-run homer to give Cincinnati a 6-5 victory over St. Louis Saturday.

Five straight hits, including Don Pavletich's double and Marty Keough's pinch single, ruined Bob Gibson of the Cards who took a 3-1 lead into the inning.

The Cardinals made it close with two runs in the seventh. Tim McCarver, Charley James and Curt Flood singled in succession against reliefer Bill McCool.

Lou Brock then walked, forcing in a run. Sammy Ellis relieved and forced in another run with a walk to Dick Groat before retiring dangerous Ken Boyer and Bill White.

Cincinnati scored in the third inning on three singles.

Phillies Defeat Dodgers

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Tony Gonzalez and John Herrnstein led Philadelphia's 14-hit attack on Don Drysdale and three successors Saturday night as the National League-leading Phillies cuffed the Los Angeles Dodgers 10-6.

The victory lifted the Phils 2½ games in front of the second place San Francisco Giants, who lost to Pittsburgh 6-1.

Gonzalez singled twice and doubled, scored two runs and drove in another. Herrnstein hit two singles and his fifth home run, driving in two runs.

The Dodgers staked Drysdale to a 3-0 lead in the first with the aid of Cookie Rojas' two-runs throwing error. But the Phils snapped back with five runs off Drysdale in the second before knocking him out in a four-run fourth. Herrnstein's homer in the sixth completed the Phils' scoring.

Detroit Topples Indans, 2-1

CLEVELAND (AP)—Singles by Gates Brown, Dick McAuliffe and Don Demeter in the ninth inning gave Detroit a come-from behind 2-1 victory over Cleveland Saturday.

Until the ninth the Indians had seemed assured a third straight victory over the Tigers on Lee Stange's four-hit pitching and a fifth inning run.

Yankees Dump Twins Behind Hitting Of Mickely Mantle; Keep AL Lead

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — Mickey Mantle blasted a 420-foot two-run homer and a long double as the New York Yankees beat Minnesota 6-4 Saturday, tightening their hold on first place in the American League.

Until the ninth, Ralp Terry had a two-hitter going for the Yankees, both homers. Then, with one out, Tony Oliva doubled. After Harmon Killebrew walked, Terry was replaced by Hal Reniff.

A single by Jimme Hall loaded the bases and a walk to Bob Allison forced in the Twins' fourth run. Earl Battey popped up and pinch hitter Johnny Goryl hit into a game-ending force play.

Mantle's homer, his 21st, followed a single by Tom Tresh in the sixth and put the Yankees ahead 5-2. It was a mighty smash to deep center.

Mantle's 400-foot double came when he led the second. Mantle then stole third and scored when Elston Howard's grounder went through Jim Snyder at second base for an error.

Pedro Gonzalez singled home the tying run for the Yanks in the fourth. A wild throw by pitcher Dick Stigman on a pick-off play and his wild pitch let Hector Lopez score the tie-breaking run.

Washington Wins Union Printers Tourney

DETROIT (AP) — Washington, D.C. rocked two opponents Saturday to capture the championship of the Union Printers International Baseball Tournament.

Washington had beaten Cincinnati 5-1 Friday in the double-elimination tournament. Cincinnati drew a bye in Saturday's semifinal round.

Pirates Throttle Second Place San Francisco, 6-1

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Bob Bailey scored three runs and slammed out a two-run homer, and Joe Gibbon pitched a eight-hitter Saturday as the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the San Francisco Giants 6-1.

The Pirates got an unearned run in the third, when Bailey got on board on an error, went to second on an infield out and scored on a double by Bob Clemente.

Then Bailey started a four-run fourth with a homer that followed a walk to Dick Schofield. Bill Virdon and Clemente followed with singles that chased Giant starter Ron Herbel.

Bailey scored the other Pittsburgh run in the sixth inning, when he walked and came home on a single by Bob Clemente.

The Giants got their only run in the ninth. Jim Hart tripled and scored on a infield hit by Jose Pagan.

The second place Giants got two men on in both the third and fourth innings, but both times the second runner reached after two were out. Nothing came of either mild threat.

Chiefs' Burford To Undergo Exam

There is a possibility Burford may need another operation, in which case he would be lost to the American League football team for about two months. He missed several games in 1962 after injuring his knee.

Bill Hartack, who will ride Northern Dancer in the Washington, D.C. Itnernational on Nov. 11, has ridden in three of the previous classics at Laurel.

Milwaukee Runs Past Cubs, 8-4

CHICAGO (AP) — Hank Aaron hit relief pitcher Lew Burdette's first pitch in the eighth inning for a home run and the Milwaukee Braves went on to an 8-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

It was Milwaukee's fourth straight victory and sixth in the last seven, and the Cubs' fifth straight less.

Aaron's homer, his 17th, broke a 4-4 tie. The Braves added a run in the eighth on Rico Carty's double, an error and a sacrifice fly, and added two more in the ninth, Wade Blasingame got the victory.

The Cubs had pulled even with three runs in the seventh off starter Denny Lemaster and Reliever Warren Spahn.

White Sox Net Win Over Senators, 9-8

WASHINGTON (AP) — Singles by Pete Ward and Dave Nicholson followed by Ron Hansen's sacrifice fly in the 10th inning gave the Chicago White Sox a 9-8 victory over Washington Saturday.

Dick Phillips' homer with two out in the ninth had tied the score for the Senators and forced the game into overtime.

The victory nullified a fine performance by Washington's Don Lock, who drove in five runs with his 18th homer, two sacrifice flies and a bases-loaded single.

Stephens had two straight triples for the Sox, driving in two runs in the first inning, and scoring on a double play ball after leading off with a triple in the third.

Lock's big bat gave the Senators a 4-3 lead after five innings but Chicago scored two in the sixth. Dave Stenhouse walked Stephens with two out, and balked him to second base. Hansen drove in the tying run with a single and Jim Landis doubled Hansen home.

Ward's 16th home run off Jim Hannan gave the White Sox a 7-4 lead in the top of the seventh but the first four Senators in the bottom of the inning reached base against Eddie Fisher on a walk, two singles and a hit batsman. Ed Brinkman drove in the tying runs with a single off Hoyt Wilhelm.

Angels Dump Red Sox

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Right-hander Dean Chance, given an edge on consecutive fourth-inning homers by Willie Smith and Joe Adcock, ran his winning streak to six games Saturday night as the Los Angeles Angels defeated Boston 4-1.

Chance, picking up his 11th victory in 16 decisions, allowed eight hits and reduced his earned-run average to 1.69, best in the American League.

Chance struck out seven, walked one and let only two Boston runners past first base over the last seven innings.

Chance has allowed only four earned runs in his last 54 innings—the equivalent of six complete games.

The Red Sox took a 1-0 lead in the second, when Tony Horton got aboard on a fielder's choice, moved to third on a bad-hop single by Ed Bressoud and scored on a single by Bob Tillman.

Pro Football Moves To Action Soon

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writ

Professional football moves out of the training camps and onto the playing fields this week with Friday night's game between the Chicago Bears and the College All-Stars at Chicago showing the way. Before another Sunday rolls around all 22 teams in the two major leagues, except the Pittsburgh Steelers, will have played a game.

The Steelers draw a first-week bye because the Bears play the collegians in the annual gaem at Soldier Field. That means one of the 14 teams in the National Football League must sit out the first week. As a result Buddy Parker's Steelers will play only four exhibitions instead of the five scheduled for the others.

The return of Paul Hornung to action with Green Bay against the St. Louis Cardinals, a prime Eastern Conference title hope, will focus attention on their Saturday night game in New Orleans.

The New York Giants, defending champs in the East, will test their revamped ball club for the first time Saturday night in the home park of Dutch Van Brocklin's Minnesota Vikings.

Joe Kuharich, who has been trading and shuffling the Philadelphia Eagles since he took over as head coach, will try to put the pieces together against Baltimore Saturday night in Hershey, Pa.

Sonny Jurgensen., Washington's new quarterback, and Sam Huff of Giant fame, will play their first game with the Redskins Saturday night in Charlotte, N.C. against the strong Detroit Lions.

Dallas, minus injured Buddy Dial but with Tommy McDonald in the line-up, plays its first of three west coast games Saturday night in Los Angeles against Swede Svare's Rams.

The American Football League has two Saturday night exhibition openers. The New York Jets will take on the Buffalo Bills in TMAMPA, Fla. and Denver will provide the first test for the defending champion San Diego Chargers at San Diego.

In action Sunday, Aug. 9, will be Houston at Boston and Kansas City at Oakland in the AFL and Cleveland at San Francisco in the nfl.

Dick Modzelewski of Cleveland, formerly of the New York Giants, has the longest consecutive game streak of active players in the NFL with 138. Jim Ringo of Philadelphia, an ex-Packer, and Ed Brown of Pittsburgh, are next with 126. Leo Nomellini of the San Francisco 49ers who retired after the 1963 season, holds the record of 174 games.

Israel Lang, a free agent from Tennessee AI, has been making a big noise in the camp of the Eagles at Hershey, Pa. The Giants are gabbing about their free agent sleeper, Ernie Wheelwright of Southern Illinois. Washington can't wait until the All-Star game is over to install Charley Taylor of Arizona State as their running back. Don Thompson, a third year man from Richmond, is heir apparent to Gino Marchetti at Baltimore although the Colts still hope Gino will change his mind about retiring. "Gino can come back any time up to Sept. 13," said Coach Don Shula.

Angelo Coia beat Frank Budd, the Olympic sprinter, in a relay race with full football equipment the other day at the Redskins' camp in Carlisle, Pa. John Seedborg, a kicker from Arizona State, is giving Bob Khayat a few worries with the Skins. The rookie kicks field goals and punts. Baltimore expects 40,000 plus at $1 a copy for charity to see intra-squad game Monday night in home park. New York Jets also split up for a squad game Sunday at Hofstra College. Atlantic Coast Football League season opens Aug. 9 with Providence at Portland, Maine.

Russian Horse Racing

By ANTHONY WHITE
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP)—The horses are state owned and the prize money goes back to the government, but that doesn't keep you from losing your shirt at Moscow's racetrack.

It won't stop you from making your fortune in rubles, either.

Moscow's one and only racetrack, the Hippodrome, doesn't have the class or tradition of Epsom or the excitement of Churchill Downs. But to this city's relatively small band of racegoers it is the best entertainment in town.

Three days a week the track is open—on Wednesday, Friday and Sunday. On a weekday there likely will be a crowd of 7,000 there, maybe as many as 20,000 on Sunday.

That makes it a rather historic occasion. In the days of the Czars, American trotters and pacers and American drivers often raced in Russia. But until now, none has appeared since the 1917 revolution. In recent years, Russian horses, both thoroughbreds and harness racers, have raced several times in international races in America.

"He's a good horse. He'll win," Yevgenny Dolmatov, the director of the Hippodrome, said of Apex Hanover.

Ninth Inning Rally Nets Orioles Win Over A's

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles rallied in the ninth inning for four runs and beat Kansas City 5-2 Saturday night.

Three of the runs scored on Dick Brown's double with the bases loaded. The victory kept the Orioles within four percentage points of the first place New York Yankees.

Until the ninth Orlando Pena had permitted the Orioles only two hits and held a 2-1 lead on Ed Charles' fifth inning home.

Luis Aparicio and Norm Siebern, the two first Orioles to bat in the ninth, both singled to send Pena to the showers. John Wyatt replaced him and Boog Powell singled Aparicio home with the tying run. Brooks Robinson beat out a bunt to fill the bases. Sam Bowens forced Siebern at the plate but Brown then came through with the base-clearing two-bagger to the right field corner.

Siebern's double in the first and Jerry Adair's homer in the third were the only hits pena allowed until the ninth.

Frank Bertaina, a 20-year-old lefthander up from Elmira of the Eastern League, turned in a six-hitter for the Orioles in his first major league start before he was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

Redskins Coach Gives Team Day Off

The Redskins finished three weeks of work Friday with a long game condition scrimmage before 7,000 fans. The defensive team beat the offensive team 19-10, and McPeak seemed satisfied with what he saw.

Three Golfers Share Lead In Canadian Open Tourney

MONTREAL (AP) — Young Ray Floyd carved out a three-under-par 68 Saturday and moved into a share of the lead with Arnold Palmer and Bill Collins, each with 209, after three rounds of the Canadian Open Golf Championship.

Floyd, a 21-year-old pro from Fayetteville, N.C. now playing out of St. Andrews, Ill., came from three strokes off the pace with a brilliant front nine over the Pinegrove course to catch Palmer and the husky Collins, who had shared the halfway lead at 138.

Palmer and Collins, a Baltimore native playing out of Grossinger's, N.Y., each matched par 71 on the rolling grounds of Pinegrove, while young Floyd forged a five-under-par 31 on the front nine, best score for that stretch so far in the tourney.

He lost his steadiness along the back nine, however, missing par three times and collecting only one birdie for a 37, two over par.

Palmer, the Masters' champ who won his first professional title in this tourney eight years ago, was sailing serenely along two under par after the first nine when he came a-cropper.

He parred the first three holes coming home, but at the par five 13th put his second shot into a trap, overshot the green getting out, came back, chipped on 10 feet from the cup then two-putted for a double bogey seven.

He got one back with a birdie at the short 15th and was par the rest of the way.

Collins was up and down over the front nine with three bogeys and four birdies, and was one under on the back nine.

Tied at 211 were Dan Sikes Jr. of Ponte Vedra, Fla., Gary Player of South Africa and Billy Casper of Corona, Calif. Sikes had a third round 68, Player 70 and Casper 72.

The cut-off was 225, sending 65 pros and five amateurs into Sunday's final round.

SEED SOWING—Dow Finsterwald, Broadmoor professional, initiates the seed sowing on the new Broadmoor 18-hole championship of the present Broadmoor golf course. Finsterwald gives a helping hand as much of the design construction of this Robert Trent Jones course was supervised by Finsterwald. All of the ground molding and underground water system is completed, and the seed is expected to take hold before fall. If all goes well with nature, the new Championship 18 will be playable in the spring of 1965. (Photo by Bob McIntyre)

Boys 16-Under Tennis Finals Set Today

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Third-seeded Alberto Carrero of Puerto Rico and unranked Steve Avoyer of San Diego Calif., will face each other Sunday for the national boys 16-and-under tennis championship.

Carrero eliminated top-seeded James Rombeau of Studio City, Calif., 6-4, 7-9, 6-4 in semifinal play Saturday.

Avoyer earned his final berth with a 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 victory over fifth-seeded Stanley Pasarell of Puerto Rico.

Ballymoss, Panaslipper, Chamier and Thirteen of Diamonds, all winners of the Irish Derby, have competed in the Washington D.C. International at Laurel.

Bold Experience Wins Sorority Stakes Race

OCEANPORT, N.J. (AP) — Bold Experience, a daughter of Bold Ruler from C.T. Chenery's Meadow Stable, got a measure of revenge Saturday when she snapped Queen Empress' string of victories at six and won the $100,000 Sorority Stakes for 2-year-old fillies at Monmouth Park in record time.

The Meadow filly went into the six-furlong race with a record of three victories and three seconds in six starts, but she twice had bowed to the Queen, another miss sired by Bold Ruler from Mrs. H.C. Phipps' Wheatley Stable.

Queen Empress, even-money favorite of the crowd of 30,717, had to settle for third money in the field of seven as Mrs. Milton Erlanger's Rhodie finished second after setting the early pace. Bold Experience, under the lashing drive of Bobby Ussery, scored by 2½ lengths with Rhodie another two lengths in front of Queen Empress.

Ussery sent Bold Experience over the three-quarters of a mile in 1:09 3-5 to cut two-fifths of a second off the stake record hung up by Affectionately in 1962.

The winner, earning $60,000 to boost her bank account to $130,340, paid $8.20, $4 and $2.40. Rhodie, also previously unbeaten in three starts, returned $3.40 and $2.40. Queen Empress paid $2.20 to show.

Bold Experience, bred by the Meadow Stable, was rated off Rhodie's pace to the upper part of the stretch. Then Ussery let the chestnut filly loose. She quickly moved to the front and widened the gap through the final one-quarter mile.

Bears Favored Over College All-Stars

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—The College All-Stars, who stunned the Green Bay Packers last year, may find it much tougher trying to trap the two-touch-down favored Chicago Bears in this year's All-Star football game at Soldier Field Friday night.

The lethal passing of Ron VanderKelen and unerring toe of Bob Jencks led the three touchdown underdog collegians to a startling 20-17 upset of the then champion Packers of the National Football League.

But the 31st All-Star game, entering which the pros hold a 19-9 edge with two ties played, sends a dedicated, grim Bear club against the pick of the 1963 college seniors.

The champion Bears, coached by 69-year-old George Halas, already have pledged the 1964 season to teammates Willie Galimore and John Farrington, killed in a July 26 auto crash near the Bears' Rensselaer, Ind., training camp.

If further inspiration or determination is needed, the bears also will be bent on revenge for a woeful showing in their last All-Star game appearance.

That was the 1947 game in which the Bears were humbled 16-0 in an "air conditioned" downfall. At halftime of that game, All-Star Coach Frank Leahy kept his players outdoors at one end of sweltering Soldier Field.

But the Bears hurried from the humid, 90-degree weather in to their air-conditioned locker room. "When they came back in to that oven on the field, they nearly fell flat on their faces," recalled Northwestern Coach Alex Agase, then an All-Star guard.

* * *

Otto Graham, who sends his seventh All-Star team against the Bears, is mainly concerned over the manner in which the pro champs may respond to the Galimore-Farrington tragedy.

"With the initial shock over," said Graham, "it is only natural that they will play their hearts out. I know I would. I think it will make the Bears just that much harder to defeat."

Graham, former star quarterback for the Cleveland Browns and now U.S. Coast Guard Academy coach, has had his All-Star game preparations at Northwestern University complicated by an exceptional rash of injuries.

At times, the All-Star staff has been hard-pressed filling out two units from the 47-player squad for contact drills. However, most of the pro-football bound collegians are expected to be in shape for Friday night's contest.

Spearheading the All-Star effort to crack the NFL's best defense will be a trio of sharp-pitching quarterbacks — Pete Beathard of Southern California, George Mira of Miami of Florida, and Jack Concannon of Boston College.

If one is able to take charge as did the fancy-dancing, bulls-eye passing VanderKelen against the Packers, the All-Stars stand a chance against the Bears, whose offense did not cut any NFL swath last season.

The All-Stars have a raft of good receivers, including ends Dave Parks of Texas Tech, Chuck Logan of Northwestern (a Bear rookie), Mel Profit of UCLA, Ted Davis of Georgia Tech and Hal Bedsole of Southern California, and halfbacks Pal Warfield of Ohio State.

Running backs in Graham's pro type offense will be swift Chuck Taylor, also tabbed for defensive duty, and Tony Lorick of Arizona State, Willis Crenshaw of Kansas State, Joe Don Looney of Oklahoma, Bob Smith of North Texas State and Matt Snell of Ohio State.

The All-Star defensive line includes such behemoths as George Bednar, 240, Notre Dame; Ken Kortas, 290, Louisville; Scott Appleton, 235, Texas; Tom Keating, 240, Michigan; Ed Lothamer, 240, Michigan State, and George Seals, 250, Missouri.

All-Star linebackers, coping with the thrusts of the Bears Ron Bull, Joe Marconi and Charley Bivins, include two Iowa stars, Wally Hilgenberg and Mike Reilly; Dan Conners, Miami, Fla.; Dave Wildox, Oregon; Matt Snorton, Michigan State; Tom Crutcher, Texas Christian; and Ralph Baker, Penn State.

Backfield defenders against the passes of veteran Bear quarterback Bill Wade will include Jerry Richardson, West Texas State; Perry Dunn, Mississippi; Phil Krause, Iowa; Mel Renfro, Oregon; Duke Carlisle, Texas; and Ode Burrell, Mississippi State.

The All-Star game, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., will be televised and broadcast nationally by the American Broadcasting Company, starting at 8:45 p.m., EST.

Master Dennis Wins Arlington Handicap Race

A crowd of 27,802 saw jockey Don Brumfield score his sixth stakes victory during the 36-day Arlington Park Jockey Club meeting which ended Saturday.

Cedar Key, the 7-5 favorite, finished fourth but was disqualified and placed fifth for bumping in the stretch.

Master Dennis, weighted at 112, paid$19.60, $7.80 and $5.20. He ran the 1 3-16 miles over the turf in 1:55 4-5 and earned $33,750 for owner Louis E. Wolfson of Jacksonville, Fla. Parka returned $5.20 and $4. Carteret was $5.60 to show.

Mickey Wright Leads Milwaukee Tourney

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mickey Wright survived an encounter with a water hazard on the 16th hole and retained her three-stroke lead Saturday at the three-quarter mark of the 72-hole Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament.

Despite a fat eight on the 417-yard, par 4 16th, Miss Wright finished her round with a two-over-par 74 for a 54-hole total of 217 on the North Shore Country Club's layout.

Still battling an annoying stomach ulcer, the 29-year-old queen of the ladies pro circuit was two under regulation figures after 15 holes of the third round played under a blistering sun.

Then Miss Wright sent her second shot into a winding brook and took a penalty stroke. Her next shot was short of the green and she finally got on in five. Slightly unnerved, she needed three putts to get down. One of her missed putts was from less than two feet.

Ruth Jessen, Sandra McClinton and Sue Maxwell were locked in a threeway tie at 220 for second place in trying to stop Miss Wright from winning her eighth tournament in 15 appearances this year. Miss Jessen matched par with a 37-35—72. Miss McClinton took a third-round 74. Miss Maxwell carded 36-36—72.

Another two strokes back was Mary Mills, who had a 72, and veteran Betsy Rawls, who added a 73 to her two previous rounds.

Brigitte Varangot, the French and British champion from Paris, and Maureen Crum of Plant City, Fla. shared the amateur lead. Each carded 77 for a total of 234.

Harvard Crew Captures National Rowing Race

NEW YORK (AP) — A Harvard University four with coxswain shell captured the feature race Saturday as nine finals were contested in the second day of the 90th National Rowing Championships.

Nine more finals Sunday will complete the three-day regatta on Orchard Beach's 2,000 meter Olympic course.

Rowing with four men and the coxswain from its eight-oared crew, Harvard defeated Philadelphia's Schuylkill Navy Composite by one length in 6:33.1. New England's Laconia-Riverside, the defending champion, was third in 6:38.3 and the Vesper B.C. of Philadelphia fourth in 6:44.5.

Vesper had four of its Olympic-bound eight-oared crew on this team and it turned in a disappointing performance.

The Harvard Crew of Paul Gunderson, Bow; Jim Tew, No. 2; Harry Pollock, No. 3, and Pollock's brother Tom, at stroke with coxswain Ed Washburn picked up its stroke to 40 beats at the 1,200 meter mark after trailing Laconia-Riverside, with a 41 beat, up to that point.

Schuylkill Navy also picked up and challenged Harvard down to the wire. Vesper, at 37 beats, was never in the race.

The Penn A.C. of Philadelphia came up with its first national title since 1941 when its intermediate eight-oared team won a eight-foot decision over the Potomac B.C. of Washington, D.C. the winners were clocked in 6:26.4 while Potomac did 6:27.1.

Seymour Cromwell III, 30-year-old naval architect who won the diamond sculls crown at Henley, England four weeks ago, won the quarter mile dash handily in 1:14.1.

The Vesper pair with coxswain team of Boyce Budd and Emery Clark with John Quinn at coxswain rowed the fastest time for this event, winning in 7:19.8. The clocking was two seconds better than any Americans had done pleviously. The Stanford, Calif. Rowing Club was second in 7:21.6.

John Welchli of the Detroit B.C. captured his 10th national title when he took the 150-pound quarter mile dash in 1:18.3. He won by a foot over John Sonberg of New Rochelle, N.Y. Welchli will row in two more finals Sunday, the 150-pound single sculls and the double schulls.

Ashe, Graebner to Meet In Eastern Tourney Finals

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — Unseeded Clark Graebner of Beachwood, Ohio, and fifth-seeded Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va. upset a pair of U.S. Davis Cuppers Saturday and advanced to the final of the Eastern Grass Court Tennis Championships.

Graebner eliminated Frank Froehling, No. 2 seed from Coral Gables, Fla., 19-17, 7-5, 11-9 in a 3½-hour marathon. Ashe ousted defending champion agene Scott of St. James, N.Y. 11-9, 6-4, 6-4.

Ashe, who knocked off top-seeded Dennis Ralston earlier in the tournament, and Graebner, whose victims included Davis Cup player Marty Riessen, will meet for the title Sunday.

Graebner literally wore down Froehling, a gangling 6-foot-5 Trinity, Tex. College student. After a trade of service breaks in the eight and ninth games of the 90-minute first set, Froehling's backhand failed him completely in the key 36th game. He made four forehand errors and lost the set.

In the second set, they traded breaks again in the seventh and eighth games. In the 12th game Froehling netted two forehands before missing a gamble at a down-the-line half-volley.

The key break in the final set came in the last game when Froehling's forehand once again failed him.

The big break in the first set of the Ashe-Scott match came in the 19th game when the Negro star, who plays No. 1 for the UCLA team, hit two vicious returns of service off what was supposed to be Scott's best serve.

There was one break in each of the other sets — in the first game of the second set and the seventh game of the third.

Libel Suits Against Times 'Satisfied'

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Libel suits by Montgomery's three city commissioners against New York Times were formally ended Friday.

The suits of Commissioners L. B. Sullivan and Frank Parks were dismissed, with costs taxed against the Times. The suit of Mayor Earl James was also closed out with an entry indicting it had been satisfied.

Attorneys would not tell the amount of the settlement, but an authoritative source said the Times agreed to pay court costs and expenses incurred by attorneys for the plaintiffs. This included about $13,000, in costs taxed against Sullivan.

Both James and Sullivan were awarded $500,000 judgments. But the U.S. Supreme Court reversed the Sullivan award on appeal in a precedent-setting decision that held that a public official must prove malice to win a libel judgment.

The Parks case, also for $500,000, never came to trial.

The suits grew out of an advertisement appearing in the Times which was critical of actions taken by Montgomery officials and police demonstrators.

CU Chemist's Paper Discusses Cancer Theory

BOULDER — A University of Colorado chemist has edited a recently published booklet which defines cancer and discusses possible causes and the possibilities of future immunization against the disease.

Associate Prof. Alfred Hassner edited the 26-page booklet, Cancer Theory: A New Concept in Cancer Research," by Dr. Ignaz I. Schachter, a native of Austria and now a New York internist. The booklet was published in a limited edition by Pruett Press in Boulder.

Hassner, who has done basic cancer research for eight years, believes Schachter's theories may stimulate further research.

The first part of the booklet was published in German before World War II. After the war Schachter did limited research in Italian laboratories before coming to the United States in 1949.

Hassner described the booklet as valuable to both researchers and laymen. The first part of the booklet defines cancer and analyzes some possible causes of the disease. The second part describes some preliminary experiments in which micro-organisms are transformed into cancer-destroying agents, an approach that conceivably could lead to development of an effective serum.

Playground News

By PENNY HOTCHKISS

The past week at the Colorado Springs area playgrounds was entitled "Our Week" and was the week during which the leaders and children on each individual playground were to choose the things they most wanted to do. Some of the playgrounds chose a particular theme for the whole week, and some chose one for each day. Some had no particular theme, but just planned their events as the children wanted to do them.

On Tuesday, the children of Audubon School playground visited the Canada Dry Bottling plant. Wednesday at Audubon was Easter day. The children painted eggs and had an Easter egg hunt. Then on Thursday, a birthday party was held in honor of Barbara Bates. Everyone played "pin the nose on the clown" and received a sucker from Barbara, after making birthday hats. Friday found Audubon on a trip to Lazyland in Austin Bluffs with Queen Palmer playground. The children played baseball and had a bubble gum blowing contest, the winners of which were Therese Pogar and Kenny Davison.

The week at Bott Park was pirate week. The children made pirate costumes and had a treasure hunt. Then the whole park engaged in a game of Capture the Flag. At Bott, as at the rest of the playgrounds, mosaics with colored gravel were the main craft for the week.

Bonnyville Park began the week with a scavenger hunt and plaster of paris work on Monday. Tuesday, a pet show was held. Dick Wright's pheasant won first place as the most unusual pet, with Robbie Long's dog in second place and Christopher Hannager's hampster in third. On Wednesday, the children made Hawaiian leis and then held a watermelon feast. Over 100 children were there. A limbo contest was held, with Dick Wright, Billie Burns, Dan Wright, and Bob Pinack taking the honors. Then a bubble gum blowing contest was held, with Rita Francis taking first place, Vickie Stienfelt, and Mark Lowderman taking second and third places.

Thursday morning, Bonny hosted Pike playground in softball and won 6-5. Then on Friday, they played Boulder Park, defeating them 23-5.

At Boulder Park, the activities of the week included an Easter egg hunt and an apple bobbing contest. The big event of the week was a pet show. The most popular pet was "Bomber" shown by Rob Ryan. The pet voted "cutest dog" was "Cocoa," shown by Pam Radford. The cutest cat was "Tabby", shown by Julie Denny. The best trained dog was "Taffy", owned by Jo Klein. The most unusual pet was "Crispy", a hamlet owned by Cleo Richards.

On Thursday, Boulder visited the Rainbow Bakery, where each child received a package of rolls.

At Bristol School this week, Monday was story day. The children heard stories and legends from all over the world that day. Wednesday was craft day, and they spent the whole afternoon working on gravel mosaic. Then Thursday, the Bristol Bombers had a softball game at Whittier, which they won 18-11.

At Buena Vista, a bubble gum blowing contest was held. The winner was Charlie Parker with a 6½-inch bubble. A trading treasure hunt was also held. The winners of that were Mike Porter, Steve Meyers, and Gary Bilbrey, who traded a penny for a ring.

The main event of the week at Buena Vista was a pet show. Colette Baughman's pet mule, "Snow Ball" won first place. Toni Woldruff's dog "Oscar" won second place, and Sandy Stubbs' cat "Thomasina" was third.

Garfield School playground also held a trading treasure hunt this week. The leader of the winning team was Willard Thomas, who traded one penny for 86 pennies.

Garfield took a hike to Monument Pool this week, too. After swimming everyone roasted marshmallows and hiked back to the playground.

Also special at Garfield was a pet show. The first place winner was a dog, "Toy," shown by Debbie and Sandy Sanches. Second was a cat, "Tinkerbell," shown by Rosie Vigil, and third was a dog, "Mister," owned by Clint Colbert.

This was "Indian trails week" at Howbert School playground. The special event of the week was a hike, on Thursday, to the Garden of the Gods. The entire group hiked to High Point and then the older children hiked on to Hidden Inn. Everyone watched the Indians dance and had an enjoyable time.

Howbert also held a Kalah game tournament this week. The winners were, first place, John Louell, second place, Sandra Matthews, and third place, Tommy Farrell.

Jefferson also took a trip to Austin Bluffs this week.

The week at Longfellow School playground featured a big talent show. Admission to see the show was three cents, and invitations were sent out and signs posted. The announcer of the show was Linda Feiney. The can-can girls were Lorrie Stockton, Nancy Gilcrest, Barbara Wolfe, Colleen Lannon, Susie and Jo Ellen Davis, Sandy Vieregge, Denise Schmidt, Mimi Manning, Cathy Hesse, Erin and Lynn Lannon, and Kristy and Sue Walker. The Ten Little Indians were played by Dean Schoener, Kim and Mark Routh, Mark Schmidt, Jeff and Jimmy Creedon, and John Kiely. The Rollong Dog Bisquits, a singing group, included Bunke and Steve Rogers and Robbie Marshall. Beth Gill and Dona Sosnowski performed "As I Go A-Wandering." The flutes and girls choir was made up of Barbara and Kathy and Debbie Creedon and Maureen and Diane Kiely. The DR. KILDARE show was performed by Steve Rogers, Gary Hesse, and Diane Hawkins. The Red Skelton show was presented by Randy Stockton and Gary Hesse. Erin Lannon was responsible for the commercials.

It was favorite holiday week at Queen Palmer playground. A trip to Prospect Lake was planned for Tuesday but rained out. Wednesday was Thanksgiving day, and Thursday was Halloween day, complete with a spook house. Friday was spent in Lazyland at Austin Bluffs with Audubon playground.

At Steele School playground, each day was met with a new activity. Tuesday was Backwards day. Everyone came with his clothes on backwards, and the entire morning was upside-down. The leader became one of the children, and the children took turns leading their favorite games.

Wednesday was treasure hunt day. The children started with a small object and went around the neighborhood trading for other objects. Everyone came back with such interesting prizes that it was impossible to determine a winner. Following the hunt, Bruce Windsor, Randy Broughton, and Scott Murray served refreshments to everyone from their treasure hunt loot.

On Thursday, a surprise party was given by Bruce Windsor, Randy and Sandy Broughton, Scott Murray, and Kada Prible. Everyone had refreshments and then spent the rest of the morning working on gravel mosaic, since it was a craft day.

Friday at Steele, a pet show was held. Valerie Romano and Cindy Nance presented a trick show with their dogs, "Stoopsie," "Gypsy," and "Pancho." Sandee Schlaepfer, Randi Barringer, and Janice Ellis brought French poodles, all different sizes. Cindy Barringer showed a Chihuahua, and Kada Prible also brought her dog. Pam and Carol Benton showed "McThing," a Siamese cat. Wayne Epperson and Beaver Duran each brought a bunny, and the show ended with Cindy Nance's two canaries and Cindy and Sherrie Duran's talking parakeet, "Tweetie Pie."

The main event of the week at Thorndale Park was a trip to Prospect Lake on Thursday. 52 children and parents went.

In softball, Thorndale defeated Jefferson on Monday and came back to win over Will Rogers, 14-11 on Friday.

The main event at Whittier playground this week was a "Christmas in July" party, complete with carol singing, Christmas cookie tree, and games.

Doris Colzani, the roving supervisor, came to Will Rogers to help with games and crafts, and most of the week was spent working on various projects.

Next week, in conjunction with the Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo, is "Wheel Rodeo Week" on the playgrounds. Everyone is looking forward to attending the rodeo parade Thursday and to having a miniature, vehicle rodeos on the playgrounds.

Krupp Empire Wins Delay in Selling

BONN (AP) — The Krupp industrial empire has won another year's delay of an order to sell half its holdings as a penalty for using slave labor in World War II.

Alfried Krupp, in prison for eight years because his firm had used slave labor, regained his vast iron-steel-coal complex on condition that half be sold. Krupp has claimed there are no buyers for the property.

GE Has Entered Large Scale Computer Market

The General Electirc Company has actively entered the large-scale computer market with a new family of general purpose machines, the Compatibles-600.

The GE-625 and 635, subject of industry speculation for many months, were unveiled today as the first members of the new family.

The two new computers will be marketed to all large-scale computer users for business data processing, scientific and realtime applications. Prices of the 600's start at $1.75 million or $41,000 rental per month.

The GE-635 has one-microsecond memory and can add well over a half-million numbers per second. The GE-625 has a two-microsecond memory. These memories are directly addressable and are available in sizes up to 262,144 words.

The largest computer in General Electric's line is now the GE-635. It adds well over a half-million numbers a second, carries a price tag of $2 million and up, and leases for $45,00 into the hundred thousands ,per month.

Along with the new computers, a new line of G. E. magnetic tape units also was introduced. Available for both the GE-400 and GE-600, they employ pneumatic drive and photocell protective devices–essentially eliminating broken, scratched and stretched tape.

The G-E manager said the hardware and software were developed concurrently. He added that this is probably the first such instance where both machine and the programming were brought along at the same time.

The development team consisted of engineers, scientists, and mathematicians who were users, programmers or supervisors of large-scale computer installations in several General Electric departments.

"As a result of parallel, closely-knit hardware and software development," he said, "software for the system is very well-advanced at this time. This will mean that first deliveries of the 600-line will be made with complete operating software."

He further pointed out that the system includes advanced features promising far more computing per dollar than other large-scale computers.

The 600 system central processor can execute two or more programs stored in memory virtually simultaneously on a time-shared basis. The 600's also provide special features to make possible for the first time, practical multiprocessing, where several computers work together cooperatively to process large amounts of data.

The 600 line also is particularly well adapted to military applications, with total mission compatibility for commercial, aerospace and ground-based military computers, according to its developer. Programming for General Electric's military computers, may be developed, checked and debugged on the GE-625 and 635.

Modular component design provide for horizontal expansion of the system--instead of upward extension to higher-powered systems--to permit exact "tailoring" of initial system and facilitate future growth, the G-E official said. Ability to expand by adding identical components which operate in parallel also enhances system reliability.

Castro Could Fall, Keating Declares

SYRACUSE, N. R. (UPI) — Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.R., said today Cuban Premier Fidel Castro would fall from power quickly "if the free world, including Canada and our NATO allies, refused to trade and extend credits to him."

In a speech prepared for delivery before the 46th annual convention of the New York State Department of the American Legion, Keating said:

"We should establish an inter - American subversion board which would coordinate the efforts of the authorities in every western Hemisphere country to suppress Communist subversion.

"Castro has made no secret that he wishes to bring communism to all of Latin America . . . We know Castro's aims —it would be the height of folly not to take steps to keep him from carrying out his desires right before our eyes."

Is Photography an Art? Argument Still Rages

By LYNN POOLE
The Johns Hopkins University

Is photography an art, a science or a mechanical process? This question has been argued hotly — often violently — ever since the camera obscura was first described in 1553 by Giovanni Battista della Porta.

Painters and sculptors, scholars and dilletantes claimed that photography is merely a process of producing images of things on a sensitized paper by mechanical means. In contrast, they said that ART is created by a person with a special sensitivity who translates what he sees into something universal, or delves into his subconscious to express sublime truths that stimulate viewers. After Sir John Herschel coined the word photography in 1839, a British art critic snapped, "Photographers simply record what everyone sees and knows, thus they are not artists."

Time and understanding softened the arguments into a low key rumble, as photographers proved their ability to stimulate viewers and to produce superb artistic creations. They did it by applying their own sensitivity to capture and create unique and meaningful images on paper.

Early in the 19th century the S-Trio, (Steichen, Steiglitz and Strand) began showing photographs through which they proved that the creative process in photography is akin to that of painting, sculpture and the other plastic arts. Using amazing optical and chemical manipulation they broke the artificiality and naturalistic that had existed in so much of photography. By superimposition of negatives, blurring of prints, cropping for effect, and selection of special photo - papers the S-Trio and many others created true works of art. With the advent of color film, a new dimension was open to the art-photographers. Soon, often grudgingly photographs of high artistic merit were hung in museums.

Today, the finest photographers stand on a par with artists working in other media. Yet, one still hears the question, "But, IS photography an art?" I heard it from a friend to whom I handed my magnificent copy of "Photographs, Harry Callahan," published by Van Riper & Thompson, Inc., of Santa Barbara, Calif.

I asked my friend to thumb through the 125 photographs in Callahan's book — to think, feel and absorb. The first 26 photos are of his statuesque wife and finely-formed daughter. . . . . standing on a lake shore in front of starkly bare trees, in a weirdly shaped forest denuded of leaves, standing nude in a park with all the grandeur of a Maillol statue, sitting bare in a bare room with an abstract pattern of light from two windows, and, perhaps the most artistically evocative of all, the mother and daughter silhouetted in black, reminiscent of Henry Moore's sculpture — but not a pastiche of it.

Another section shows Callahan's deep understanding and love for the forms and meanings of homes and warehouses, beaches and sand dunes. Patterns of windows and doorways photographed with an intuitive eye, create a meaningful abstruction — sometimes intense, often relaxing. Day and night photos of people, ordinary people, walking the streets of Chicago force the mind to perceive an entire gamut of life that we pass without seeing as we hurry along city streets. In his studio Callahan adds his own deep, dark dimensions by shading out areas and turning them black, thereby throwing the prime subject of the scene forcefully into the mind. Photos from unusual angles, superimpositions or double exposures of two scenes, extreme close-ups of people all add to the emotional reaction one gains from Callahan's art.

A series of photos prove his command of his medium through extraordinary photos of sunlight on water, flowers, waving grasses — all done with an economy of stark line for which the Japanese are so famous. The first impact of these etched-line photos is amazement at how he could produce them technically; amazement ebbs as you are caught in the flow and begin interpreting, apperceiving them in the light of your own life-experiences. A tiny photo of a bush in the snow suddenly becomes a symbol of man's struggle to survive.

On and on, page after page the excitement mounts, with a pause to read Callhan's words, "It's the subject matter that counts. I'm interested in revealing the subject in a new way to intensify it. A photo is able to capture a moment that people can't always see. Wanting to see more makes a person grow as a person and growing makes you want to show more of life around you."

My questioner looked and read; handed me the bound-in-black volume with the comment, "You win. It is a special art, more exciting because it provides you with a special way of seeing. And, so few of us see, we merely look."

Gen. Maroun Takes Over Command at Ft. Carson

At 9:30 a.m. Saturday in a brief but precise military honor guard, Maj. Gen. Autery J. Maroun was officially welcomed to Ft. Carson as the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) and Ft Carson commander.

Gen. Maroun, who comes to the 5th Infantry from duty in the office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, Headquarters, Department of the Army in the Pentagon, reviewed the troops of the honor guard which was under the command of Capt. Donald P. Hodgkinson of the 1st Brigade.

A salute battery, under the command of Capt. Royce Smithson of Battery C, 1st Battalion, 19th Artillery, provided a 13-gun salute for the occasion.

Saturday evening, Gen. Maroun was welcomed informally at a reception at the Ft. Carson Officers, Club given by the officers and ladies of the mountain post.

A 1935 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, Gen. Maroun was born in Shreveport, La., on April 19, 1914. He was appointed a second lieutenant of Infantry in 1935.

Following a series of assignments with infantry units, he was assigned as an instructor in the infantry tactics at the infantry school, Ft. Benning, Ga., serving in that capacity from July, 1942 to December, 1943.

He served with the 95th Division in the European Theater of Operations to August, 1944, participating in the Northern France, Rhineland, and Central European campaigns.

After the war, he was commandant of the 4th Division Non-Commissioned Officers School. He attended Command and General Staff School as a student.

During his second tour in the European Command in 1946 to 1948, he served as executive officer to the chief of counsel for War Crimes in Nuremberg.

Later, in 1952, he was in Korea as commander of the 35th Infantry Regiment, and in 1953 was assigned as assistant Chief of Staff, G3, IX Corps. That same year he became the first G3 of the newly created X Corps.

He was deputy commander of the Berlin Command and Chief of Staff of the command in 1956 and 1957, and was assistant division commander of the 24th Infantry Division at Augsberg, Germany.

ANG Fighters To Seek '64 Ricks Trophy

The Air National Guard's nine F-89J fighter groups will compete in the 1964 Ricks Trophy event Aug. 23-29 at Tyndall Air Force Base, Fla., Maj. Gen. Winston P. Wilson, chief, National Guard Bureau, announced.

The Ricks Trophy, named for Maj. Gen. Earl T. Ricks, former chief of the Air Force Division, National Guard Bureau, is traditionally awarded at the annual convention of the Air Force Association. The winning crew will be guests of the AFA at this year's convention in Washington, D.C., Sept. 9-12. AFA sponsors the Ricks Trophy.

This year's competition will be an interceptor weapons meet under the auspices of the Air Defense Command. It will consist of two firing events using the AIR-2A Genie training rocket; one very low altitude electronic counter-measures non-firing intercept event; one very high altitude non-firing intercept mission at a supersonic target; and a weapons loading event.

Rules of the competition are designed to test the capibility of the ground crews and aircraft controllers as well as the pilots. The competition is very similar to last year's Air Force World-wide Fighter Interceptor Weapons Meet, William Tell, also held at Tyndall AFB, which was won by the Air National Guard's 146th Fighter Interceptor Squadron, Pennsylvania ANG, Pittsburgh.

To gain top scores, each unit must keep its planes in readiness to "scramble" on each phase of the competition within minutes after receiving instructions from ADC umpires. And each plane with its complex radar equipment must be in peak operating condition to meet its mission objectives. Arbitration committee and meet judges are from ADC.

Air National Guard units that will enter two aircraft and two crews in the Ricks competition are the 115th Fighter Group, Madison, Wis.; 119th Fighter Group, Fargo, N.D., 148th Fighter Group, Duluth, Minn.; 101st Fighter Group, Bangor, Me., 158th Fighter Group, Burlington, Vt., 132d Fighter Group, Des Moines, Iowa, 141st Fighter Group, Spokane, Wash., 142d Fighter Group, Portland, Ore., and 120th Fighter Group, Great Falls, Mont.

He succeeds William R. Baker, Jr., chairman of the Advertising Council and Honorary Chairman of Benton and Bowles, Inc.

Gen. O'Donnell previously served as a member of the USO Board of Governors and as National Campaign Chairman following his retirement from active military service in 1963.

The Brooklyn born general is a graduate of the Brooklyn Manual Training High School and the United States Military Academy at West Point, class of 1928.

Holder of 21 decorations and medals, he was given his second Distinguished Service medal by the late President John F. Kennedy in ceremonies at the White House on his retirement. His last post was as commander of the U.S. Pacific Air Force, Headquarters, Hickam Air Force Base, Hawaii.

Large and Small Men Able to Do Big Things

Big men have been known for their big deeds in Ft. Carson's 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized). Two men from the Operations Section of the 2d Battalion, 61st Infantry, a tall one and a short one, both big men, who have accomplished big deeds, are part of the Army's Ultimate Weapons System.

The fame of some of the tallest men survive in legends, which, if not authentic, are at least impressive.

A possible legend is evident in the 2d Battalion, 61st Infantry's Spec. 6 Patrick McGugin, intelligences sergeant, who looks to many battalion visitors, as if he could, with one hand, touch the ceiling of the office in which he works, while still standing with both large feet firmly anchored to the floor. Of course, he probably would have a little trouble plucking fruit from the top of a large apple tree, while standing at its foot or nail shingles on the top of his office without having to mount a ladder.

Tradition fails to preserve exploits of short men in American legend.

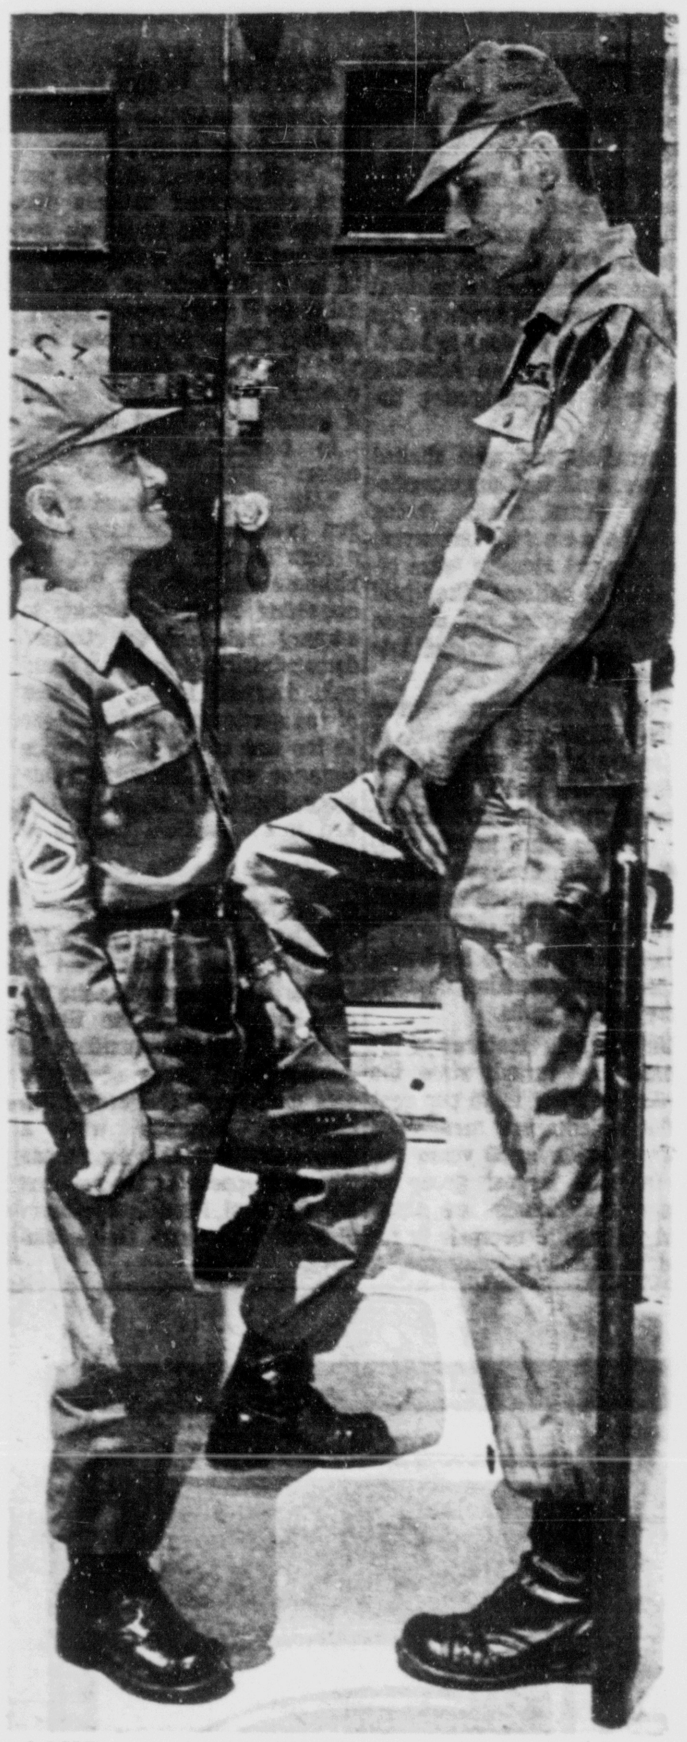
The ranks of professional giants, no doubt, have one thing in common with short men, such as M. Sgt. Paul S. Nakachi Sr., operations sergeant of the 2d Battalion, 61st Infantry, who just passed the height requirement for the Army by the heels of his combat boots. This similarity comes into effect when the time for buying cloths rolls around. What are you talking about? Is this some kind of a joke? These are among many questions asked by merchants after hearing requests made by two size groups — too tall and too short.

In Germany, while assigned to the 12th Infantry Regiment, Sgt. Nakachi and a 6 foot and 6 inch NCO from his section worked out a clever scheme. Nakachi's trousers were always too long and had to have several inches taken off the bottoms, while his non-commissioned officer buddy had trouble getting trousers long enough. Nakachi simply gave the extra material to the tall sergeant in order that he could lengthen his trousers.

Paul means small and certainly not like Paul Bunyan. M. Sgt. Nakachi claims that he lives up to his first name.

Wonderful stories have been told about M. Sgt. Nakachi, by those who work around him daily. He is so fast when spit shining his boots, even with Giants moving to and fro over his head, that his admirers claim he can spit shine them completely in less than five minutes, using a small can of polish that he has had over three months.

Popular imagination might size him up as the mighty shoe shine man. He might be erected into a mythical figure, picturesque of Army life. These astonishing results might happen if Sgt. Nakachi wore the largest boot in the Army and was able to shine them in five minutes. But, he is probably the only E-8 that wears a size 3 boot.



LONG and SHORT OF IT — SP6 Patrick McGugin, 6 feet, 5 inches in height, and M. Sgt. Paul S. Nakachi, who claims to be the Army's only master sergeant E8 with a size 3 shoe, offer much material for tall—and short—tales in the Operations and Intelligence Section, 2nd Battalion, 61st Infantry, at Ft. Carson. (U. S. Army photo)

Frontless Dress Shown in New Paris Fashion

By LOUISE HICKMAN
AP Fashion Writer

PARIS (AP)—Cardin showed frontless dresses Friday over bow-bras. Last season, he won the plunge sweepstakes with a deep V-plunge fore and aft. This season, he's outdoing everybody again.

Cardin had U-necks, V-necks and cowl necks wide open to the waist. A big stiff bow completely covered the bras underneath. He also did some more fore and aft work, but just a slash, not a V. Even so, one dress bagged so around the slash that the lady in charge whispered to the mannequin: "It's almost a monokini, Cherie."

Cardin certainly has a sense of humor about fashion. January's show was good fun, but too many boffs get boring. It would have been far more amusing Friday if he'd done a decisive series, instead of just one, of covered choir-robe gowns.

The long black dress was completely loose, slightly backswept and had a high collar and deep wide cuffs of jet embroidery. It was in silk gauze, which is not transparent as it sounds, but stiff and matte-surfaced.

Heart X-Rays Reveal Tear In Aortic Wall

X-Ray studies of the thoracic aorta, the artery carrying blood from the heart to all parts of the body, can determine if a tear exists in the wall of the aorta.

The tear, called a "dissecting aneurysm," begins as a small opening in the wall of the aorta. It permits blood to flow within the wall at high pressure, ballooning the wall and reducing blood flow. Death can result.

Through the use of intravenous angiocardiography (x-ray study of the heart and great vessels which are made visible by the intravenous injection of a radiopaque solution) however, a definite diagnosis of the condition can be made.

The findings were made known today in the June issue of the American Journal of Roentgenology, Radium Therapy and Nuclear Medicine by a quartet of radiologists associated with St. Luke's Hospital's Department of Radiology, New York City.

Drs. Samuel D. Hemley, Virginia Kanick, Richard D. Kittredge and Nathaniel Finby reported that less than 1,500 cases of "dissecting aneurysm" of the aorta had been recorded up to 1960. They noted, however, that ever increasing numbers of cases will be encountered in the future.

They based this on: "The increasing age of the general population, the large number of hypertensives in Western society and the relationship of medical arterial necrosis (death of the artery's center portion) to Marfan's syndrome, an inherited disorder of the connective tissue."

The radiologists, who studied 15 cases, said that angiocardiographic visualizations (being able to see the aneurysm through x-ray studies) were obtained in 12 patients. They said that the cause of the disease can be essentially divided into two patterns:

"The first and most common is the widespread necrosis of the media of the aorta (death of the aorta's wall), often associated with extensive dissection (further tears in the wall) and multiple channels which may be demonstrated angiocardiographically."

The other is due to hardening of the arteries causing changes in the aorta's walls.

Clinically, the features of the desease are varied, state the physicians. Fifty to 70 per cent of the patients are men, most of whom are over 50 years old. By far, the largest group of younger individuals are those in whom medial necrosis is related to Marfan's syndrome, a hereditary condition due to changes in connective tissue.

"Death occurred in 80-90 per cent of reported patients due to rupture of the aorta into the pericardial (sac lining outside of heart) thoracic or abdominal caity," their report states, adding: "10 to 20 per cent survive the initial dissection but one-half these patients die at a result of external rupture."

In conclusion, their study notes:

"Although conventional roentgen (x-ray) studies may raise a high level of suspicions, the ultimate diagnosis of thoracic dissecting aneuryisms prior to surgery rests with the contrast demonstration of the false channels, increase in the thickness of the aortic wall and decrease in the size of the aortic lumen (interior size). Intravenous angiocardiography is the safest and most practical method of study."

CONVENTION PLANNED

DENVER (UPI)—Some 20,000 delegates and guests meet in Denver next Tuesday as the annual convention of the Grand Aerie and Grand Auxiliary of the Fraternal Order of Eagles gets underway. The convention concludes Saturday with a three-hour parade. Among those who will appear at the sessions are Cardinal Francis Spellman of New York and Gov. John Love.

Highway User Benefits May Reach $2.9 Billion

Direct benefits to users of the Interstate Highway System are expected to total $2.9 billion this year and $11 billion in 1973 when the 41,000-mile controlled-access highway network is completely open to traffic, the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads reported.

Annual user benefits on all Federal-aid highway systems due to highway improvements since 1956 are estimated at $6 billion in 1964 and $21 billion in 1973.

Federal Highway Administrator Rex M. Whitton, head of the Bureau of Public Roads, which administers the nation-wide Federal-aid highway program, said that additional information from a number of States available since the last study of user benefits was made in 1961, particularly in the areas of vehicle operating and accident costs, has resulted in an upward re-

The new estimate shows vision of anticipated benefits. The estimates, he said, are based on the best judgments of Bureau of Public Roads' experts who analyzed data from various sources.

The new estimate shows savings due to Interstate System travel this year will reach over $2 billion for passenger cars and almost three-quarters of a billion for commercial vehicles. In 1973, the benefits will rise to $8 billion for passenger cars, and $3 billion for trucks and buses.

Savings attributed to all Federal-aid systems are expected to total $4.5 billion for passenger cars and $1.5 billion for commercial vehicles this year, and $15 billion and $6 billion respectively in 1973.

Better highways cut operating costs through less fuel and oil consumption, tire wear, maintenance and reduction in depreciation cost. Accident costs, which include property damage, hospitalization, and other direct costs, decrease on highways built or improved to enhance safety. Time costs are lessened by improvements which reduce travel distance, decrease the number of stops and slowdowns, and reduce steep grades. Impedance costs, calculated for passenger car users only, are reduced by minimizing or eliminating congested lanes, traffic lights at intersections, sharp curves and indiscriminate access.

"One of the major benefits of highway improvements reaped by users," Whitton said, "is the saving of lives. The completed Interstate System, designed for safety, is expected to save annually the lives of 8,000 persons who otherwise would die on conventional roads.

"The reduction in user costs brought about by improved highways," he added, "makes highway expenditures a worthwhile investment. On the Interstate System alone, the $11 billion saving expected in 1973 means that highway users who will have paid the $41 billion costs of the system through special excise taxes will get dividends equal to that amount in less than four years after it is completed."

Checker Game Pits Puny Man Against Machine

How do you play checkers against an opponent who can do 15 million additions or six million multiplications in a single minute — an opponent who, in second, can calculate every possible move and countermove for twenty or more moves ahead — an opponent devoid of all emotional or nervous weakness? In short, how do you play a game of checkers when your opponent is a computer?

In a five game series which took five months, checker champion Robert Nealey pitted his wits against IBM's 7094 computer. An account of the historical series of games is reported in the August issue of Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Strictly speaking the 7094 is not a checker-playing machine but a general purpose computer. The machine prepared only 15 minutes a week for its match with Nealey. The total time spent studying the game was six hours, while Nealey has well over 10,000 hours of experience.

Two programs were developed for 7094. Identified as CKL (checker-learning) and CKP (checker-playing), the programs consist of a deck of about 500 instruction-bearing punch cards. Some instructions dealt with the fundamentals of the game while others told the machine how to go about the business of learning.

The machine was provided with a set of criteria through which it examined the position of the pieces on the board and compared possible moves with book moves, thus re-adjusting move scored highest, according to the re-adjustment.

The games were all rough and tumble, no holds barred contests of skill and foresight. The machine played a methodical, relentless game, avoiding complex, ingenious play. It "remembered" its mistakes and never repeated any. Nealey set traps for 7094, some of them planned 10 to 15 moves in advance . . . the machine avoided all.

The average length of time for each computer move was between 20 and 30 seconds, while Nealey took three minutes for each move. The machine probed to a depth of at least six and at most 20 moves ahead, depending on how thorough an analysis was needed.

The outcome of the five game series: four ties and one win. Here's what Nealey had to say: "I had been attacking as strongly as I could. The computer got out of one loss after another by making star moves, that is, the only possible move to avoid defeat. Then it suddenly made an outright poor move. The machine did not seem to know where to go, and I recognized the blunder at once."

Nealey won that game, but the computer constantly improved itself and, given enough "learning" experience, the chances are good that the 7094 computer would come out the victor if they ever played again.

Truman Predicts Four To One for Johnson

At a news conference, he commented:

—On the election in November — "I think Johnson's chances of winning are four or five to one. I don't normally make predictions like that, and I wouldn't this time if the Republicans had a candidate."

—On campaign issues—civil rights should be, foreign policy should not. "That damn fool nominated in San Francisco put foreign policy into it."
